4 Freedoms Now 4 Fears, Adlai States

Challenges Ability of Ike to Speak for Administration

PHILADELPHIA—(AP). Adlai E. Stevenson said Saturday night the "Four Freedoms" have given way to the "Four Fears" and challenged President Eisenhower's ability to speak for the Eisenhower administration.

In an address at a rally of Democrats from 11 eastern states and the District of Columbia, Stevenson said that "sorry confusion" has supplanted "the gallant hopes of yesterday" and that Democratic party fortunes have suddenly improved.

The freedoms of speech and worship and the freedoms from want and fear enunciated by the late President Roosevelt, Stevenson said, "have been replaced by the Four Fears—fear of depression, fear of Communism, fear of ourselves, fear of freedom itself."

"Fear," said the man who lost the 1952 presidential race, "is poison."

In the end, Stevenson said, he does not visualize America huddled in a paralysis of fear, divided by bitterness and "mean pursuits," but standing united in high endeavors as "a beacon of hope, a citadel of fortitude—and of faith."

Yet at the moment, he said, ancient liberties are infringed, reckless words uttered, the security of secret files violated and the spectre of a political police appears.

Stevenson avoided any direct personal attack upon Eisenhower in his nationally televised and broadcast speech. The former Illinois governor even praised the President's proposal for international pooling of atomic resources for peaceful purposes.

"But while he speaks of unity, his colleagues sow disunity," Stevenson said. "While he calls for calm his friends light the fires of hysteria."

"While he invokes the American tradition that the accused has the right to be confronted by his accuser, members of his administration and his party charge, try, condemn and convict in a single action of the hand."

"I only wish President Eisenhower could speak for the Eisenhower administration."

The Stevenson speech was the big event of the Democratic political powwow here. The Democratic party chief had spent the day hopping from one breakfast to another and from panel to panel.

He told the advisory council of the Democratic National Committee the party's biggest problem now is ending its north-south split. At a panel discussion on the United Nations, he proposed more aid for underdeveloped nations through U. N. rather than on an individual nation basis.

Many people just out of colonial domination, he said, don't know a great deal about issues between a Communist and non-Communist world but are aware of their landlords and oppressors of the past.

To many of them, he said, United States aid looks like "an imperial wedge." Much of this feeling would disappear, he said, if the aid came through U. N.

All this built up to Saturday night's address at a $100-a-plate money raising dinner.

While he said there has been foolish talk from Washington about government for and by business men, he cautioned Democrats to avoid the temptation to "turn all failures of the administration to the discredit of businessmen in general."

The task of building security and prosperity in the land is a task for all, he said, and with intelligent and courageous leadership, confidence and common sense throughout the land, "we need have no fear of the economic collapse Stalin so confidently and often predicted."

Santa Works Miracles—Even Castor Oil Good

"THAT'S A GOOD BOY," said Santa Claus as he persuaded 4-year-old Raymond Brunner Jr., 4733 Matney Ave., to take a dose of castor oil. Raymond had balked at medicines and the nurses at St. Mary's Hospital knew they faced a problem. Then Santa dropped into the children's ward for a pre-Christmas visit and the problem was solved. He took the oil like it was a chocolate soda. "What next will they ask me to do," Santa (Jimmy McGarrigle) was heard mumbling. "Castor Oil! Bahl! I wouldn't even give it to a reindeer." But he was smiling as usual.—(Staff Photo by John Neegle.)

Blast Jolts 6000 Viewing Yule Parade

PRYOR, Okla.—(UP). A thunderous explosion Saturday blew apart a downtown business and apartment building, jolting a crowd gathered for Pryor's annual Christmas parade, and injuring one man.

The explosion shook the entire business district eight minutes after the parade began. It blew away much of the second story of the building, housing 10 apartments, and damaged a hardware store on the ground floor.

Herman J. Aigelt, 25, an implement company employee, was injured, but his condition was not believed serious. He was sleeping in one of the apartments when the blast occurred at 3:23 p. m.

Mayes County Sheriff L. L. Weaver said a crowd of about 6000 persons was standing along Main Street, just a half-block from the explosion.

75-mph Typhoon 'Doris' Reported Roaring on Guam

HONOLULU, T. H.—(UP). The Honolulu weather bureau reported Saturday night that typhoon "Doris" was heading towards Guam and "gaining in speed and intensity."

The bureau said the typhoon, moving at 12 knots an hour in a west-northwest direction, was expected to hit Guam Monday afternoon if it continued on its present course.

Ike Gets Spoofed at Gridiron Fete

WASHINGTON—(AP). Spies took to the hills, Malenkov turned up as Santa Claus and the Democrats were wooed by Presidential suitors aplenty Saturday night at the annual winter dinner of the 68-year-old Gridiron Club at the Statler Hotel.

A special target of the fun-poking skits was the Eisenhower administration, depicted as wandering confusedly in a programless McCarthy-haunted "manana" (tomorrow) land where:

"Our budget isn't balanced but Ike doesn't seem to care."

"Our plans for cutting taxes are not getting anywhere."

"The Humphrey solid dollar will not buy a beefsteak now."

"But sometime in the future we will fix it up somehow."

Invited to grin and bear it was President Eisenhower, foremost among some 500 guests who included Cabinet members, Supreme Court justices, members of Congress, governors, ambassadors, businessmen, editors and others prominent in the publishing field.

Departing from custom, Eisenhower did not undertake one of the main off-the-record political addresses which chief executives have been accustomed to give when they attended the twice-a-year gatherings of the Washington Correspondents' Club.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader, was called on instead for one principal address, with Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. (D-Lib.-N.Y.), replying for the Democrats. Informal remarks by Eisenhower wound up the evening's program.

Marshall McNeill, correspondent for Scripps-Howard newspapers in Texas and Tennessee, was elected president of the Gridiron Club for 1954, succeeding Duke Shoop of the Kansas City Star.

Edward T. Follard, Washington Post, became next year's vice president. New members initiated were Jack Bell of the Associated Press, James B. Reston of the New York Times and Glenn Thompson of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Saturday night's elaborate program of skits opened on a cloak-and-dagger note, with costumed spies who used to thrive "in White House and in Treasury" lamenting they can't make a living under the new administration.

Quickly the scene shifted to "manana" land where Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Secretary of Agriculture Benson were depicted as lamenting:

"Our program isn't working and we don't know what to do."

"The old Eisenhower umbrella seems to let a lot of water through."

"The leaders up in Congress shout for action right away. 'We'll go to work tomorrow but we really can't today.'"

"Thomas E. Dewey" turned up singing to the tune of "Glocca Morra" a song about the visits paid to a jailed union official by Arthur H. Wicks, who became acting lieutenant governor of New York and was forced by Dewey to resign. A sample:

"How are things in Danemora?"

Four POWs Murdered in Truce Camp

PANMUNJOM, Korea (Sunday)—(UP). Indian guards moved in on a North Korean prisoner-of-war compound today and arrested 17 anti-Communist POWs suspected of murdering four fellow inmates.

A spokesman for the guards said all 17 would be tried for murder if further investigation provides enough evidence against them.

The four murdered POWs were presumed to have been killed for leaning toward communism. Their bodies were thrown out of compound E-38 late last night.

Indian guards threw a cordon around the compound early this morning and ordered 38 prisoners in the compound to march out into another enclosure with their hands in the air.

The Indians threatened to shoot any POW who disobeyed but there was no violence.

Indian Chairman Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, who ordered the investigation, promised a "fair trial" if the evidence warrants one being held.

The arrest came as American authorities were mapping final plans for unprecedented "come home" interviews with 22 unrepatriated U. S. war prisoners who rejected their families and country last summer.

Twelve carefully selected and specially trained American officers will face the first six reluctant GIs Monday in a white frame and canvas hut on a frozen hillside on the outskirts of Panmunjom.

The GIs agreed Saturday to attend the interviews.

Dean, in a press conference, said, "If absolutely nothing comes by the end of the week, the time will have come to make a decision."

The Wall Street lawyer broke off the negotiations Saturday after seven weeks of almost fruitless and increasingly bitter exchanges with the Reds which culminated in their charge that the United States connived with the South Korean government to

Pair Take Radio, Nearly Run Down Protesting Clerk

A young woman clerk who tried to halt two escaping thieves Saturday night narrowly escaped being run down by their getaway car.

Katherine McGinnis, 28, of 1330 E. Market St., told police she was the clerk on duty at an appliance store at 5550 Atlantic Ave. when two men entered about 4 p. m. They asked to see a $41.95 clock radio, she said. While she was waiting on another customer, the men took the radio and walked out of the store.

The young woman said she ran outside and saw the men climb into a car parked on 58th St. just east of Atlantic Ave. She said she jumped in front of the vehicle, raised her hands and cried for them to stop.

Instead, she told police, the driver stepped on the gas and sped at her. She said she leaped to one side just in time and the thieves raced away.

NAA, Union in Midnight Strike Parley

Negotiations between the CIO United Auto Workers and North American Aviation Co. continued into the early hours today in an unprecedented session which began at midnight Friday.

There were no developments, however, and a union spokesman said "we're not particularly optimistic."

The negotiators were in session almost continually from 10 a. m. until 7:45 p. m. Saturday. They recessed until 10:15 p. m. and were still in session after midnight.

Cyril V. O'Halloran, regional director of the CIO-UAW, said the unusual meeting was asked because John Livingston, a top UAW official, had flown to Los Angeles from Detroit after a conference with UAW President Walter Reuther.

Meanwhile, Hans Ludwig, North American superintendent, said the rural type mail box in front of his home at 2928 Via La Delva, Palos Verdes Estates, was blown up Friday night by home-made bomb. The box actually belonged to a neighbor.

The strike, which began Oct. 22, has affected 33,000 North American aviation workers in plants here, in Fresno, and in Columbus, O.

Russ 'Somersault' Foreseen in Soft A-Speech Reply

British See Soviet Radio Politeness as Reaction to Western Moves

By K. C. THALER

LONDON—(UP). British sources Saturday interpreted the polite tone of Radio Moscow's report on the Molotov-Bohlen meetings as evidence of another Kremlin somersault in reactions to Western moves to ease international tensions.

Moscow broadcast, without the usual bombastic trimmings, Soviet Foreign Minister V. Molotov's pledge to U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen to give "serious consideration" to President Eisenhower's proposals for atomic controls.

Molotov's assurance was given to Bohlen the day before Eisenhower addressed the United Nations General Assembly. Soviet press and radio reaction to the speech itself was denunciatory.

The informed British sources said the alarming effect on world public opinion by the Soviet reaction was probably one of the main reasons for Moscow's second thoughts on the subject—and Saturday's broadcast.

The reversal was similar to that made by Moscow last month. On Nov. 3, the Soviets rejected a western invitation to Big Four talks in Switzerland; on Nov. 26, they announced they would participate in four-power talks in Berlin.

The sources here believe the Kremlin is becoming increasingly sensitive to public opinion both in the free world and in the Soviet satellite states.

British diplomats pointed out that Molotov's reaction, broadcast by Moscow, does not commit Russia to accepting Eisenhower's proposals. But some observers believed that Molotov, by agreeing to at least consider the plan, hoped to create a better atmosphere for Big-Four talks in Berlin.

Some diplomatic sources said, however, that the Soviets apparently plan to use the Berlin parley to force the western powers to accept a Big Five meeting with Communist China in exchange for a Korean peace conference.

Authoritative British quarters opined this "squeeze play" is the main reason for the unyielding attitude of the Communists at Panmunjom and the breakdown of the talks for a political conference.

The sources said they believed the North Koreans and Chinese Communists were acting on direct instructions from Moscow in allowing the negotiations to be broken off.

The Kremlin now apparently wants to delay any decision on Korea until after the projected Big Four meeting in Berlin, the informants said.

In Washington the White House and State Department said today they "naturally" had expected Russia to give "serious attention" to President Eisenhower's global atoms-for-peace proposals.

But there has been no official reaction from Molotov received in the U. S. Capital since Eisenhower made his proposals.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty first described the Russian assurances given the day before the speech as "most encouraging."

"I hope the Soviet Union will follow the path he has pointed out."

SUNSET OF GENIUS

Bermuda Flop Shows Winnie on the Wane

By WALTER T. RIDDER
(of The Independent-Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—Rated off the rather sad results of the Bermuda conference, the undoubted genius of Sir Winston Churchill for high-level personal diplomacy is on the wane.

Part of this ebb is due to conditions; part to the declining health and creeping old age of Churchill himself. Americans who were at Bermuda report the British Prime Minister to be very old indeed and almost completely lacking in the fire and drive which once marked him so grandly.

He is not exactly mentally feeble, but his thought processes are neither as swift nor as sure nor as pointed as once they were.

Fatigue overcomes him easily, and his mind tends to wander off the subject. One of his malaises is a breakdown of the muscles of his tear ducts, and this results in a flow of tears at even the slightest hint of excitement. Thus when one reads that Churchill took tearful departure of President Eisenhower, this does not mean as emotional a parting as one might suppose.

The Bermuda conference itself was held only because of the urgent insistence of Churchill himself. Neither Eisenhower nor the French Prime Minister, Laniel, believed much could be accomplished and in retrospect, they were right.

The holding of the conference was a great gesture of good will to a great old man than in expectation that anything could be accomplished. Churchill came to the island determined to talk the Americans and French into

Aid Is Now Available

The answer to the multiple charity drives is found in the new Long Beach organization of "Associated In-Group Donors" (AID). It is made up of employees and employers whose payroll deductions pay into the AID fund. If 50 per cent of the employees become members in good standing, they become immune to all further drives in that establishment or at their homes. To qualify, the worker agrees to have 12 minutes a week deducted from his pay check. This is equal to about 10 hours a year, or less than one hour a month. Workers are given buttons and stickers for their homes. The agencies recognized by AID agree not to solicit at establishments or homes where the workers have qualified.

Among the better known agencies which co-operate with the AID program are the Community Chest, Red Cross, Heart Assn., Cancer, Sister of Hope, Ar-

MALCOLM EPLEY

THE NOES have it, about two to one, in a little poll this dept. has been running on the question of wiring downtown Long Beach for street music on a year-around basis.

Both yes and no voters expressed themselves in emphatic and colorful manner in letters and postcards. I'm turning these over to Fred Sykes, mgr. of Long Beach Retailers' Association, who asked me to invite the opinions.

The retailers are pondering a proposal to finance installation of the downtown-wide outdoor music system. Bro. Sykes said he would look over the letters and cards before making a decision.

HELL FIND them interesting reading, and they're on a subject that has been rather widely argued in recent years. Big verbal ruckuses developed when proposals were made for piping music into buses in New York.

Disagreement is pretty violent here. For instance, here's a hot one from Jim Maxwell on the yes side:

"Every one likes music. Why do some L. B. sour pussies do so hard. After it is a success they will tell visitors, 'see, we even have music and sunshine in the street.'"

But says Laura Brandmeier: "Heavens to Betsy. No! No! Aren't there enough blaring sounds to kill us already without the screeching of a PA system that will make life unendurable downtown. We'd be a captive audience every time we went to shop or even to buy a postage stamp."

A MAJORITY of the answers, as I've said, agree with Laura rather than Jim. Here are some samples:

"AMONG affirmative opinions was an interesting suggestion from Julius Young, who said that the loudspeakers and a central broadcasting system could be important defense-wise.

It could sound alarms and give instructions to the whole downtown area, said Julius.

And here are some others on that side:

ing there?

"Do they still run down to see their friends..."

"Or do they no longer dare?"

In another sid, Sec. of Labor Mitchell was portrayed as telling Sec. of the Interior McKay about the Eisenhower waltz—"one step forward, hesitate; one one step sideways, glide; one step back, stop."

A "Sen. McCarthy," depicting the senator from Wisconsin, complained that's the trouble with the administration — it doesn't take enough steps.

"Why, it can't even count telegrams," snorted "McCarthy" before launching into a song:

"If your luck goes wrong, Ike,

"And my fate is kind,

"Look over your shoulder,

"I'm walking behind."

The real life McCarthy had a recent dispute with the White House over the number of telegrams received in response to his foreign policy criticisms.

Democrats got a lighter lampooning them they did when they were in office.

It seems, according to the gridiron show, "Miss Demmy" had been deserted by her fellow, name of Adlai Stevenson, who turned up with "Miss A-D-A," which might possibly stand for "Americans for Democratic Action," on his arm.

Sen. Symington (D-Mo) was represented as getting into the race for the Democrats' presidential favor and labelling himself "the hottest thing that has hit this burg since Averell Harriman."

A coonskin-capped "Sen. Ke-fauver" from Tennessee sang a plea for "Mah pore lil' old TVA."

"Miss Demmy," it turned out, had eyes only for "Uncle Harry," former President Truman, who assured her "There ain't no snol-lygester gonna jilt my Demmy."

"Truman" aired his differences with a stand-in for South Carolina Gov. James F. Byrnes over the Harry Dexter White case, then was about to arrange a shotgun wedding between "Adlai" and "Miss Demmy" when Franklin Roosevelt Jr. strode in to the tune of "Jericho."

"Frank'll fight de battle oh Washington..."

"And de votes come tumblin' down."

Soviet Premier Malenkov later turned up at Bermuda, thinly disguised as Santa Claus bringing the gift of peace—at his own price, as it turned out. As for Malenkov's absence from the recent "big Three" conference, the Western foreign ministers were shown singing:

"Glorious! glorious!

"Winnie wishes there were four of us."

"Glory be that there are no more of us."

"Cause the three of us can louse it up alone."

release 27,000 anti-Communist. It has never been and I hope it never will be."

Dean did not say what his "decision" would be at the end of the week, but he told the Communists Saturday they must withdraw their remarks or the negotiations will remain in "indefinite recess."

Presumably, Dean will decide at the end of the week whether to give the Communists more time.

"I will give them sufficient time to reply," he said. "I don't want to pin myself down on the limit of a reasonable time. If absolutely nothing comes by the end of the week, the time will have come to make a decision."

He said the Communists were aware of his instructions from U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles "to do everything possible to keep these talks going and to arrange a peace conference."

He charged that the Communists had deliberately stepped up their torrent of abuse against him and his country to force him to break off the talks.

Dean said the Red tactic became obvious Nov. 20.

During the talks, he said, jokingly, the Reds called him "war-monger, insincere, dishonest, criminal, stupid and a slanderer."

He said he did not mind this personal abuse but that "the United States is not perfidious."

Peiping radio, voice of Communist China, did not indicate what the next Red move would be but it said Dean's "utterances at the conference on the 12th were aimed at torpedoing the talks and were in line with a long-planned intrigue on the part of the United States."

The breakup in negotiations came during a discussion of war prisoners, a subject introduced by the Communists.

Korea Diplomat Says Reds Plan New Attack

WASHINGTON — (AP) South Korean Ambassador You Chan Yang said Saturday that the Communist refusal to arrange a Korean peace conference provided new evidence that Moscow and its Asian satellites are preparing for a new war in Korea.

Yang said the North Korean and Chinese Communists, with Russia's support, had been busily preparing for war in Korea ever since the armistice was signed last summer. He charged that the Communists had built 30 new airstrips in North Korea and had received delivery on 400 Russian-built jet planes, in addition to "boatloads and boatloads" of ammunition and supplies.

Mothers Kept From POWs by Top Policy

WASHINGTON — (AP) The government's "highest levels," including the White House, drew up the policy which decreed that Mrs. Portia Howe and the mothers of 21 other American prisoners could not plead personally with their sons in Korea to renounce Communism, it was learned Saturday.

Behind the policy were official fears not only that the mothers might be humiliated should their sons reject their pleas but also for the whole future of the delicate peace negotiations.

Therefore, it was decided not to allow the mothers to go to Korea. Mrs. Howe, 47-year-old Alden, Minn., housewife, went to Japan on her own in an effort to see her prisoner son.

But she has been refused permission to go to Korea.

A defense official closely connected with the prisoner repatriation question said these reasons, which resulted in the policy, were considered at "the highest level of government," including the Defense and State Departments and the White House.

From Minneapolis, Evangelist Billy Graham cabled Mrs. Howe in Tokyo, asking her to remain there until "we have the opportunity to contact officials in Washington." But it seemed certain there would be no reversal of the government's policy.

To allow one American mother to plead with her son, the Defense Department held, would open the door to "similar requests from the tens of thousands of parents or alleged parents of non-repatriate Communist POWs."

An official said that, once American mothers were allowed to see their sons the Communists could stall the prisoner exchange and true negotiations indefinitely by demanding similar rights for "mothers" of the Communist prisoners.

This would run counter to the American position that the whole prisoner exchange question ends on Jan. 22 under terms of the armistice agreement. On that date, the United States holds, all non-repatriated prisoners should be given their freedom, even though they may not have been interrogated by their former masters or their fate dealt with by a political conference.

Fast Life — by PETRONIUS JR.

GERALD DESMOND is keeping Republicans of the 70th Assembly District upset.

He won't make up his mind whether to run for the city council or for the assembly seat now held by Willis Bradley.

REPUBLICANS Bradley and Bill Grant are both planning to run for the assembly.

Last year Desmond, a Democrat, got about half as many Republican votes in the primaries as did his Republican opponent Bradley.

THUS THERE WOULD be a good chance that if all three ran next year Desmond would be elected in the primaries.

If Bradley and Grant split the Republican vote equally and Desmond held what he got last year it could happen.

BUT IF DESMOND decides to run for the council in Sutter's district it will leave the assembly race wide open for the two Republicans.

It seems a shame that two of the best men we have in our local political life should oppose each other for the same office.

A glittering way to look wonderful for the holidays!

Chest Honors Oil Division Head for Doubling Quota in Aid Drive

Freeman E. Fairfield, whose oil division not only voluntarily increased its Community Chest campaign quota but "went over the top" by more than $5000, won a coveted award from the chest board of directors. Fairfield and his workers raised their quota from $40,000 to $75,000—then proceeded to collect a total of $80,335.

H. E. Ridings Jr., campaign chairman, presented to Fairfield a "Chesty" award given only to division leaders who exceed their financial goals. The oil division is the only one to go over the top so far this year.

GIFT DOUBLED
The Community Chest directors also voted a resolution of appreciation to the oil industry for its support of the campaign, noting that the $80,335 was twice as much as had ever been contributed before.

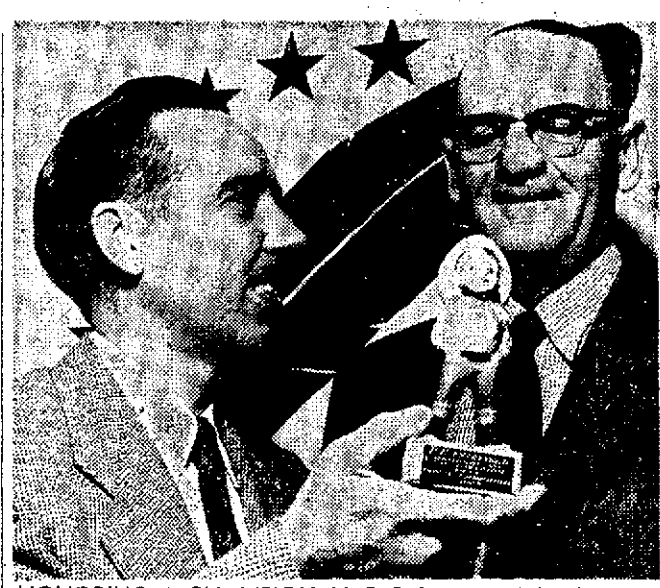

The presentation to Fairfield, who is president of the Oil Tool Corp., was made at the chest directors' regular meeting at Red Boatner headquarters, 1213 Cedar Ave.

The resolution said, "The most outstanding single goal allotment has been raised from the oil division." It ended by publicly commending Fairfield, his committee and the components of the oil division of this city for "public spirited and unselfish devotion to the cause of eradicating want in this community."

CREDIT LIST
Fairfield said all of the credit should go to the teamwork and co-operation of the oil sponsoring committee, the oil evaluation committee, the 125 oilmen who solicited funds from the oil industry, as well as the co-operation received from the Community Chest headed by its general manager, Wayne Stewart and "last but not least, the tireless and unselfish effort by the secretary of the oil sponsoring committee, Julia Chandler."

The oil sponsoring committee consisted of the following:
W. E. Albers, Long Beach Oil Development Co.
E. J. Amar, Long Beach Harbor Department manager.
William Anderson, Oil Tool Corp.

Big Uranium Mine Bought

DENVER—UPI. Completion of one of the largest uranium mine sales ever made in the United States was announced Saturday.

The Four Corners Uranium Corp., headed by E. H. Sanders of Denver, purchased 191 claims in the Bull Canyon area of Southwest Colorado from State Sen. D. Lew Williams of Norwood and Associates.

The price was disclosed only as "in excess of $1,000,000" by Stephen L. R. McNichols, attorney who handled the transaction and one of the stockholders in the claims.

Three operating uranium mines are on the claims, McNichols said. They are the Jackknife, the Lookout and the Mary Jane. All are part of the Wedding Bell group originally known as the McKee claims.

The property is along the Montrose-San Miguel County line near the Utah border.

All of the sellers will become stockholders in the Four Corners company.

ST. NICK HAS MEAN TRICKS FOR EAST ZONE

BERLIN—UPI. The Communists' Santa Claus has a Christmas bag well filled with presents for East Germans, but nobody is expected to be very pleased, the United States High Commission reported Saturday.

An analysis of the Yuletide gifts available for Germans under Red rule, the commission said, shows: "Coats which lose their shape; shoes which split up the side; watches and clocks that won't run; radios for which no tubes can be obtained; shirts in two sizes, one for gorillas, the other for pygmies; electric heating pads that catch fire; bicycle inner-tubes with built-in leaks, and toys which fall apart the first time they are used."

Poly Girl Student Wins 'Voice of Democracy' Test

Myrna Kelley, 17, of 2661 Adriatic Ave., senior at Poly High School, is the local winner of the "Voice of Democracy" speaking contest, a broadcast script writing and voice competition conducted each year by the Junior Chamber of Commerce public affairs committee.

Poly, Wilson, Jordan and St. Anthony's high schools each select an outstanding speaker from the student body to compete and a trio of judges decides the winner. This year's judges were Malcolm Epley, Independent-Press-Telegram columnist; Joseph M. Kennick, superintendent of the Juvenile Bureau, and Robert Lamb, public relations director of KFOX.

Myrna will represent Long Beach in the District 8 contest later this month. District winners will compete for state honors in San Francisco. State winners will compete in Washington, D. C.

The National Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsors the contest to give youth an opportunity to consider seriously and speak in behalf of freedoms and opportunities traditional in American democracy.

Girl Crosses Sea Posing as Sailor

OSTEND, Belgium—(UPI). A Belgian brunette whose masquerade as a seaman fooled the captain and crew of a Norwegian freighter on a transatlantic voyage said Saturday she's as good a sailor as any man.

"I can read a compass, steer a course, read charts and maps, tie knots and splice ropes," said 23-year-old Liliane Soudemont. "I know the name of almost every bit of gear aboard a merchantman."

"We have woman doctors, soldiers and streetcar drivers, and I think we should have women sailors, too."

Miss Soudemont said she was not molested on the trip, although there were awkward moments—when she was assigned a male cabinmate and was expected to drink like a sailor, for instance.

Senate Majority Boss Without a Majority

THEY SAY William Fife Knowland enjoys politics because of its personal challenge.

That being true, he is about to have the time of his life finding his way through a no-man's land abundantly mined with personal challenge. On Jan. 5, when the United States Senate is gavelled to order, the tall, husky Republican from California will become the first Senate majority leader in history without a majority.

On one side of the aisle there will be 47 Republicans; on the other, 48 Democrats, many of them still bristling at the recent GOP attempt to nail the Truman administration for Communists in government. And somewhere in between, stands Sen. Wayne Morse, unpredictable Oregon Independent, who has said he would side with the GOP on organization. Up on the rostrum will be Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whose vote the GOP can count on in a tie.

This is the tight-rope situation confronting Knowland, who has behind him only eight years in the Senate and at 45 is still something of a boy prodigy in politics. And this is the session of Congress which Dwight D. Eisenhower and administration leaders hope will give them the program they can take to the electorate next fall.

"It will be an important and rugged session," Knowland says. This obviously is an understatement to describe the first test of the Senate leadership Knowland inherited only last summer from the late Robert A. Taft.

One of his biggest jobs, he says, will be to map out "areas of adjustment" that Republicans and a substantial number of Democrats can support. By all reliable forecasts, this may take a lot of doing. In the last session, President Eisenhower found considerable Democratic support. Since the Brownell-Truman flareup, however, many Democrats are expected to be much less co-operative.

BUT PROBLEMS normally reserved for more experienced men have never seemed to frighten Knowland. Long ago, he set himself a fast pace; he has continued to be a young man in a hurry.

As a boy, he searched the problem-filled world beyond the comfortable orbit of a wealthy publishing family. At an age when his schoolmates limited their political concerns to the election of the next class president, Knowland was worrying about the next President of the United States.

At 12, he campaigned for the Harding-Coolidge ticket.

At 16, he headed the finance committee of the Coolidge-Dawes Republican Club of Alameda, his bayside home community, making speeches and soliciting contributions. He was the youngest city finance chairman in history, as far as anyone knew.

In between, he edited the Alameda High School paper, was elected student body treasurer and then president.

At 18, he was married; at 20, he was a father.

At 22, he was a member of the Republican state central committee.

At 24 (after graduation from the University of California with a B.A. in political science), he became the state's youngest assemblyman; at 26, the youngest state Senator; at 30, Republican national committeeman from California; at 33, the youngest chairman of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee.

OBVIOUSLY he was already well grounded in politics when former Gov. Earl Warren appointed the son of his close friend, publisher Joseph R. Knowland of the Oakland Tribune, to the U. S. Senate in 1945. Young Knowland was a 37-year-old Army major in Europe when he heard in Stars and Stripes that he had been named to succeed the late Hiram W. Johnson.

Knowland waded in, in his deliberate way. He worked long hours, read voluminously, made solid Republican friends as a result of his party loyalty and sledge-hammer criticism of the Truman administration.

Speaking out forcefully in his deep voice, he quickly became one of the leading critics of American foreign policy, especially in Asia. Opponents called him the "Senator from Formosa" but he went right on.

He charged the United States had bungled in Korea. He demanded the bombing of Communist targets across the Yalu River. He fought every move to seat Red China in the United Nations—even proposing that we get out if the Chinese Communists got in.

As majority leader, he works closely with President Eisenhower. There are times, though, when he feels it necessary to urge sterner action against Russia or its satellites.

But Knowland also knows dangers of too much rigidity in political thinking. "I have never tried to freeze my thinking," he says. "That would be a very unfortunate position for either an individual or party."

WHATEVER HE DOES, he puts all the energy of his six-foot-one-200-pound frame behind it. Knowland is tenacious, conscientious and something of a worrier, superficially. Basically, he is an optimist. He has great faith in his country and its future.

"We must accept change," however," he says, "it gives us an opportunity to improve the living standards of our people. I certainly don't believe that with all the advantages we've had in science, for instance, we have reached the end of our development. We've really just scratched the surface."

Hard work has lined his large, oval face, yet it retains a smooth and youthful appearance. Perhaps that's because opponents can't seem to do more than bounce off the Knowland granite with their jibes.

Despite his preoccupation with Nationalist China, he points out: "I have never believed in Asia

On the shoulders of California's William F. Knowland, first Senate majority leader without a majority, will fall the burden of mapping out "areas of adjustment" that Republicans and a substantial number of Democrats can support.

first." He says the menace of communism is global. "We can't close the door in Europe and leave it wide open in Asia."

Despite his rather formal attitude and emphasis on world affairs, Knowland has never had any serious trouble with California voters. In 1952 he could get away from Washington for only two weeks of pre-primary campaigning. He thundered up and down the state, speaking less of his Democratic opponent than of Korea and President Truman's policies.

THERE WAS, as usual with Knowland, no attempt at humor,

Well-liked by most of his colleagues, Knowland is accused by some of his critics of being "bull headed" at times. His opinions are hard to change, they say, his anger is quick and his finesse is sometimes lacking. But no one questions his integrity, honesty or serious-minded devotion to his job.

KNOWLAND LIVES simply for a man of his means and in Washington the Knowlands are not considered social butterflies. The Senator finds his relaxation in reading or an occasional swim.

Being a man with a determined course, he has neither the time nor inclination for hobbies. He doesn't smoke. But while he is far from a back-slapper, he also is known as a good companion when the day's chores are done.

Outside of his work, his main concern is trying to find more time to spend with his wife, the former Helen Merrick, and their three children and two grandchildren. The attractive Mrs. Knowland has published one detective novel and is working on a second.

After college graduation, Knowland went to work for his father's newspaper. In 1933, he became an assistant publisher of the Tribune, a title he still holds along with his older brother, Joseph Russell Knowland Jr.

IN OAKLAND, the Senator still makes his headquarters in a small private office in the Tribune Tower, right next door to his father's. The senior Knowland, son of a gold rush immigrant to California, served in Congress from 1905 to 1914, when he won the GOP nomination to the Senate but lost the election.

Where the father failed, the son succeeded. In 1946, running for his first full Senate term, young Knowland defeated Democrat Will Rogers Jr. by a vote of 1,428,067 to 1,167,161. His sweeping re-election last year to his second full term emphasized Knowland as one of the two strongest political forces in California.

In state politics, he teamed up with former Gov. Earl Warren and between them they pretty well dominated party affairs. It was Knowland who placed Warren's name in nomination for President at the 1952 Republican convention.

Knowland was active behind the scenes at Chicago but he was largely instrumental in holding California's 70 votes intact for Warren. There was talk of friction between Knowland and Nixon, then the state's junior Senator, after Nixon had polled the delegates on their second choice. Since then, the two men have tried to show people they are really good friends.

WARREN'S DEPARTURE for the Supreme Court set off a supposed attempt by GOP elements loyal to Nixon and the new governor, Goodwin J. Knight, to challenge the pro-Warren-Knowland state organization. Again, Nixon and Knowland insisted all this unity.

But to many people it is as inevitable as San Francisco fog that the two big men from California one day will clash. Both are young and ambitious. Both could be serious contenders for the Presidency in 1956 or 1960.

Knowland himself shrugs off any speculation about White House ambitions, emphasizing that he has a job to do in the Senate.

"I've seen more good governors and Senators ruined by the Presidential bug. I always have gone on the theory you should work at the job you are elected to do."

By Morrie Landsberg

Associated Press Staff Writer

no back-slapping, no baby-kissing, no extravagant promises. Though his oratory was heavy, voters handed him both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

He carried all 58 counties in the GOP race and 57 in the Democratic. In November, he won easily with nearly 4,000,000 votes cast for him — a record total in California.

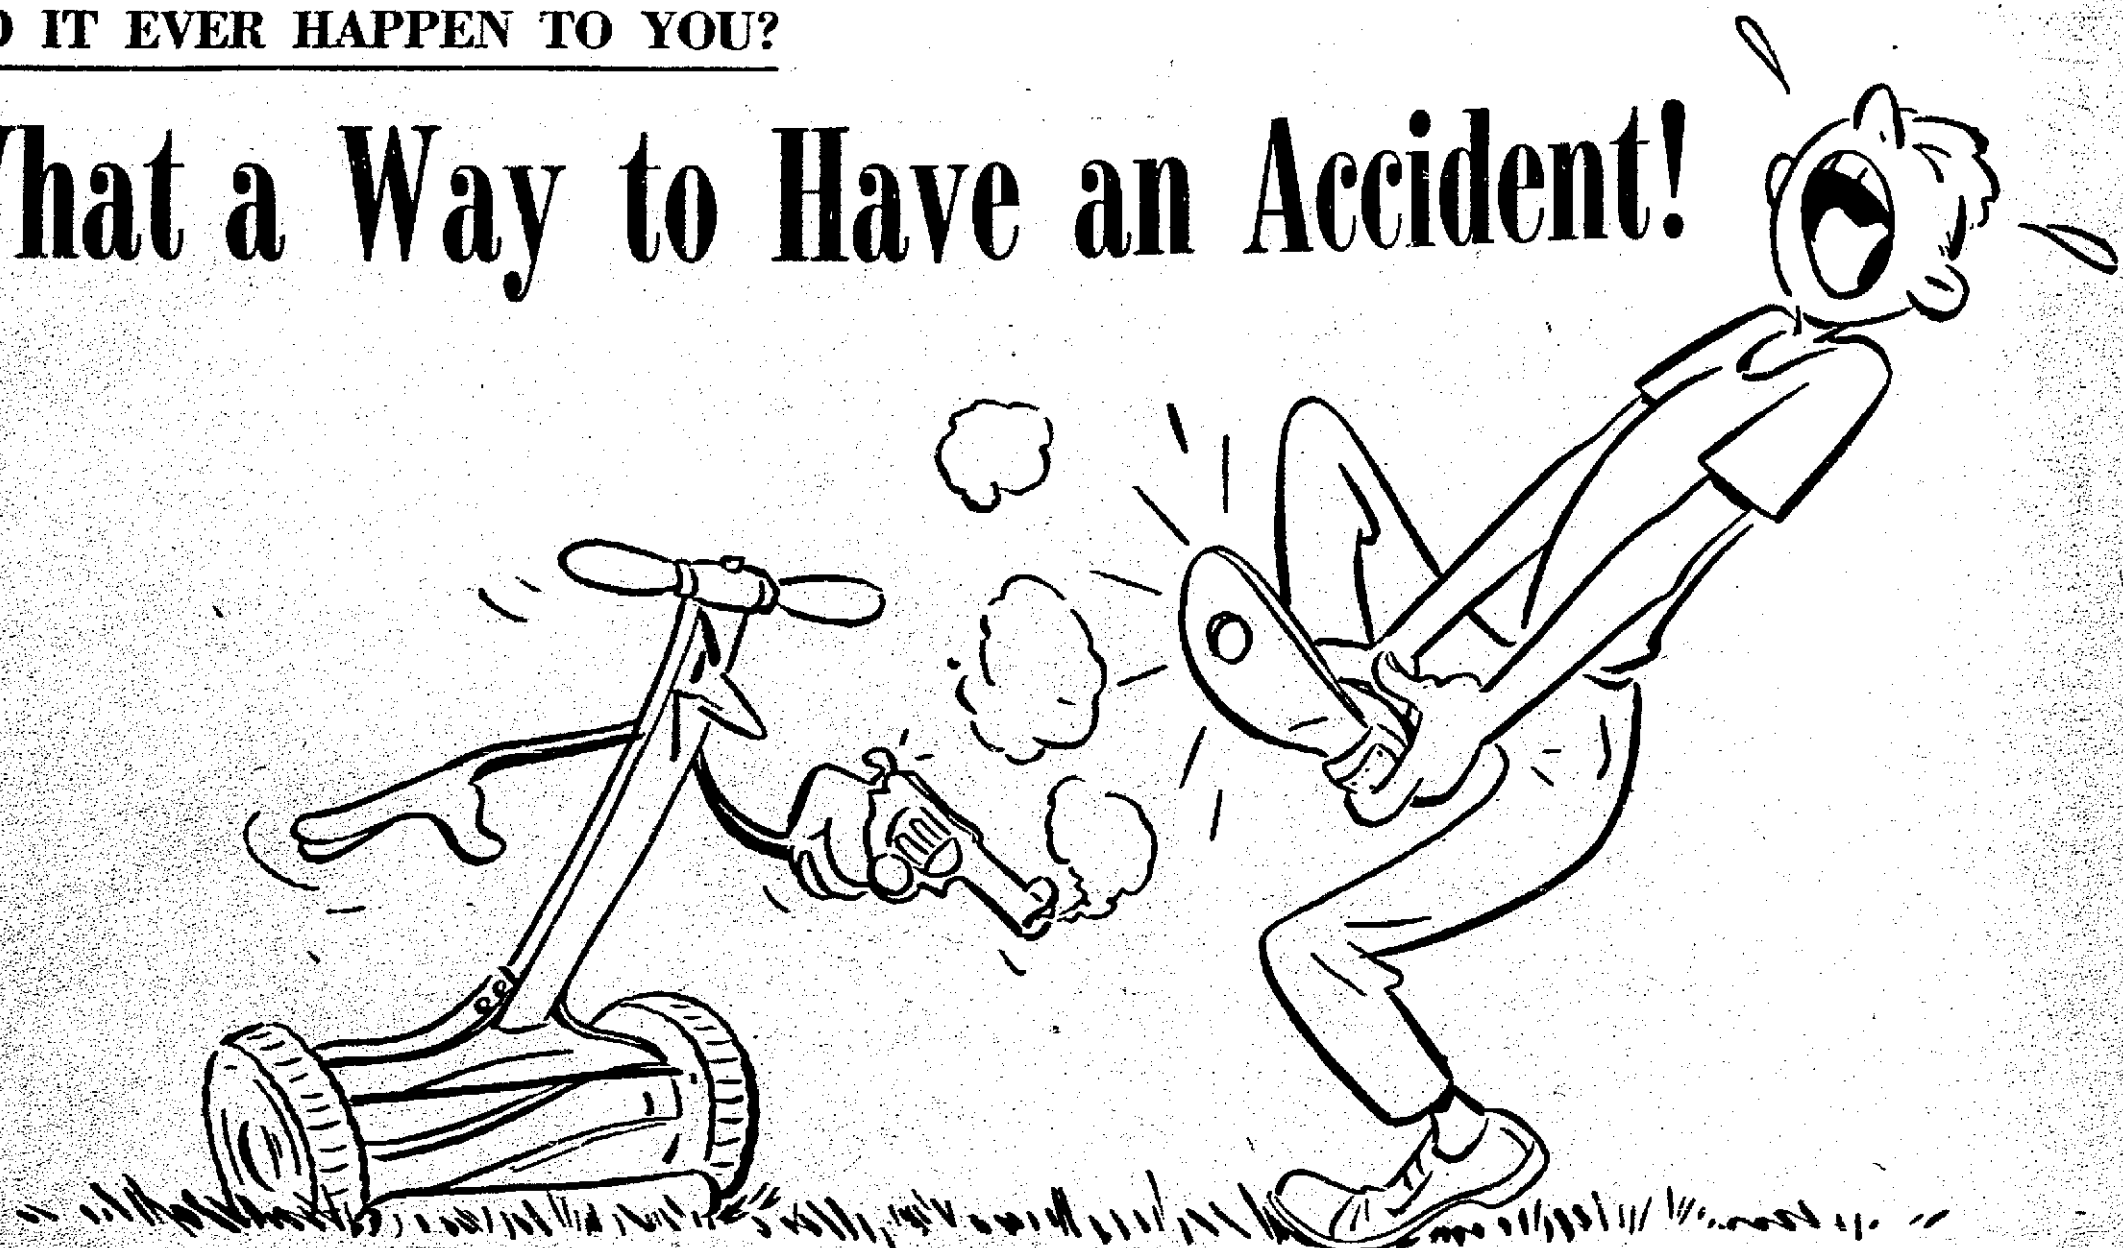

While Robert A. Taft went a long way toward making Republican policy every time he took a personal stand, Knowland has no such following at his command in the Senate. But the Californian already has won a Senate reputation for aggressiveness, especially since he forced a showdown vote on the permanent leadership a few days after Taft's funeral.

He obviously will need all the push he can muster. Thirteen of the Senate's Republicans outrank him in service in a body where seniority usually brings the honors.

DID IT EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

What a Way to Have an Accident!

Robert Heinbaugh of Painesville, Ohio, was shot by his mower. It ran over a shell, exploding the bullet. It hit him in a big toe!

SO YOU THINK you got troubles—that everything happens to you?

Well, have you been shot by your lawnmower lately? Or by a rake? Or by a deer?

Have you had to go around wearing a kitchen sink on your finger? Has your little girl driven the family car into the living room?

No? Then down, boy! You haven't had it at all. For all those wacky things, and many others, happened in 1953 to people who were just as surprised as you would be if they happened to you.

Take a look at the dizzy doings turned up by the National Safety Council in its annual roundup of odd accidents:

In near-by Lakewood, Eugene

By Paul Jones

(National Safety Council)

Peete, a careful man, decided to stay home over the Fourth of July and avoid the hazards of holiday traffic. He did deem it safe to inspect his lawn. Bending over to admire a tender shoot, he was knocked flat by a brass pressure cap which had shaken loose from a passing plane.

ROBERT HEINBAUGH was cutting the grass in his yard at Painesville, Ohio, when all of a sudden he felt shot—and it wasn't from heat or fatigue. His lawnmower had run over a live gun shell which went off. The bullet plugged him in the big toe.

In Santa Cruz, Calif., John Plumbe was shot by a rake he had always regarded as trustworthy. He was raking rubbish into a bonfire. In the rubbish was a shotgun shell. Bang!

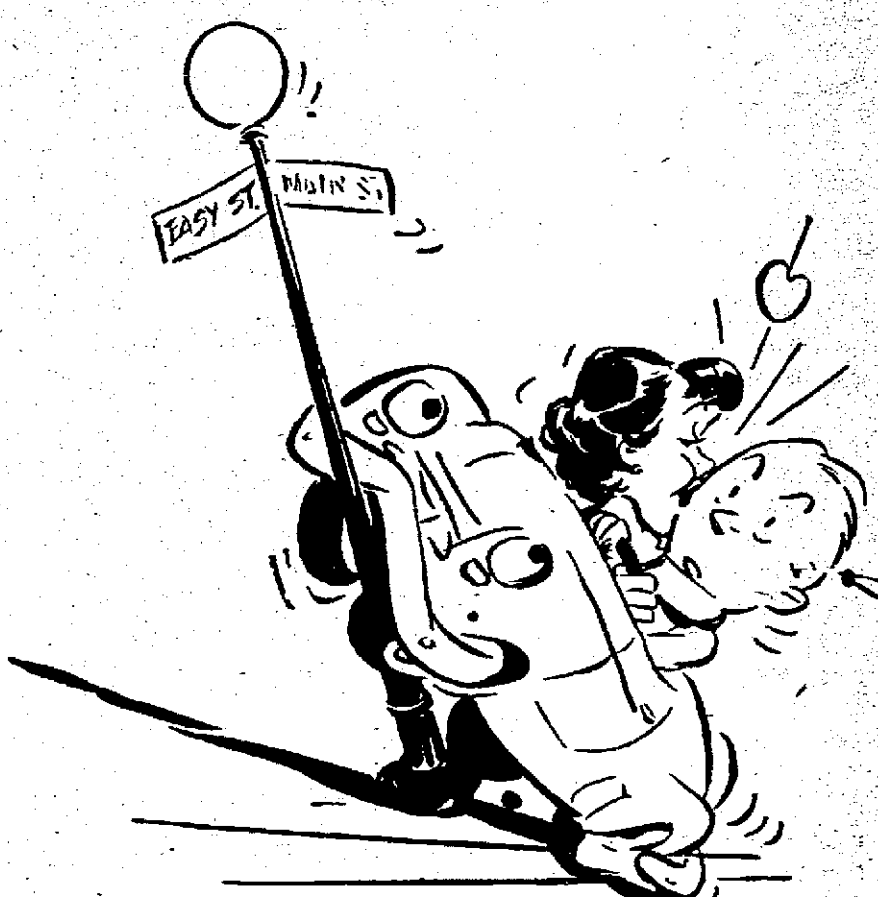

And in Payson, Utah, Shirl Kelsey knelt triumphantly beside the deer he had just shot down. The animal kicked defiantly, struck the trigger of Kelsey's gun, and the bullet hit Kelsey in the thigh.

Any hospital attendant will tell you that some patients bring everything with them but the kitchen sink. Four-year-old Joan Williams, of Texarkana, Ark., even brought that! She had to—it was attached to her finger! Joan had stuck the finger in the drain of the sink, and it stayed there. After simpler methods failed, her father unbolted the sink and took it and Joan to the hospital. They eventually were separated.

SAFETY EXPERTS do a lot of talking about the minimum age for safe driving. The parents of Mary Jane Rodden can tell them that two and a half years is too young. That's how old Mary Jane was the day she somehow managed to start the family car as it stood in the driveway of the Rodden home in Memphis. She had no place in particular to go, so she drove into the Rodden living room. The only thing not expensively damaged was Mary Jane. She felt fine.

And before you sneer "just another woman driver" at Mary Jane, ponder the case of young Anthony Widby, of Detroit, who got behind the wheel of his family car, started it up and drove it slambang into the home of his next door neighbor. Tony got off scot free with the police, too. Maybe it was because he was only two years old.

Well, if babies can drive cars, a real smart animal ought to get away with it too. At least that's what a dog in Lincoln, Nebr., figured. So when Mrs. Jewell Norman left her car with the motor idling, her pet pooch climbed from the back seat into the front, pawed the gear shift a bit, and backed the car accurately and resoundingly into another car. His license has been suspended.

IN MEMPHIS, J. C. Lightfoot stood beneath a tree on a gentle day and drank deeply of the fresh, clean air. He was struck with the beauty of nature. Then he was struck by something else—an ear of corn dropped with precision and force by a squirrel in the branches above. Lightfoot left the beauties of nature to go home and nurse a long, deep gash in his head.

Thirteen-year-old Horace Boutwell, of Houston, watched breathlessly as Wild Bill Hickok routed the bad men on TV. Then Horace got out his trusty air rifle and blazed away at a .22-caliber rifle bullet resting on a saw horse several feet away. His dead-center shot sent the casing of the .22 cartridge whizzing back into his shoulder. At the hospital he smiled happily. "Let's see Wild Bill top that!" he said.

Historians may dispute it, but the last shot of the Civil War was fired in 1953—not in 1865. It happened in the living room of the Ishmael Lynch home in Port Gibson, Miss. A Civil War shell, found long ago on a nearby battlefield, fell from a mantel and exploded, blasting holes in the floor, walls and ceiling. No Union or Confederate casualties.

Historians also will be interested to know that George Washington and Benjamin Franklin met again in 1953—not in Independence Hall, but in Richmond, Va. Their trucks collided on a downtown street.

When Eugene Duda's car jumped the curb and knocked down a lamp post in Windsor, Ont., his girl friend took the blame. "It wasn't his fault," she told police. "I kissed him." Her name? Betty Loveless. After this she probably will.

AND IN SANTA BARBARA, the Coffey-Pott accident really had things perkin'. A car driven by Thomas F. Coffey collided with one driven by Ben Pott. Police didn't hold either driver. No grounds!

When Joe Fee fell from the top of a tree he was pruning in Portland, Ore., he didn't get a scratch. But his wife did. She got a lump on the head, a bruised hand and other injuries. He landed on her.

So you think you got troubles—that everything happens to you? Just keep on smiling, bub, and be glad for the humdrum life you live!

J. C. Lightfoot, Memphis, got a deep gash on the head from an ear of corn dropped by a squirrel.

Union Giving Car to Boss Who Saved Jobs

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Chief shop steward, put it this way: The chairman of the board of the New Haven Clock & Watch Co. and the international president of the Playthings, Jewelry and Novelty Workers' Union (CIO) will meet here next Friday, but not for the reason you think.

No bargaining session is in the offing, no union demands are to be made and answered.

Instead, Union President Alex Bail of New York, on behalf of the some 800 members of his union who work for New Haven clock, will present the board chairman, Dr. Max A. Geller, with a new automobile (a 1954 Chrysler Imperial).

The union credits Dr. Geller with saving the company from bankruptcy, and thus with saving the jobs of its members.

Louis Squeglia, the union's

York University faculty, was a clock company director and its advertising representative in 1949 when a bank started foreclosure proceedings against the 136-year-old firm because it could not pay off a million-dollar loan.

Other executives tried with no success to get help from the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Dr. Geller made a final appeal to the RFC, not with charts and graphs but with a plea about what would happen to the company's 1000 employees if it went out of business. Many of them were grandsons and even great-grandsons of men who had worked for New Haven Clock back in the days when its directors included the famed showman, P. T. Barnum.

The RFC made a loan, but stipulated that Dr. Geller, himself, must take over active management of the company.

In 1950, it operated at a million-dollar deficit, the same as in 1949. In 1951 the losses were cut to $300,000, but light began to break the following year and the estimated net profit for the current year is $500,000.

Dr. Geller, asserting he has "no magic formula" for getting along with his employees, says: "They're human beings just as I am, and we work together on our mutual problems. I feel the worker has an even greater stake in this business than has management."

Isbrandtsen Starts Service to East Coast Ports Dec. 28

Intercoastal steamship service from west to east coast ports will be started Dec. 28 by Isbrandtsen Lines following rejection by the Interstate Commerce Commission of protests by competing companies.

The ICC issued a permit in mid-September for the west-to-east service by Isbrandtsen, which operates through Berth 50, Port of Long Beach. The service was to have started Dec. 2. The competing firms petitioned for ICC reconsideration, however.

Isbrandtsen operates round-the-world service, with all sailings moving eastward. Under its old permit, it called at west coast and east coast ports on its way to the Mediterranean and the Orient, but was not permitted to carry cargo between the U. S. ports.

Its new service will provide cargo space and passenger accommodations. The permit carries the restriction that for most of the ports involved, Isbrandtsen can provide the intercoastal service only from Aug. 1 to the end of February each year.

However, the line was authorized to provide fortnightly service throughout the year at the ports of Richmond and Port Hueneme, Calif., and New Haven, Conn. The ICC said these cities do not now have any regular service by other companies.

The new permit thus will authorize Isbrandtsen Lines to carry passengers and cargo from Long Beach to the east coast during the months of August through February.

SOUTHLAND'S MOVIE PREVIEW

'Easy to Love'

Water skiing, the most exciting and fastest growing outdoor sport in the world, is ably demonstrated by movie mermaid Esther Williams in a new M-G-M Technicolor musical, "Easy to Love." And when she isn't tearing over water at speeds up to 45 miles an hour, or taking jumps over 12-foot-high ramps, or by allowing a helicopter to tow her over a ramp, up and on to a height of 60 feet where she drops her skis and dives into a formation of 100 skiers—all in a lush setting highly adaptable to Technicolor—she's making the rounds of New York's lush night spots, or making love to three handsome guys.

While in New York, Julia meets Barry (Tony Martin), night club singer. They romance for several days and he follows her back to Florida where he proposes. Julia keeps him dangling while, in the near offing, Ray is biting his nails.

Pursued by three angry young men, Julia goes on with the water show, though deciding to quit when contract is up.

Julia is accidentally knocked out at show's end. Hank and Barry run to help, start a fight over her while Ray...

Well, he holds out his arms and Julia is happy. He asks that big question she's been wanting to hear all along.

A Search for

—O'Neal's Portrait Salon

Will the Long Beach district produce a star of ballet? Jose Martinez, above with a supple partner, hopes so.

By Vera Williams

BALLET'S STARS are fading, and the search is on to find new ones to take their places.

Through the pulsing streets of the great cities, the hamlets and villages of the countryside the hunt takes its way. From Broadway to Long Beach, from Lilypons, Md. to Houston, Texas, no city is so vast, no crossroads town so small that it may not be sheltering the budding talents of another Danilova, Markova or Fokine.

Maybe it will be Long Beach that will give the world a prima ballerina or a premier danseur tomorrow.

Anyway, that is what is in the back of Jose Martinez' mind.

Jose Martinez is a black-haired young man who stands straight as a soldier and walks with the lithe grace of a cat. His white teeth flash often in an engaging smile, but there is a hint of sadness in his black eyes when he speaks of the career that ended on the threshold of fame. For Jose might have been one of the world's great ballet stars.

He was born in a little Mexican village, one of five children. Folk dancing was a tradition in the village, and his mother, Inez Martinez, excelled in the art. She was a fine character dancer, and Jose's father, also named Jose, sang the melodies of his people on festive occasions.

"FROM THE VERY FIRST I loved to dance," says Jose (the younger), "but I didn't like performing for every Tom, Dick and Harry who came to the house for a bottle of tequila."

The family moved to Houston, Texas, where Jose continued to study dancing "I was going to set the world on fire," he says.

An uncle took him to a performance of the Ballet Russe and the die was cast. Nothing could have kept him from dancing—nothing, that is, except the thing that did it, at last.

At the age of 19, after finish-

His own ballet career halted by injury, Jose Martinez has turned to teaching, has organized a school here.

POISON

Millions of people are slowly killing themselves as a result of intestinal neglect. Medical scientists have searched for years for a method of eliminating this cause of disease and death.

CONSTIPATION

Nearly every case of constipation can be cured. Pills and strong harsh laxatives are often as injurious as the disease itself.

FERMENTATION

Gas, indigestion, heartburn, headaches, rheumatism, pain, laziness, any or all of these conditions could be caused by poor elimination.

COLOTONE

Colotone may be the answer. Colotone is an oil base preparation used as an intestinal implant to help dissolve and clean out all poisonous waste matter that may exist in the intestinal tract.

SOLUTION

Either see your physician or come in and have COLOTONE explained to you. Why keep on suffering? On Friday, Dec. 18, between 10 a. m. and 7 p. m. we will give five (5) COLOTONE X-Ray Fluoroscopic Examinations without charge. Phone for your appointment NOW. ## Super Sabre Flies

More Than 900 mph.

WASHINGTON—(AP) An Air Force combat plane—the F-100 Super Sabre jet fighter—has flown faster than 900 miles an hour, it was disclosed Saturday.

It also was learned that the Air Force hopes shortly to fly its X-1A rocket-powered research plane faster than twice the speed of sound. If achieved, this would surpass the 1327-mile-an-hour record set last month by Scott Crossfield, a National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics pilot, in the Navy's Skyrocket research plane.

This gargantuan effort in a city normally noted for bulky Sunday editions set records for the Times, News and Mirror.

The Journal American said its 160-page edition was one of the largest, if not the largest, it had ever published.

The 380-page Herald Tribune also was one of the biggest ever.

This was in striking contrast to last Sunday, when only the Herald Tribune published and that newspaper contained only eight pages with no advertising.

Even as the presses creaked under their Herculean load, a fact-finding board studied the terms which brought an armistice in the strike of AFL photo-engravers.

KNOCKED DOWN

Policeman Only Scramble Victim

Only casualty so far in the "scramble" traffic system here is Patrolman George W. Workman, 29, who was knocked down Saturday by a car at the intersection of Pine Ave. and Third St. His injuries were not serious.

Driver of the car, Catherine A. Kellogg, 35, of 125 W. Market St., apparently misjudged the distance between her car and the officer and the right fenders struck him as she drove across Third St.

Workman was knocked to his hands and knees, but only suffered minor bruises and soiled his uniform.

2 Miles of Ramona Freeway to Be Opened

LOS ANGELES — (AP) San Gabriel Valley residents will receive a Christmas present in the form of an additional two miles of the Ramona freeway, the State Division of Highways disclosed Saturday.

A section of the freeway between Garfield Ave. and San Gabriel Blvd. will be opened Dec. 28. An additional stretch of one and one-half miles, from San Gabriel Blvd. to Rosemead Blvd., will be opened sometime after Jan. 15, the division announced.

NOTE CASUAL WALK of girls midway across intersection. "WALK" signal time has been increased from 8 to 10 seconds. Even after "DON'T WALK" signals flash on, pedestrians have 11 or 12 seconds to continue crossing street.

SAFE ON "HOME BASE," girl pedestrians continue nonchalantly on their way. Main thing to remember is that when "DON'T WALK" sign flashes on it's a signal for pedestrians who have not started across to stay put. Others may continue walking.

Shopper Rush On, Building Pace Persists

Long Beach and Lakewood stores were thronged Saturday with record crowds as the Christmas shopping reached high gear. Stores reported good sales from their well stocked gift departments.

But those retail sales are just one part of the Long Beach-Lakewood business picture.

Real estate sales, which soared in 1952 to a record, are running 26 per cent ahead so far this year.

Construction is continuing at a fast pace. Richfield announces a new $600,000 office for Long Beach. Another firm announces it will start shortly on a $4,000,000 factory here and has broken ground on a $500,000 expansion near Anaheim. A soda pop canery is building a $1,250,000 factory near here.

And Long Beach business, as reflected by the flow of money through banks, is pacing the entire West, reports the Federal Reserve Bank. Bank debits for this city are far above any others.

Stories of the growth and expansion of local business and industry will be found today in the realty and business section, Page C-6 through C-9.

A Little Boy With Big Problem

RAY LA RUE AND WAIME ... "I Don't Want Much"

By JAMES PHELAN

Out at 3304 Myrtle Ave. the other day, a little boy who may see only one more Christmas wrote a letter to Santa.

"Dear Santa Clause," wrote 10-year-old Ray LaRue. "My brothers and sisters and I have been very good. I would love you very much if you would bring just a few things to my sisters and brothers."

"I don't want much, just some little old things." "But my sister that's 6 and my sister that's 4 (Waime) wants a doll and my brother that's 7 wants a train and my brother that's 2 wants some cars."

"I have been very sick in the hospital so my mommy and daddy hasn't much money left after paying the bills. I understand but the little children don't. So would you please try?"

"You see, Santa, I have ..."

RAY LA RUE, 10, looked up from his letter and called to his mother in the other room. "Mother," he asked, "how do you spell what I got?"

His pretty, dark-haired mother choked down a terrible lump in her throat.

"They found out what Ray had back in March. They put him in Children's Hospital for two months. Then they drove him up four days a week for a long time."

"The bills ran several thousand dollars. On top of all this, several of the other children needed shots for asthma, and Mrs. LaRue recently underwent surgery. Her husband is a tire repairman."

"WE HAVEN'T TALKED to the children about Christmas," said Mrs. LaRue. "We don't know how on earth we can afford anything for them. Ray is getting worse, and he may be back in the hospital at Christmas. Ray knows what he has, but he doesn't know what it means."

But Ray LaRue, 10, was worried about what kind of Christmas his four young brothers and sisters would have, so he wrote his letter to Santa. And when he hit a hard word, his mother helped him spell it.

"It starts with an 'L', Ray," she told him through that terrible lump in her throat. "It's l-o-u-k-e-m-a."

HEADLINE HISTORY

Hannibal Blitzkrieg Smacks Down Romans

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

FRANKFORT, Germany—(AP) Italy falls to Hannibal! 70,000 Romans killed!"

These are headlines on a new German periodical which is selling fast here. It's part of publisher Alfred Wilhelm's idea to teach history in a fresh way—with a punch.

Wilhelm's publication, "news- paper for World History," describes major historical events in the same style as metropolitan daily reports last minute news. He uses headlines to catch the reader's interest, pictures and maps to liven up front page makeup. There are even editorial comments.

Wilhelm, who plans to issue his "newspaper" four times a year, already has a circulation of 20,000. His main objective is to win entire school classes as regular subscribers. While some German educational authorities recommended the project, Wilhelm says he still faces much red tape before he can get wholesale support from the schools.

A recent edition described in "front line" dispatches the Battle of Cannae where the Romans suffered a decisive defeat from Hannibal's elephant armies. An editorial commented on the dark military and political outlook for the Roman empire. A late news bulletin from France inserted in the editorial column told of a "threatening new Canine in Gallia."

Price of the newspaper is seven cents—just a little more than the usual German daily.

Bustling, dark-haired Wilhelm, at 41, is his own business manager, editor and reporter. He spends days digging through archives and libraries before writing his stories.

Wilhelm hopes German advertisers soon will be taking the plunge in his newspaper.

"Firms have a wonderful opportunity for interesting ads," he says. "They can advertise sports boats beside Roman warships and razor blades beside a picture of a bearded Greek politician. Old firms, founded at the time of Bismarck, can even use their original maps."

Wilhelm said he got the idea of teaching history like modern news because "history lessons in schools are too dry."

"Interest must be stirred by adding color to historical facts," he explains. History must be as

N.Y. Flooded by 'Tide' of Newspapers

NEW YORK—(AP) A flood-tide of printed news, unique, probably in all newspaper publishing history, rolled down on New York Saturday night.

In the first regular publication of Sunday newspapers after an 11-day strike had almost completely halted the city's presses, five Manhattan papers got out editions totaling 1698 pages.

This gargantuan effort in a city normally noted for bulky Sunday editions set records for the Times, News and Mirror.

The Journal American said its 160-page edition was one of the largest, if not the largest, it had ever published.

The 380-page Herald Tribune also was one of the biggest ever.

This was in striking contrast to last Sunday, when only the Herald Tribune published and that newspaper contained only eight pages with no advertising.

Even as the presses creaked under their Herculean load, a fact-finding board studied the terms which brought an armistice in the strike of AFL photo-engravers.

ing the Houston High School, Jose went to New York where he enrolled in the American Ballet School. In the second year he won a half-time scholarship. The third year he won a full-time scholarship.

Impatient for success, he ran away and auditioned for a modern dance sequence in Max Reinhardt's "The Eternal Road."

"I got the job, and then I went back, proud and happy, to tell the principal of the school. I expected to be praised, but instead I got a terrific bawling out and was almost put out of the school."

HIS THEATRICAL DEBUT was deferred only one year, however. In his fourth year he was permitted to audition for musical comedy.

"My first dancing part was in a show called 'Great Lady,'" says Jose. "The curious thing was that 'Great Lady' was intended to be a comeback vehicle for a lot of former stars—Norma Terris, Tullio Carminati, Irene Bordoni — and all their names were in lights. In the chorus with me, however, were Alicia Alonso, Nora Kaye, Jerome Robbins, Yvonne Patterson. The old-time stars failed to get back on top, but the kids in that chorus turned out to be the new dancing stars."

That summer he went home to Houston and did a dance turn at the nearby night clubs and then returned to New York to join the American Ballet School Company and to perform at the Metropolitan Opera House. This company, first to be organized by the school, was known as "Caravan."

The Caravan company organized a South American tour and gave Jose a chance to try his hand at choreography. He went to Mexico to watch the folk dancers again. Memories of his graceful mother were conjured up afresh as he studied the movements of the dancers.

Research completed, he returned to New York and gave the company's repertoire "Pastorela," a spectacle based on the folk dances of old Mexico. "Pastorela" received its premiere on a program at Hunter College and then it was taken on a Southe American tour.

HIS STAR was ascending, but then it fell. In a warm-up period of the play, Jose attempted to execute double turns and kneel on one knee, all in one motion. As he went down on his knee, he felt it click.

Football players know that injury. It does not bother for months, then suddenly the leg gives way.

"It is painful for a dancer to sit and watch others dance. Your hands sweat; you want to dance, too."

The injury changed Jose from a dancer to a teacher. He headed the Department of Dance at Rockland Foundation, Nyak, N. Y., and he taught dancing at the High School of Performing Arts in New York.

He is in Long Beach now with his parents, Jose and Inez, at 105 W. Coolidge St. He has opened a School of Ballet at 747 American Ave. What he especially hopes to do is to take teen-agers or youngsters even a little younger and make them apprentices of ballet. There is no short cut, he thinks, and they might as well learn right from a strict choreographer. Someday perhaps—who knows?—a really great dancer may be found here.

50 YEARS OF AVIATION

How City Won Its Wings

By DON BRACKENBURY

Fifty phenomenal years of aviation will be celebrated next Thursday throughout the nation. On Dec. 17, 1903, above the wind-swept sands of Kill Devil Hill south of Kitty Hawk, N. C., Orville and Wilbur Wright made man's first flight in a machine operating under its own power.

For more than 40 of those 50 years, the City of Long Beach has played a leading role in the drama of flight, winning its wings in aviation history.

In January, 1910, the nation's first aviation meet was held at Dominguez Junction and many Long Beach residents were among the 15,000 who attended. Newspapers of the day record the fact that one local resident, Clark M. Emery, took a ride in one of the aircraft.

Two Long Beach men, Bernard Birnie and Charlie Day, got the flying bug and began building their own planes. To Birnie, on May 30, 1910, went the honor of making the maiden flight of the first airplane to be built in Long Beach. He took off from flats northwest of the city and landed safely after a short flight.

The biggest impetus to early-day flying here came Dec. 10, 1911, when a cigar-smoking pilot named Calbraith Perry Rodgers landed his Wright B-X biplane on the beach in roughly the area where Municipal Auditorium now stands to complete the first transcontinental flight.

Today, commercial air lines fly from New York to Southern California in seven hours. It took Rodgers three days, 10 hours and 44 minutes of actual flying time. But because of almost innumerable delays and accidents, the time from takeoff at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., until landing on the beach between Pine and American Aves. was nearly three months.

The Long Beach Press reported that a "frantic multitude of 5,000" greeted the 32-year-old pilot as he completed the flight "by a graceful dip of his biplane rudder in the surf of the Pacific."

Three Long Beach flies met Rodgers as he flew his plane over the city. One was Frank Champion, piloting his own aircraft. Berwi Williams, 19, who then was the "youngest pilot in the world," according to the Press, flew another plane with Earl Daugherty as his passenger.

Champion had received his license early in 1911. Champion flew from Dominguez to Long Beach and dropped a message from Earl Daugherty to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Daugherty. It read:

"Dear Father and Mother: I made my first successful 15-minute flight in the Curtiss biplane. Will send this by Frank Champion in his Bleriot. Your son, Earl."

The day before Christmas of BETTY JEAN BAIZE, Miss Aviation in today's Wings Over the Nation program at Municipal Airport visits on the beach the Junior Chamber of Commerce monument to Calbraith Perry Rodgers, who completed the first transcontinental flight here in 1911. Betty Jean is a mail clerk at Douglas Aircraft.

1911, the second annual national aviation meet was opened at Dominguez Junction and Dec. 8 was designated Long Beach Day. An estimated 6,000 local residents attended and a Los Angeles newspaper, in reporting the event, commented:

"Earl S. Daugherty and Frank Champion, two Long Beach boys who learned to fly here, are among the number who rank high in aviation circles, although they have been in the flying game only a few months."

Daugherty, after whom Long Beach Municipal Airport was named, grew even more famous. He and Champion built a monoplane in the basement of the old Virginia Hotel—which served as a hangar for the construction of several airplanes in succeeding months—and he won a $10,000 prize the following April for a 15-minute flight in Chicago.

Throughout 1913 to 1915, the beach in front of the Earl Apartments, owned by the Daugherty family, was used for a landing field.

First local school of aviation was started by Daugherty in May, 1919, and records show 1,785 passengers carried the first year. It was located at Willow St. and American Ave., Long Beach's first real airport.

In 1924 work was started on what is now Municipal Airport. Eighty acres of city-owned water land were set aside for the field, and the city's first aviation commission was formed. Members were Al Ebrite, J. J. Montijo and Daugherty.

The Navy established a reserve aviation base at the airport in 1928 and the Army followed suit in 1929. The Navy subsequently moved to Los Alamitos Naval Air Station, but the army installation now has become the Air Force Reserve base here.

Today, the Municipal Airport has five runways—the longest being 6,900 feet—and includes 755 acres within the field itself. The city has a lease to purchase 245 acres to the southwest and is engaged in a condemnation action on more than 300 acres east of the field to protect runway approaches.

Two transcontinental air lines—United Air Lines and Western Air Lines—fly from the local field, as does Pacific Southwest Airlines, which operates in California only, and Avalon Air Transport, which flies between Long Beach and Catalina Island.

The field is the site of the Long Beach plant of Douglas Aircraft Co. and the home of several hundred small, private planes. Plans, approved by the voters, call for expenditure of tideland oil money to develop a major air freight terminal here.

Jaycee 'Wings' Fete at Airport Today

Jet fighters, tiny private planes, the giant Douglas C-124 Globemaster—these and a score of other aircraft will be on display today at Municipal Airport in the 15th annual Wings Over the Nation air show.

The event, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is free. Free parking is available in the lot east of the airport administration building.

The air show, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., will be the concluding event in the three-day Wings fete, which honors air transportation and which this year also notes the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

Eleven air line stewardesses—one from as far away as the Philippines and another from Alaska—will be guests of honor at the air show.

This morning they will attend the Southern California Aviation Breakfast Club meeting at 10:30 a. m. in the Hotel Lafayette. They then will visit the air show at the airport.

Douglas Aircraft Co. is providing the C-124 from its Long Beach plant for display, while United Air Lines will exhibit a Mainliner Stratocruiser and Western Air Lines will have a DC-4 air liner.

Among Air Force planes on display will be an F-84 jet fighter, a cut away model of a B-29 Superfortress and a KC-97 "tanker" and their friends are invited.

which refuels other aircraft in flight.

The Navy is flying a McDonnell F2H Banshee jet fighter, a Vought F4U Corsair fighter and a Lockheed Neptune anti-sub bomber from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station. El Toro Marine Corps Air Station will exhibit an F9F and F2H4 jet fighter and an F3D two-place jet fighter.

Small private craft will be shown by Air-Oasis Co., local distributors of Cessna Aircraft, and by Baker Aircraft Sales, local distributors of Piper Aircraft.

The Civil Air Patrol will put on an air-sea rescue drill and its drill team and 20 aircraft will perform. There will be a guided missile exhibit from the Navy's base at Point Mugu and an air freight display by Comet Serving Flying Tiger Line.

Nurses Plan Party Long Beach Catholic Nurses unit will hold its first Christmas party at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, in the staff room of St. Mary's Hospital. All Catholic nurses peritress and a KC-97 "tanker" and their friends are invited.

BELLS . . . BELLS . . . BELLS

Mary's Yule Hat Grows

By VERA WILLIAMS

The jingling and tinkling of the bells . . . bells . . . bells is beginning at Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mary Seales is fixing her hat.

You don't know Mary Seales and her Christmas hat?

Then you've never been a patient in the Veterans Hospital or helped at a Christmas entertainment there.

In the seven years that Mary has been recreation director, she and her hats have become a tradition.

She wears Christmas hats, New Year hats, Valentine hats, Easter hats, May Day hats, Fourth of July hats, Thanksgiving hats. But the climax is Christmas.

It begins early in December. Mary starts out with a red frosted Christmas wreath hung with a few baubles. Every day she adds something, or some days she adds quite a few things, given her by patients, coworkers or volunteers.

She hangs the wreath with bells and Christmas balls. In about a week she adds a length of tulle and hangs things on that; then Christmas ribbons . . .

Topping the hat is a giant poinsettia, which pinch-hits as part of the recreation room decorations at the annual Independent—Press-Telegram Christmas party for the patients.

Toys, such as horns and small cars augment the Christmas decorations, and by the time the big day has arrived the crown is high, the tulle is hung with decorations to the floor and Mary is carrying her head a little cock-eyed trying to make the thing balance.

In addition to the hat, she wears sleigh bells on her belt, and she tinkles with rhythm bells on her wrists and—shhh! her knees.

Long-time patients in the hospital look forward to the fun of helping Mary build her hat and they educate the new patients.

"The only ones who are really surprised are the visitors," says Mary philosophically. "Visitors usually gasp and think I'm crazy."

Mary wears a little New Year on New Year's Day; she wears a May basket on May Day; her Fourth of July hat is made up of firecrackers and skyrockets, and she wears a turkey hat on Thanksgiving.

On St. Valentine's Day she wears hearts and a sign that says "I love you."

And most patients say, or think, "We love you, too."

CHRISTMAS HAT of Mary Seales, recreation director at VA Hospital, begins as a wreath hung with a few baubles. She adds a twist of filmy cloth.—(Staff photos.)

WHEN THE LAST of the decorations is attached, Mary will look something like this, or maybe more so.

Schroeder was appointed by the board of directors as first step in a complete reorganization of the order. His new club manager will be James McGraw, also secretary of the Moose chapter. First social activity planned by Schroeder will be a Christmas party Dec. 22, when 300 children will be entertained and presented gifts. A New Year's Eve dance is also planned.

A complete new program for the lodge will be unwrapped in 1934, Schroeder said, the details to be completed by a special civic affairs committee. Attorney Harry Albert, lodge past governor, heads the committee composed of himself, Joseph Kennick and Lennon.

COMMON KNOWLEDGE

From this day forward; Definitions of our Knowledge will be spelled out and explained in full details. The advantages and disadvantages of knowing and not knowing, are Good and Bad Counsels of human Knowledge on the minds and lives, of Ourselves, Community, Country and the World we live in.

Good Positive Counsel is made up of words, that represent Good Knowledge; When we understand them and their meanings thoroughly and put them into practice, it will help clarify our minds and the minds of others by showing us what peace of mind, happiness and other help that we derive from understanding Good Knowledge.

When we do not understand any part of our Good Knowledge, We are lost and our minds are confused, and our contacts with others are bad and misunderstood. We cannot live a good Normal, Happy co-operative Life. To understand some of our good Knowledge helps; But remember the more that we understand and put into practice, the better lives and appreciation of Life, everyone will have.

Good Positive Counsel

Bad Negative Counsel is made up of words, that represent Bad Knowledge that must be understood completely and thoroughly in advance. Their power of destruction confusion and enslavement of the human mind. Bad Knowledge is to be understood and by all means not put into practice.

We must be shown in advance the meaning. When we take a life, that is something that we cannot give back. Once this Act is committed by a human, the mind is enslaved by this Act. If a secret, it is continuously guarded and must be guarded for the rest of your life. Keeping your mind and life in the state of fear and confusion, and if not a secret, you may convince Judge, Jury and Friends, but the one person you will not convince is yourself. By showing you the disadvantages in committing these Acts, that harm Health, Happiness, Home, Property and peace of mind of others. These Acts are on your mind, you must carry the unnecessary load and burden that will lead to destruction of your own Life, Happiness and peace of mind.

Bad Negative Counsel

Ancient Custom in a New Land

By Isabel J. Young

IT'S A LONG WAY from Moravia to Long Beach, but luckily one of that region's choicest holiday traditions has been carried on here for years by some of its descendants. Many generations ago, the Moravians made the long difficult journey to America, in their search for religious freedom. They brought with them their Yuletide custom of setting up a "Putz," an elaborate Christmas scene, with groups of figures—all centering around the manger of the Christ Child.

The Arthur F. Bonzer family of 3715 Gardenia Ave., are descendants of Moravians who came to the New World to escape persecution. One of Mrs. Bonzer's ancestors was a bishop who settled near Bethlehem, Pa. Although opposed to war, he served as an aide to General Washington. After the Revolution, the bishop moved with his followers to the Niagara Peninsula in Canada. Mrs. Bonzer's mother married an American and raised her family in the middlewest.

Since this couple had similar backgrounds, it was natural for them after their marriage, to continue the Old World custom of preparing the "Putz" for Christmas. At first they used just a few simple, hand-carved figures of the Holy Family and the Shepherds; but as years passed, added many other replicas to their collection. Each Christmas in their home before a background, showing the Judean Hills, Herod's Castle and the Inn, groups of figures are arranged. Many small stones, bits of moss, and foliage give the scene a life-like appearance.

At the center in the lighted cave-like stable, in the side of the hill, Mary and Joseph are kneeling with bowed heads at the manger. This contains a tiny figure of the Baby Jesus, wrapped in real swaddling clothes. Also near the crib are some sheep, while an ox keeps watch in the background.

OUTSIDE THE STABLE, at the left, are several sheep with their shepherds, one of whom carries a small lamb, while a dog brings up the rear of the procession. At the other side of the "Putz," Three Kings, dressed in rich robes, are taking their gifts to the Christ Child. Their servants are attending to the camels and nearby is a genuine camel bell.

In front of the Inn is a group of travelers who, like Mary and Joseph, could find no room there. They are busy around an improvised fire, preparing a meal. At the other side of the scene, sheep are waiting for water at the well; above the stable, there are some angels; and a large star shines down. The entire "Putz" is floodlighted from below, revealing a picture not soon forgotten.

This scene forms a fitting background when Mrs. Bonzer reads the incomparable Christmas story from St. Luke or some of her favorite descriptions from Dickens or "Ben Hur." Their family of six children always celebrated around the "Putz" and now that all of them have married, they bring the grandchildren to the Bonzer home to enjoy the same fascinating scenes they loved in their childhood.

Demo Dilemma

STATE ATTY. GEN. Edmund G. Brown's decision not to run for governor of California is an illustration of the low ebb to which the fortunes of the Democratic party fell in this state during the years of Republican Earl Warren's leadership.

Brown is the only Democrat in a major state elective office, and the most prominent member of the party in the state. But apparently Brown and other top Democrats doubt that even he has what it would take to defeat Republican Gov. Goodwin Knight.

The Democrats are handicapped not only by a lack of front-line leadership, but also by the fact that Knight, besides inheriting an excellent political environment, is tremendously popular in his own right.

Sen. George Miller Jr., state Democratic chairman, comments: "There will be a Democratic candidate in there fighting, and he will be a good, representative person." This statement, which falls somewhat short of optimism or even confidence, reflects the dearth of gubernatorial timber in the Democratic demesne.

One explanation for this shortage lies in the confidence which Warren built in this state for Republican leadership. Except for Brown, no Democrats have been getting elected to high state offices. So the party has been unable to build a portfolio of potential candidates who have been prominent on the political scene.

So in approaching the 1954 campaign the Democrats have been faced with a dilemma.

Atty. Gen. Brown's term is expiring. He has a much better chance of getting re-elected to that post than he has of getting elected governor. So, if the Democrats should run their best man—Brown—for governor, it could mean not only that the governorship would be retained by the Republicans but that the attorney-generalship would be lost by the Democrats.

If the Democrats reason that they may have a better chance of getting the governorship in 1958, they are again gambling—for Knight very well may be much stronger four years hence than he is today.

What it all boils down to is that the Republicans have a highly popular and eminently well-qualified candidate for governor, and the Democratic organization has nobody in sight to match him.

Right now many political observers are expressing the opinion that Knight can win the governorship in the 1954 primary, sweeping both Republican and Democratic nominations.

It is hazardous to predict elections under any circumstances. But the Democrats will have to come forward with a pretty big surprise to make their chances in the 1954 gubernatorial race worth a serious bet.

Life . . . Not Death

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER has made two great speeches since he became President of the United States. The first was delivered to the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last April. The other is his recent "toward life—not death" address before the General Assembly of the United Nations.

The President's message last spring was an answer to the critics who charged that the new administration had been drifting in the field of foreign policy. It outlined a 10-point program, including progressive world reductions in armaments, which would serve as a basis for world peace and to which all nations could subscribe without impairment of their national interests.

As I said at the time, "it was a moving, momentous pronouncement of faith," simply expressed in these words: "We are ready to dedicate our strength to serving the needs, rather than the fears, of the world."

The President's speech in April stated U. S. policy in such unmistakable terms that it could not be distorted in any future war of words. It threatened no one and opened the way for the new leaders of the Soviet Union to put some flesh on the bones of their professed desire for a peaceful world.

Essentially, it told the world that Russia, and not the United States, was blocking the road to peace.

Eisenhower's message to the United Nations can be considered as an extension of what he said to the nation's editors last April. This time, the President was more specific in his recommendations.

After warning the world of the grave dangers inherent in a race for supremacy in atomic arms, Eisenhower proposed study of a plan that would progressively diminish the potential destructive power of the world's atomic stockpile, and encourage the most effective peacetime uses of fissionable material.

Here again, as in April last, the President was informing the world that the United States is sincere in its quest for peace; that we are prepared to share fully in "finding the way by which the miraculous inventions of man shall not be dedicated to his death, but consecrated to his life."

Eisenhower's speech received the world attention which it deserved.

William McGuffin, our U. N. correspondent, reports that "President Eisenhower has breathed new life into the atomic energy control effort and into the United Nations itself."

"No speech," says McGuffin, "of the countless speeches delivered before the U. N. has ever had the smashing impact that Eisenhower's few carefully chosen words had on his audience."

Eisenhower's address, coming at the conclusion of the Bernuda conference was a soundly calculated move to shatter the misconception prevailing in some European and Asian quarters that the United States is hell bent for war.

The President simply stated the facts in a calm, reasoned and convincing manner. Of his sincerity, there can be no doubt in the minds of free men everywhere, and the cessation of an arms race whose reward is death and destruction, President Eisenhower has outlined a workable method by which these ends can be achieved.

If, on the other hand, Russia and the countries dominated by her, rebuff this latest attempt to save the world from a catastrophic fate, she must thereafter carry the brand of an outlaw nation.

WHY NOT ACT BEFORE IT HAPPENS?

DAVID LAWRENCE

Ike Brings World Peace Nearer

WASHINGTON—World peace is nearer as a consequence of President Eisenhower's speech before the United Nations Assembly—and the best confirmation comes from Moscow itself.

For, while the Soviet comment on the surface is negative for the moment and does not analyze the proposals to pool atomic-energy knowledge for peaceful uses, the most important fact that President Eisenhower conveyed to the rulers of the Soviet Union evidently hit its mark. Moscow's comments indicate that they got the point—that, if there is an aggression, the retaliation with atomic bombs will be made with all the quantitative force of atomic weapons the United States can instantly mobilize.

The Moscow radio made this significant comment initially: "Eisenhower threatened atomic war and made a eulogy of this policy of force."

The Soviet commentator stated a half-truth—for Mr. Eisenhower did threaten an atomic war of retaliation, but only as against a "surprise-aggression." It is important to note what passage attracted the attention of the Soviet government. It was this paragraph in the President's address: "Should such an atomic attack be launched against the United States, our reactions would be swift and resolute. But for me to say that the defense capabilities of the United States are such that they could inflict terrible losses upon an aggressor—for me to say that the retaliation capabilities of the United States are so great that such an aggressor's land would be laid waste—all this, while fact, is not the true expression of the purpose and the hope of the United States."

These carefully chosen words struck home. For the Kremlin understands the language of force. Now it has had from the lips of the President of the United States the most solemn warning uttered by one government to another since the close of World War II. The warning told Soviet Russia it could eliminate any thought that the United States would vacillate in its action in defense of its territory. With the warning also went this sharply worded sentence to the rulers of Soviet Russia which the people of that country can also understand:

SHOCK TO RUSS?
"Surely no sane member of the human race could discover victory in such desolation."

It may well be that the President's words came as a shock to the Soviet government which may have been led to believe heretofore that an America terrorized by the recent news about the destruction of the H-bomb would be too scared to announce a policy of fierce retaliation. Now that the Soviets have the American answer—announced by the man who headed up our military forces in Europe in World War II—the problem of what can be done to control the uses of atomic energy for both peace and war becomes more pertinent than ever to both sides.

The Soviet government, upon reflection, will unquestionably perceive that it cannot convert Mr. Eisenhower's words into a threat of an attack when they really were uttered as a threat of retaliation only in the event of attack by an aggressor. So far as world opinion is concerned, the Soviet Union will find it necessary in a matter of days to deal sympathetically with the American proposal for a pooling of atomic-energy knowledge for peaceful purposes.

No matter how much Moscow may quibble and argue, the Soviet government will be compelled in the court of public opinion to make at least a gesture by giving consideration to the Eisenhower plan. Sometimes in diplomacy a government accepts the principle first and then later debates at length the application of the principle. The Communists are so sensitive to propaganda currents in the world today to lose a chance to show that they, too, want atomic energy for both peace and war placed under international control.

Mr. Eisenhower has shown them the road, and undoubtedly the Communists will take it—but in their own way, slowly and with plenty of protests and criticism. The President of the United States has moved the world closer to peace. For what he said had to be said—and from now on the debate may well be academic as the "cold war" drags on and the idea of a "hot war" fades into the distance in the years immediately ahead. The American rearmament build-up since 1950 has proved its great value this week.

McCarthy Aiming for White House?

WASHINGTON—Despite disclaimers to the contrary, there's no question but that the bumptious, harum-scarum gentleman from Wisconsin has his eye on the White House.

All you have to do is talk to the little band of fanatics around McCarthy to get the true picture. They say Joe may not make it next time around, but the political atmosphere may not be just right. The Democrats may be too strong by 1956.

"But our boy," they say, "is young—only 44. In 1956 he'll be only 47. He's got plenty of time. Our year may be 1960, at which time Joe will be 51 years old and just right to run."

What the McCarthyites are figuring on is that Eisenhower will not run for a second term, that the Democrats will stage a comeback in 1956. But they also figure the Democratic comeback will be like Grover Cleveland's and on a one-term basis.

By that time the McCarthyites figure the Republican party, now seriously split over McCarthyism, will be only too glad to look to him as the man who can really win.

It may sound far-fetched, but there's no question that the avid idolaters around "the man" are so planning. And, Joe himself isn't discouraging them a bit.

STOP RUSS STUDY
The founding fathers may have decreed that this nation was to be governed by a system of checks and balances with the executive independent of the Congress, but certain powerful Republican Senators just don't want it that way. Specifically, Sens. Knowland of California, Bridges of New Hampshire and McCarthy of Wisconsin have worked out a neat little scheme whereby their men are planted inside federal bureaus and appear to be working for the Senators more than for Eisenhower.

It amounts to "government by Senate assistants." Bridges has his ex-assistant, Scott McLeod, inside the State Department. McCarthy has two men inside the Federal Communications Commission. Knowland has his ex-assistant, J. C. George Wilson, in charge of personnel inside the State Department.

Wilson's latest brilliant move was to abolish the State Department's foreign service institute for the training of diplomats and Army-Navy officers for taking especially difficult assignments abroad—such as Soviet Russia.

"All this is a bucket of baloney," opined Knowland's ex-assistant, as he abolished the institute.

Actually, the institute was established by Congress and can't be abolished without an act of Congress. However, Wilson abolished it anyway—simply by cutting off its funds.

Instead, the Army, Navy and State Department now send personnel to the Georgetown foreign service school, where the cost of taking training courses is greater. NOTE—The Soviets operate a foreign service school at which about 100 young diplomats take a course in American affairs and the English language for future service in the U. S. A. The course lasts three years. The FBI which Wilson abolished was only a six-months course, with about a dozen studying Russian. That was all the budget permitted.

It's Time to Consider Vote Issues

VOTER preoccupation with holiday affairs will probably postpone intensive consideration of the issues to be on the Jan. 21 special election ballot until three weeks before the election. But it is certainly time for people to give some preliminary thought to the matters coming up for decision.

There will be seven proposals on the ballot, but three of them will claim the major share of attention in pre-election discussions. The four others are less likely to provoke controversy.

The potentially controversial measures are concerned with the release of Tidelands Oil Funds money for certain purposes. The Tidelands Oil Fund is made up of one-half of the city's revenue from the Richfield Oil lease (Palm Beach Park) and there will probably be about $13,000,000 in the fund at election time.

Prop. 2 on the January ballot is a charter amendment providing for use of money from this fund for oil development on the tidal and submerged lands and for maintenance and operation of improvements on the tidelands and maintenance of the tidelands themselves.

It's unfortunate the two issues involved here couldn't have been presented in separate measures, but the city attorney held this technically inadvisable because both amendments would apply to the same charter section.

THE OIL PHASE
The oil phase of the amendment would give the city funds to be used in exploitation of the vast municipally-owned reserves believed to lie in front of the city to the east of the harbor area. Qualified consultants are now working toward recommendations for this program.

Second phase of the amendment would permit the city to spend Tidelands Oil Fund money for operating and maintenance expenses now paid out of general city funds. Major intent is to provide for future operation expenses of projects financed from the Tidelands Oil Fund, such as the Marina, but the oil money could also be used for such expenses as beach cleaning, auditorium operation, lifeguards, etc. Using tidelands funds for such purposes would release a proportionate amount of general city funds for other purposes.

Another measure about which there is already considerable discussion would authorize use of $1,600,000 for 11 small bathhouses and one large one at beach and lagoon sites. Purpose here is to extend beach facilities, along lines found effective elsewhere, with the expectation there will be steady increase in the use and popularity of our beaches. A major objective is to provide proper places for beach visitors to change apparel.

Long Beach has money to spend for such recreational uses on the tidelands. Some have objected that the plans are not specific enough, and some contend a test should be made with a few bathhouses before a large authorization is given. But city officials say there should be an authorization before money is spent on detailed planning. It is further contended that this program carries out the implied pledge that Long Beach would spend part of its tidelands money for region-wide benefits.

A third measure about which there is some pro and con discussion is Prop. A, which would authorize use of $1,575,000 of Tidelands Oil Fund money to supplement a previous $2,750,000 authorization for the Municipal Auditorium annex. The people have already approved the annex, but the authorized fund was insufficient.

A point of possible dispute is the location, some feeling that subsidence hazards make further development in the auditorium area inadvisable. However, some engineers believe subsidence danger is past. Inferentially, voters have already approved this site.

These are the three measures you'll be hearing a lot about between now and Jan. 21.

Why Not Believe?

Do you believe in God? Do you . . . Believe in Judgment Day? . . . Do you believe that by His will . . . The world will pass away? . . . Or do you think that you will die . . . And you will be no more . . . And nothing will be left of you . . . Except your earthly score? . . . Remember that you have a mind . . . With which you may decide . . . Remember that your will is free . . . To follow either tide . . . But die you must, and no one knows . . . What will become of you . . . And there is no assurance that . . . Your life will start anew . . . Your mind may doubt there is a God . . . You have the chance to choose . . . But if you do believe in Him? . . . What have you got to lose?

L.A.C. SAYS:

Aid Now Available

thritis, Braille Institute and others. The plan has been in successful operation in Los Angeles for over three years. It has meant the agencies have received more money from the establishments through AID than they received when they made individual drives. It has saved the effort of thousands of volunteer workers who otherwise would have to make solicitations. It has saved the time of workers and management in the establishments.

The local board of directors of AID is made up of four members from employers, four from labor unions and four representing the general public. At present some 50 local establishments have entered the plan, including most of our banks, automobile dealers, some department stores, the daily newspapers, and other firms. No effort has been made to expand the program during the Community Chest drive. But in the AID Chapters (establishments where AID is working) there will be no further drives.

Workers or employers signing up for AID contributions can designate that their contributions go to any agency they desire. When they sign up they will refer any solicitors to AID. Any worker or Chapter can withdraw from AID at any time without liability beyond the time of their withdrawal. It is strictly a voluntary organization made up of those who give. No agency policies are made by AID. The whole idea is to stop the many time-taking drives and multiple solicitations which have been coming at the rate of more than one a week.

Any establishment of more than one person is eligible to become a member of AID. One organizer is employed to explain all details to applicants. The cost of the entire program is less than 5 per cent of all the money collected. For this reason it is an asset to agencies which otherwise would have to put on their own drives. For information call AID telephone No. 67-7303 and ask that details be sent you so you may form a chapter in your own place of employment.—L.A.C.

TOWN MEETING

'Cocoon'

TO THE EDITOR:
The monstrous caterpillar cocoon shown to the seaward side of the auditorium on the sketch on the first page of last Sunday's paper arouses me to write.

In all the miles of coast line of California there is nothing more beautiful than the mirrored reflections as seen in the Rainbow Lagoon. Sunlight, smog, calm or the dashing surf over the roadway; it is a scenic attraction second to none. As a drive to view the growing skyline of Long Beach, or as an invigorating walk between the neglected mud flats and the ocean depths it is the prime beauty spot of this city.

With all the dredging and filling and banking of the beaches it is hard to understand why the accumulation of silt was not cleaned out. To fill to support a big lounge of ugliness as shown by the architect seems little short of insanity.

This whole district is slowly sinking. What is to prevent the proposed fill and foundations from going down? What is to shield the visitors to the proposed building from a spray bath of salt water when the wind driven waves dash high?

Can not the city fathers learn from Belmont Shore, Alamitos Bay Peninsula and Surfside that the ultimate fate of building into the sea results in the sea reclaiming its own?

Isn't there something in the Bible about building on sands? Long Beach doesn't offer many rock foundations but there are places more secure for the people's investment of millions than the proposed site of the addition to the auditorium.

EDNA STOCK

Dismayed

TO THE EDITOR:

I am dismayed! Is the City of Long Beach really considering the monstrously pictured in last Sunday's Independent-Press-Telegram, as an addition to the Municipal Auditorium?

You can't graft the neck of a giraffe onto a zebra and improve the looks of either. Let's go back and start from the beginning on this thing. It's imperative that the City review this proposal again before Long Beach becomes a laughing-stock.

Certainly we need an exhibit hall but let's put it in a more convenient location without converting an already famous landmark into a parking lot. Attendance failures of most cultural programs at the auditorium prove the inaccessibility of location rather than the cultural vacuity of our citizens.

Work in Vain?

TO THE EDITOR:

I was on Okinawa in 1950 and part of 1951 working for defense. Has all of my work been in vain? Has all the money these United States have spent been wasted?

I went to North Africa in 1951. Has all my work been in vain? I worked in Honolulu, Trinidad. All this work was done for the defense of our country.

Why isn't there something done about protecting it? I would like to know why there couldn't be a law passed to bar communism from these United States.

Another thing, why should we play around in Korea and waste our money if we don't intend to win?

We have not accomplished one thing as yet in Korea. Why? The biggest mistake was in not giving our boys permission to win a war.

Vietminh Take Over City Left by French, Push Fight

HANOI, Indochina.—(AP) The Vietminh raised their red flag over the ghost town of Lai Chau Saturday and speedily launched a pincer action against French-held Dien Bien Phu, its successor as the capital of the pro-French Thai tribesmen.

French Union and Vietminh troops exchanged the opening shots in what is expected to be a big battle for the broad plain of Dien Bien Phu, in the mountains of northwest Indochina. The French have fortified the plain heavily and announced their determination to keep that foothold in the Thai country.

A French high command spokesman said the Communist-led Vietminh suffered appreciable losses in two skirmishes about six miles north and six miles south of the town, a cluster of straw-thatched huts, ringed by barbed wire and entrenchments for thousands of troops. Thai partisans left behind when the French evacuated Lai Chau Tuesday fought a delaying action against the vanguard of a crack Vietminh division, No. 316, but were outmanned and out-gunned.

A French army spokesman announced that the Vietminh marched into a palm-lined but vacant town after smashing the partisans' brief resistance. The French flag, which had flown over Lai Chau through the seven years of the Indochina war, finally was cut down.

The French had moved out the 3500 civilians there before they left. In addition to the prestige of their victory, the rebels gain control of a fragment of Thai territory to the north that broadens Vietminh contacts with Red China's frontier.

Most of the rebels engaged in the action to the south were regarded as regional troops, guerrilla fighters. But some of them, the French spokesman said, probably were among several thousand regulars detached from division 316.

Ex-Convict Arraigned for 'Want-Ad' Slaying

ANTHONY ZILBAUER
Doesn't Like Photographers

WHITTIER, Calif.—(AP) Ex-convict Anthony Zilbauer, 53, who kicked and tried to throw a chair at photographers upon his return here, was arraigned Saturday on charges he shot and killed insurance adjuster Andrew Kmiec, 33.

The suspected killer, who police say has confessed to the "want ad" slaying Nov. 21, was ordered to appear Dec. 16 in Municipal Court here for a preliminary hearing on the first-degree murder complaint.

Zilbauer, snarling and defiant upon his return here Friday from St. Louis, Mo., where he was captured last week, kicked at one photographer and attempted to throw a chair at another.

But deputies said he "slept like a baby" Friday night at county jail.

Zilbauer's wife, Geraldine, 24, who held a fearful reunion with him, was not present at Saturday's arraignment.

Deputies said the grizzled suspect made a "complete" confession after two hours of questioning. They said he admitted shooting Kmiec, but claimed the insurance man lunged at him.

He said, according to deputies, he answered Kmiec's advertisement to sell his automobile because he wanted to steal it and drive it east to sell it.

"But when I asked Kmiec to hand over his wallet because I wanted the car's papers, he lunged at me and I shot him. I fired two or three times. I don't remember how many," deputies quoted the suspect as saying.

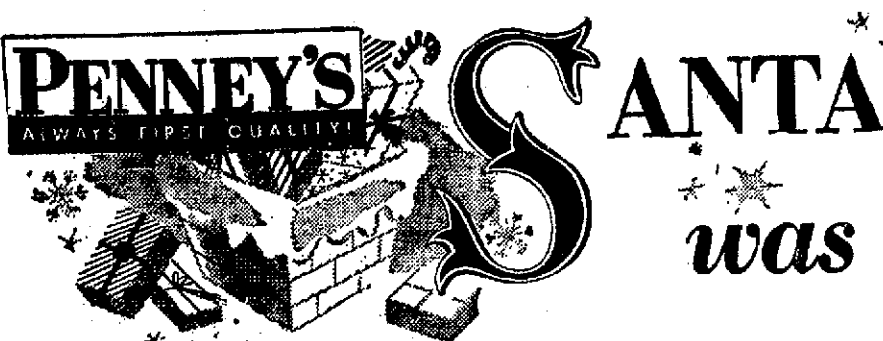

His version of the shooting, however, conflicts with that of the sole witness, pretty Dolly Ann McCormick, 21. She was with Kmiec at the time of the murder and has testified Zilbauer killed her companion after the young insurance man had pleaded for his life.

"Zilbauer claimed he had been hired to do the job," she said.

Sun Valley Polishes Its Skis

WHEN THE-SNOW is flying in the mountains of Idaho and the annual skiing trek to Sun Valley once again gets under way, enthusiasts for the sport will find the famous Union Pacific resort better equipped for their enjoyment than ever before.

Throughout the warm months crews have been at work expanding winter facilities for the enjoyment of guests. Capacity of the massive chair lifts carrying skiers up the towering slopes of Baldy Mountain has been increased and facilities for skiers on the mountain enlarged and improved. The more than 30 ski runs have been cleaned and widened, a ninth trap has been added at the trap and skeet range and there have been other improvements.

This season the three long lifts serving Baldy Mountain, tallest and most popular of the snowy giants ringing the mile-high mountain resort, received major attention. New motors, heavier cables and more chairs were installed on the lifts.

FRED PICARD, ski stylist at the resort, reports the new fashions to be seen on the snowy slopes this season will feature unusual combinations of Swiss and Tyrolean colors.

Six days of ski instruction by experts of the Sun Valley Ski School costs $92. Comfortable bunk-style lodging in Tyrolean-designed chalets, three meals a day in the bright Continental Buffet, and unlimited use of the newly improved chairlifts are included.

THE SAME PLAN is available without meals for $60.50. Also, more private quarters may be taken at Challenger Inn at slightly higher rates.

The bargain package "weeks" are billed for a double running this season. The dates: Jan. 3-9, 10-16, 17-23 and 24-30; Feb. 28-March 6, March 7-13, 14-20, 21-27 and March 28-Apr. 3.

Although the accent's on skiing, sleigh-riding, swimming and other outdoor activities, there is other play aplenty on a Sun Valley winter's holiday.

Blind Mother to Say Grace for Absent 100

MRS. MARTHA CARSON . . . "Forget Not . . . His Benefits"

Mrs. Martha J. Carson, 755 Chestnut Ave., is past 90, blind and feeble in the flesh, but her spirit is bright and her mind alert.

A daughter, Isabel Carson King, will be her only kin at her Christmas dinner table. But Mrs. Carson will say grace for all of her family and her many friends.

And nearly 100 people will sit down to their Christmas dinner with Mother Carson's grace supplied them.

MOTHER'S GRACE

"Bless the Lord, O my soul,
And forget not all his benefits." (Psalms 103:2.)

Our God, Father of Universal Love, we come to Thee with hearts full of thanksgiving and praise this Christmas Day.

We thank Thee for all good things Thou hast poured into our lives.

We thank Thee for this food prepared by loving hands; even as Thou givest us the Bread of Life to share in communion with Thee.

Bless those present and those who, elsewhere, partake in this expression of our grace.

We ask this in the Precious Name of Jesus. AMEN.

Ike and Aides Study Budget for Defense

WASHINGTON—(AP). The military defense budget, by far the biggest item of federal expenditure, was placed before President Eisenhower Saturday.

All hands were sternly enjoined against discussing its details publicly and about all that was known about it was that it took three hours of discussion between the President and his military and civilian Defense Department officials.

After the conference at the White House, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters there would be no announcement as to the figures at this time. Nor would he say whether further conferences would be required before final decisions are reached.

Secretary of Defense Wilson said, just before leaving Saturday for a North Atlantic Treaty meeting in Paris, that he was "personally satisfied" with the budget worked out for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

"We are making progress toward more defense for the money," he said.

Wilson previously had indicated that the Army, Navy and Marine Corps were in for perhaps a 10 per cent cut in personnel, but that the Air Force build-up would go unretarded. The personnel cut, officials said, would be made in supply and other "supporting" manpower and would not affect combat strength.

The signal for an Army cut-back went out Saturday when it was announced that the February draft call would be reduced to 18,000, compared with the 23,000 monthly quota maintained since last July.

Wilson said he did not think draft calls could be cut below 18,000 or suspended altogether "in the foreseeable future."

The military spending program to be submitted to Congress next month represents what Wilson described as a "balance" of the views of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, based on their new appraisal of the global situation.

It was presented, in Wilson's absence, by Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes and Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs. Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge and other military and fiscal experts sat in on the conference.

One Killed Aiding Victims of Crash Amid Thick Fog

STOCKTON—(AP). A highway crash in a dense fog Saturday fatally injured a rescuer, and critically hurt seven other persons.

Ernest D. Lambert, 51, of 516 Hadden Rd., Oakland, an employee of an advertising agency, was hit by a car while attempting to save victims of a previous accident. He died shortly afterwards.

Muret L. Clausing, 51, of Tracy, who was aiding Lambert in rescue attempts, was badly injured.

Five of the injured were men; auto, while Edward D. King, 18, of 5119 Gaviota Ave., was arrested for investigation of drunk driving.

Youth Roundup Nets 15 Teen-Agers Here

Fifteen teen-agers were arrested by Long Beach police Friday night and Saturday for investigation of offenses ranging from possession of liquor to robbery.

Booked for investigation of robbery were Richard N. Maynard, 18, of 1501 Hardwick St., and Raymond D. Boyden, 24, of 1813 Magnolia Ave. Police said they were identified by Freesia L. Jones, 56, of 1536 Harding St., and his wife, Evelyn, 50, as the pair who robbed them of $5 at 11:30 p. m.

Keith R. Jackson, 18, of 3254 Lewis Ave., was booked for investigation of robbery and carrying a concealed weapon. Police said they "shook down" his car in the 6000 block on Long Beach Blvd. and found a blackjack, a knife with a three-inch blade and several beer cans.

Two boys, one 14 and one 17, who were with Jackson were turned over to the juvenile bureau.

Three other juveniles, one 15 and the others 16, were booked for investigation of burglary after it was found that their fingerprints assertedly matched those at the scene of a burglary at 2434 Daisy Ave.

George A. Talley, 18, of 269 Corona Ave., was arrested at Second St. and Roycroft Ave. and booked for investigation of liquor possession.

Lawrence D. Berens, 18, of 5065 Brayton Ave., was arrested for assertedly being drunk in an auto, while Edward D. King, 18, of 5119 Gaviota Ave., was arrested for investigation of drunk driving.

'FEEL SORRY FOR HER? HEAR THIS'

BAY CITY, Mich.—(AP). Berno Zaucha, 40, was on trial for assault and battery and non-support. His wife, Fern, claimed he blacked her eye two weeks ago and had failed to support her for a month.

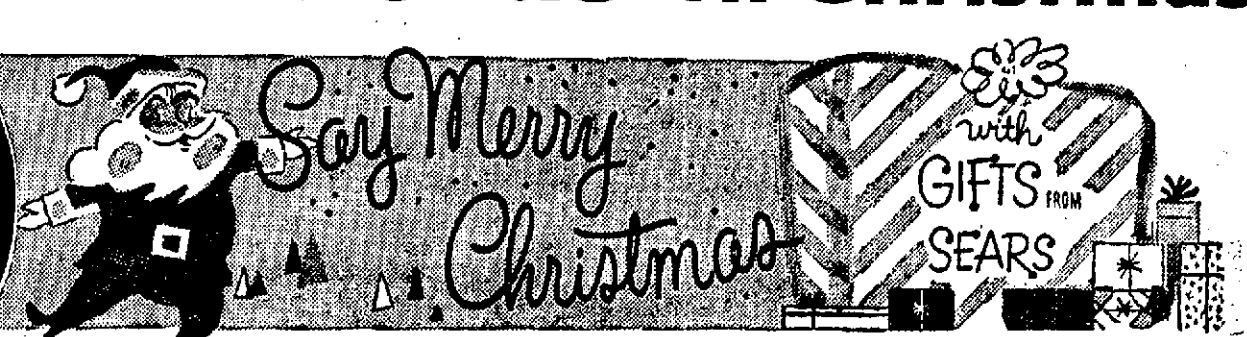

Finally the husband got a chance to tell his story. He said he struck her only because she had grabbed him with one hand and had a butcher knife in the other.

Then, for good measure, he threw in comments about the times he said his wife had hit him on the head with a hammer and with a milk bottle, and ripped wires of the distributor of his car.

Both counts against Zaucha were dismissed.

Flight to Hawaii

SMILING FACES, flower-perfumed air, balmy breezes and sunny skies — those are a traveler's first and last impressions of Hawaii, "Paradise of the Pacific."

Easy accessibility to this island playground from Southern California is made by United Air Lines Mainliners scheduled between Los Angeles and Honolulu. Flights over the 2858-mile Pacific route take less than 10 hours.

The eight-island Hawaiian group spreads out over 2000 miles. Although Honolulu, the capital city, is a wonderland in itself, there are countless other attractions. How many the individual visitor sees is limited only by time and pocketbook. Actually, however, a thoroughly satisfactory Hawaiian visit is possible at moderate cost through United's "package vacations." Vacations, covering hotel accommodations and transportation to and from Los Angeles, are priced upwards from $243. This figure includes everything but taxes, tips and meals in Honolulu.

Waikiki Beach, fronting luxurious hotels at the doorstep of Honolulu, is a world-wide lode-stone for tourists and vacationists. The gentle slope of the ocean floor at this point is particularly well suited for water sports. In outrigger canoes or, if you're expert, perched on a surfboard, you can ride in on the crest of waves which travel at 35 to 40 miles an hour.

Outrigger canoes ride in on waves which travel 35 to 40 miles an hour on Waikiki Beach. Moonlight and fragrance of leis add pleasure to scene in evening.

Evenings at Waikiki are heavy with the fragrance of flower leis. Music from the Ro, Hawaiian and Moana hotel dance pavilions floats across the beach where little groups of swimmers wait for the moon to light up the Pacific.

A road from Honolulu winds over the mountains and down the rugged northern slope to the beach resorts of Kailua and Lanakai by way of Pali Pass, one of the most spectacular sights on the island of Oahu. Standing at Nuuanu Pali look-out at the crest of the pass, the viewer surveys miles of verdant countryside in three directions.

The road encircling the island is a succession of points of interest. There's Koko Head, Makapu Point and the Blow Hole where each incoming wave shoots 30 to 50-foot geysers of salt water up through the rocks. There's the gleaming white Mormon Temple at Laie, with its series of pools leading down to the highway; there's the House of Coral where choice bits of ocean rock, sea shells and colorful underwater foliage are collected. There's Waialua Bay, vast expanses of pineapple and sugar cane and, finally, Pearl Harbor.

Oahu, however does not have a monopoly on Hawaiian allure. Five of the seven other islands in the group are of more than passing interest. Frequent flights by Hawaiian and Transpacific Air Lines bring each of them within easy range of the Honolulu airport.

On Hawaii, largest of the islands, mountain streams rushing to the ocean tumble over beautiful Rainbow Falls. A few miles away, Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea rumble in volcanic splendor. Other memorable sights on this, the so-called Orchid Isle, include coffee plantations, Kilauea Crater and the Kona Coast district.

Haleakala, the Crater of the Sun, on the island of Maui, is an awe-inspiring spectacle. The crater, 10,000 feet above the sea, is 22 miles in circumference. Haleakala last erupted in 1685, leaving weird bubbles and fantastic cinder cones. According to native legend, these grotesque formations were wrought by the Goddess Pele, who is said to inhabit the volcano.

Kauai, the Garden Isle, is geologically the oldest in the Hawaiian chain. Forces of erosion have been at work for centuries here, forging sharper peaks, deeper canyons and broader valleys than elsewhere in Hawaii. Lovely little Molokai, the Friendly Isle, also attracts many tourists. Its charm is largely pastoral — pineapple fields, cattle, deep gorges, silvery streams and playful little waterfalls.

United operates seven Mainliner flights weekly between Los Angeles and Honolulu. The company's Mainliner Stratocruisers are the most luxurious airlines in transoceanic service. DeLuxe features include private compartments for large groups and a stateroom, romantically known as the "honeymoon suite." Passenger capacity is limited to 55, assuring ample space and comfort. A lower-deck lounge serves as a skygoing club room for canasta, conversation and refreshments.

Visitors to Hawaii can be assured of hotel accommodations through United's "instant reservations" system which lets the airline confirm space in a dozen of the Islands' most prominent hotels. The company also will arrange car rental in Honolulu.

Rosemary Clooney starts singing the "Red Garters" number fully clothed in early 1900 crinoline.

The song warms up and so does Rosemary. The first to come off is dress top.

Off go skirt, petticoat, the hoop! Underneath all is the red garter and a pair of handsome gambs!

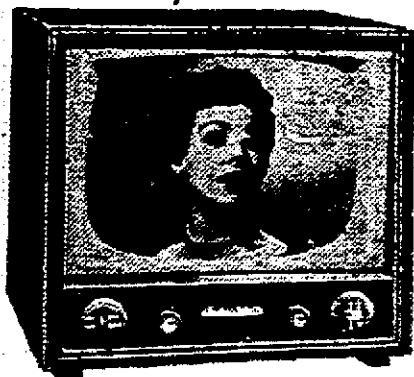

Rosemary rocks out the title song, "Red Garters," while showing the customers just what she means.

McCarthy Probers Check for Reds at 'Hush' Project

WASHINGTON—(U.P.) Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said Saturday he has investigators looking into possible Communist infiltration of "Project Lincoln," the hush-hush study of how to ward off sneak atomic air attacks.

McCarthy told newsmen he has received reports that Reds have wormed their way into Project Lincoln, but he said he could not evaluate them now. "The mere fact that there have been complaints does not mean that they are true," he said. He added that he had received no reports from his staff men looking into the reports on Project Lincoln.

Project Lincoln is the name of a continental defense study being made for the government by experts of Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) at Cambridge.

Frank P. Carr, chief investigator for McCarthy's Senate investigating subcommittee, said newly appointed American Minister W. Walton Butterworth called Saturday on Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. It was described by foreign office officials as a courtesy call to introduce the new deputy chief of the Project Lincoln, but official re-

Old Age Tax Hike Will Offset Slash

WASHINGTON—(U.P.) Millions of persons in low-income brackets will pay more taxes next year despite the fact that income taxes will drop about 10 per cent starting Jan. 1, official figures disclosed Saturday.

The reason is that a social security tax increase becomes effective at the same time.

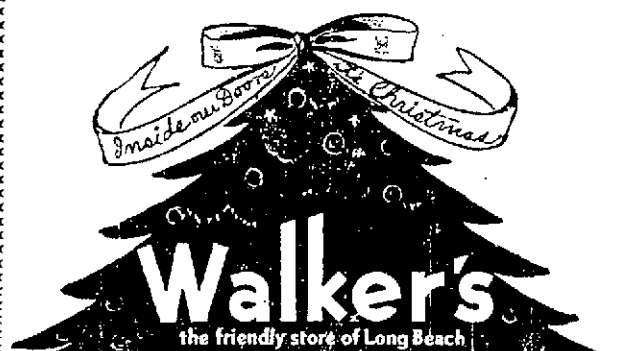

The figures, set forth in a table prepared for high-level consideration, cite examples, one of which reveals that married couples with two dependents and earning $2500 a year will pay from $4 to $12.50 more in taxes, instead of benefiting from the income tax cut.

The social security tax, used to pay monthly benefits to persons over 65 who are covered by federal old-age and survivors insurance, is now 1 1/2 per cent of the first $3600 of gross income. The law provides that the tax, paid by both employees and employers shall go up to 2 per cent Jan. 1.

President Eisenhower has asked Congress to defer the increase but Congress has shown little disposition to comply. Action may be taken early next year, however.

Unless and until Congress does follow Eisenhower's recommendation, pay checks issued after Jan. 1 will reflect both the social security tax increase and the individual income tax cut.

Shibley Set for All-Out Court Battle

Long Beach attorney George E. Shibley, found guilty by a federal jury in Los Angeles, Saturday, on two counts of stealing government records, announced immediately his intention to plead for a new trial.

If that is denied, he said, he will appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

The attorney was found guilty on counts involving conspiracy and the value of property stolen.

He was charged with conspiring with Charles R. Thompson, a Marine Corps Reserve enlisted man, to steal a transcript containing findings of a military board of inquiry into a court-martial in which Shibley represented a Marine Corps enlisted man.

Thompson, who earlier pleaded guilty to the theft charge, appeared against Shibley as a prosecution witness.

The jury, which deliberated four hours Friday and three hours Saturday, made no finding on the first count, which purported to connect Shibley directly with the theft of the manuscript.

"I don't intend to abandon the fight to vindicate my honor and to protect the rights of the Marine sergeant I represented," Shibley said after the verdict was announced.

He termed himself one of several attorneys who became "casualties" after representing enlisted men against "the oppression of military brass hats."

Shibley indicated he would file a motion within five days for judgment of acquittal or for a new trial.

He is scheduled to appear Dec. 28 at 2 p. m. in U. S. Judge Ben Harrison's court for probation report and sentence.

Judge Charges 'Impropriety' in Demo Blast

DENVER — (UP) U. S. District Judge Willis W. Ritter of Salt Lake City, in an almost unprecedented appearance before a Senate subcommittee investigation of the FBI's role in a jury-tampering case, accused fellow Democrat Clayton Fritchey of "impropriety."

Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had charged that the Henry Dexter White spy case had been publicized by the Republicans to mask mishandling of the Smaldone jury-tampering case in Denver on the part of the Department of Justice.

Judge Ritter, testifying before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee headed by William Langer (R-N.D.), said he considered Fritchey's charges "a great impropriety and I deeply resent them."

The jurist's remarks from the bench, when he sentenced Clyde and Eugene Smaldone to 60 years in prison for jury-tampering three weeks ago, touched off a nationwide political controversy and led to today's hearing. Ritter had said he could not "understand" why the FBI had not given now-ousted Federal Prosecutor Charles S. Vigil aid he had requested in the jury-tampering investigation.

Stone, who ruled that FBI agents could not be assigned to such duties as guarding juries.

Vigil spent five and one-half hours on the stand today, telling the senators principally of incidents surrounding his efforts to secure complete FBI participation in the Smaldone case, and the U. S. attorney general's office refusal.

GM Contract Probe Asked by Kefauver

WASHINGTON—(AP) Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) Saturday asked for a Senate investigation of a $200,000,000 defense contract with General Motors Corp., which he said was "for the exclusive production of M-48 tanks for the Army."

Kefauver, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the contract "may represent a dangerous departure from the principle of maintaining a very broad defense production base."

He asked Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass.) of the Armed Services Committee to order hearings, saying that although the contract had been announced, it was not yet completed and it "may represent a dangerous policy in the concentration of an extraordinary amount of power in a single industry."

Kefauver said in his statement that Secretary of the Army Stevens announced several weeks ago that General Motors' bid was about 15 per cent below that of the Chrysler Corp., the only other company now producing the M-48 tank.

The senator told Slezak that billions of dollars of special defense tax write-offs had been granted to industries in order to expand the production base for possible emergencies.

When gifts are brought to the Holy Child in the manger scene from "Los Pastores," early California Christmas holidays play, "the lazy one" brings his pirinola or gambling top as a present. The scene here is from Los Fiesteros' presentation of play in Los Angeles.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

Playing 'Los Pastores'

By Maymie R. Krythe

NAVIDAD (Christmas) was one of the happiest times of the year for the early Californians. Unlike today, their homes were busy places for weeks beforehand; much food was being prepared for company, candles made and parts for the holiday plays rehearsed. Just before the great day rancheros rode to Los Angeles on horseback, while their families came in creaking carretas to visit relatives or friends. Often young Angelenos would climb up on the flat roofs of their homes to watch for the visitors.

The holiday celebration began on St. Lucia's Day, Dec. 15, when "Las Posadas" (the lodgings), the search of Joseph and Mary for shelter in Bethlehem, was depicted. Each evening until La Noche Buena (Christmas Eve) a procession of neighbors continued this presentation.

There was another event to which the Angelenos always looked forward — the annual age-old Spanish Nativity play, "Los Pastores" (the Shepherds). This was staged by a group of amateurs who practiced for weeks to become perfect in their parts. Although "Los Pastores" was properly given only on Christmas Eve, the Californians kept up their performances until Jan. 6, the Feast of the Three Kings, at homes in the pueblo or at outlying ranchos.

This ancient drama had reached California from Spain, by way of Mexico, where its early purpose was to teach the people about the first Christmas. "Los Pastores" was played in various parts of our southwest, including Texas and New Mexico.

Its main theme was the triumph of right, the shepherds' victory over El Diablo (the devil).

IN PRESENTING "Los Pastores" the players often added songs and bits of humor of their own. This, of course, especially pleased the young people at the various homes. At the conclusion of the drama everyone — actors and family — joined in singing, dancing and feasting. "Bunuelos," cakes fried in fat, were a delicacy usually served the players on these festive occasions.

At homes in the pueblo, "Los Pastores" was usually given in the main room, or sala, but at the ranchos the players often performed in the courtyard, lighted by flickering lamps or torches. At such outdoor presentations the spectators loudly applauded the fight between San Miguel and the devil, and their faith was restored in their hero, El Diablo, when he later challenged an Indian and chased him around the patio.

It was considered a high honor to be chosen for a role in "Los Pastores." Even Pio Pico, last of the Mexican governors, and his brother, Andres, a general, used to take part with much pride. Around Los Angeles, Jacinto Rodriguez had the reputation of being the best Satan ever to play the role.

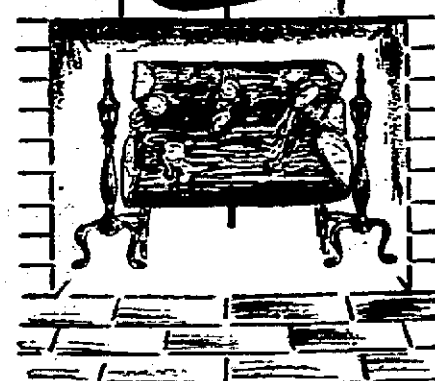

FOR YEARS the shepherd play was not given in Los Angeles. However, "Los Fiesteros," "an organization developed to perfect the characteristic and traditional folklore of Spanish California," revived it in recent years.

Nowadays, too, "Las Posadas" can be seen at Olvera St. in Los Angeles, at various schools and at Mission San Gabriel. Its annual production at the charming Padua Hills Theater has become a tradition. It is through the revival of these holiday folk plays that many modern Californians learn about the past.

Put Holiday Pictures to Work

By the Shutterbug

Most of us take pictures every Christmas, with the idea of having them to mount in our albums or project on the screen so that we can relive the high points of the happy holiday season. That, of course, is a fine idea, but I've got another idea about how we can make use of some of this year's Christmas gifts right away.

They can be a big help when it comes to writing to out-of-town friends and relatives to say "thank you" for the gifts they have sent to various members of the family. If, with your note, you send a snapshot of the person with the gift, you'll find the donor feels the picture says "thank you" in far better fashion than any words you can find to put on paper.

On some occasions you may want to include more than one picture. For instance, you might snap one as the recipient is opening the gaily wrapped package and then follow it with a shot that records the pleased expression when he or she sees what the gift is. You might even include a third picture, depending on the nature of the gift. That one would show the gift being worn or in use otherwise.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD will have its annual Christmas party, install officers and present awards for the year's work at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in

Down Christmas Tree Lane

By
Margaret Romer

A MILE-LONG double row of huge Christmas trees, aglow with lights of every imaginable color, creates a vision of many-hued splendor — a beautiful dream that's really true. This fairyland comes to life each Christmas season in Altadena.

The trees, cedrus deodars, border a residence street, now called Christmas Tree Lane.

Some two weeks before Christmas, a crew goes to work stringing more than eight miles of wire to carry the 48,000,000 watts of electricity used each season to light the 10,000 colored globes that make this fairyland.

When darkness settles down on Christmas Eve, a switch is turned on and the lights give forth their fairy glow. From dark until 11 o'clock each night from Christmas Eve until New Year's Eve, a double row of cars glides silently and without lights between the two rows of trees, down this mile-long magic lane. Last season, some 95,000 people in more than 31,000 cars thrilled to the beauty. Boy Scouts ably assist the Los Angeles County sheriff's office in directing traffic so that visitors may enjoy the beauty without shattered nerves—or cars.

THE TREES ALONE, at any season, are an inspiration. Shaped like giant green cones, their lower branches sweep the ground and their tops pierce the sky like long fingers pointing to the stars. They grew from seeds sent from the Himalayas abandoned and the house was never built, but the trees flourished. Later, the old ranch was subdivided and the driveway between the trees became a city street. In the early 1920s a group of civic-minded citizens started the project of lighting these giant evergreens at Christmas time. This is the 32nd year of the display which is now a community project.

Mile-long avenue of holiday color is Altadena's famed Christmas Tree Lane, to be lighted on Christmas Eve.

Four-Fold Mission Sends Sutter, Vickers to Capital

Mayor Lyman B. Sutter and City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers are en route to Washington today by plane on a four-fold mission embracing civil defense, Long Beach Naval Shipyard, jet plane operations and flood control.

They will attend the two-day White House Mayors' Conference on Civil Defense, called by President Eisenhower, and opening Monday in the State Department Auditorium. Other guests will include mayors and managers of cities over 75,000 population throughout the nation.

Among the speakers, in addition to the President, will be Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Joseph M. Dodge, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization; Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. Representative to the United Nations, and Val Peterson, Federal Civil Defense Administrator.

Vice President Nixon is scheduled to open the Tuesday meeting.

In advance of the meeting, Sutter and mayors of numerous other California cities have dispatched a letter to President Eisenhower expressing their concern over the "growing public indifference and apathy" toward civil defense.

"We believe this public attitude is due primarily to a lack of strong and consistent leadership from the federal government, which goes beyond your administration to the very beginning of the program," the letter says.

"The state of California and our cities have developed and are maintaining civil defense programs as good as any in the country and certainly better than most. Yet in our state, civil defense is at a crossroads and, but for the fact of this conference, we doubt our ability to command public or legislative support for a continuance of these programs."

The letter takes issue with the "opinion repeatedly expressed by federal officials at the highest level that civil defense is a state and local rather than a federal responsibility."

"It is a vital and integral part of total national defense and security, or it is nothing," the California mayors contend.

Sutter and Vickers also will meet with both civil and military officers to discuss work assignments to the shipyard, removal of jet planes from Municipal Airport and the expediting of such flood-control projects as the Whittier Narrows Dam and levee construction in the Los Angeles River.

One of their shipyard appointments is with Rear Adm. Wilson D. Leggett Jr., chief of staff of the Bureau of Ships, who will meet with them Friday.

They are scheduled to leave Los Angeles International Airport at 10:15 a. m. by United Airlines, arriving in Washington at 10:20 p. m. They will return late Friday.

Rescue Tug Steaming to Aid of Liner

LONDON (Sunday)—(AP) The famous British rescue tug Turmoil battled through gale-whipped seas today en route to the rudderless Norwegian American liner Stavangerfjord and its 614 passengers, many of them Americans.

The Turmoil, famed for its unsuccessful attempt to bring Capt. Kurt Carlson's flying Enterprise into port under tow nearly two years ago, left Beershaven in southern Ireland Friday to go to the aid of the liner.

The 13,000-ton Stavangerfjord has been fighting through the Atlantic since Wednesday with a broken rudder.

'Don't Judge Me Now,' Samish Plea

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP) Arthur H. (Artie) Samish, one-time "secret boss of California" and ace lobbyist for the liquor industry, appealed Saturday to "the industry" not to judge him until his case is completed.

Samish was recently convicted on eight counts of income tax evasion and sentenced to serve three years in prison and pay a fine of $40,000. He is free pending appeal on $250,000 bond until Dec. 24. His annual contract with the California Brewers Institute expires next July.

Saturday Samish circulated a printed circular, titled "The Samish Case," to all segments of the industry, including a number of tavern owners.

A covering letter explained that the statement was not for publication, but was made as "a representative of our industry so you will know all the facts."

The circular denied that Samish ever "willfully, intentionally and knowingly" attempted to defraud the government and expressed belief that he eventually would be vindicated.

The party lobbyist also cautioned the industry not to be stampeded by the case.

"Whatever the outcome of this case," he wrote, "remember that the industry in California now enjoys greater stability than in any other state in the Union. A united industry is a strong industry."

"Let's go forward in confidence that truth will triumph. 'The industry must not become hysterical and give those who would destroy us the opening they have tried so hard to find to breach the wall of our united strength."

"I feel that in the long run, justice must and will prevail."

Distribution of the circular and letter greatly heightened interest in the meeting today of the Wholesale Liquor Distributors Assn.

Frank X. Flynn, a close associate of Samish, has been asked to attend the meeting.

Boy Admits 'Tennis Shoe' Home Looting

A 12-year-old Norwalk boy has admitted that he and another 22-year-old lad are the "tennis shoe burglars" who broke into about seven homes in southwest Norwalk Thursday and Friday, according to the sheriff's substantiation there.

It was the tennis shoes which led to the youth's apprehension, deputies said.

In investigating the burglaries, mostly on Harvest St. in southwest Norwalk, deputies found tracks of tennis shoes. On Friday, they received two reports of missing boys. Because the descriptions given included the fact that the boys were wearing tennis shoes when they disappeared, officers made a note to conduct a routine questioning.

One of the boys was picked up by Orange County sheriff's officers Saturday night at Knott's Berry Farm. When Norwalk deputies asked him about the burglaries, he said, the boy admitted he and his friend were responsible. He said his friend is out of town on a visit.

Deputies said the boy told them he and his friend would knock on the door of the Norwalk homes. If no one answered they would find an open window and climb in. They took nothing but money, he said. He admitted taking "four or five dollars" in bills and about $1.50 in small change, deputies reported.

The boy will be turned over to juvenile authorities and his ascertained accomplice will be picked up, probably today, the sheriff's office said.

4 Killed, 1000 Hurt at Great Religious Fete

MEXICO CITY—(AP) At least four persons were reported killed and at least 1000 injured Saturday as 500,000 devout Mexicans surged into and around the Shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe in celebration of the 42nd anniversary of the appearance of the Virgin to the Indian boy, Juan Diego.

Red Cross officials said the dead had not yet been identified, but that one person died of a heart attack, another fell from a hill near the shrine and a third died of knife wounds.

The Red Cross said its aid stations treated more than 1000 persons suffering from shock, blows, fainting spells and exhaustion during the religious ceremony.

It started Friday night when thousands of pilgrims from all parts of the republic gathered at the shrine to wait for Saturday's 4 a. m. mass.

1953 Issue of Directory Ready Now

The new 1953 Long Beach directory, including Signal Hill, showing who's here and what's here, where everyone lives and what everyone is doing, now is being delivered by R. L. Polk & Co. of California.

It contains 136,712 names, and 18 is the minimum listing age. This count considers the combined names of man and wife as only one name.

Included in the new guide book are: a short story of the city by the Chamber of Commerce; alphabetical list of names of residents and firms; postal zone guide; directory of householders; buyers guide; classified sections; numerical telephone guide.

The householders or pink section, in addition to showing locations of streets and who lives or does business at each number, denotes the homes that are owned by the occupants and the homes that are rented. It also lists the telephone number following the name of the householder.

Classified (yellow pages) lists 781 different kinds of enterprises from abstractors to yarns. A number of listings were unknown a few years ago: baby sitters, "chinchilla breeders and dealers," "electronic equipment and supplies" and "television sets."

James P. Aaberg leads the new procession of names, and Peter Zylstra brings up the rear.

Safe Containing $63,000 Found, Youths Grabbed

BENTON, Ark.—(AP) A 700-pound safe containing $63,000 in cash and securities was stolen from an automobile agency here this morning, but before the day ended, officers had both the safe and two youths who admitted taking it.

Sheriff Pat Berry said James Clifton and Don Blakley, both 21-year-old residents of North Little Rock, admitted stealing not only the safe but also a car in which to carry it off.

The sheriff said the pair would be charged with burglary and two counts of grand larceny.

1st Methodist Pastor Defends Oxnam Speech

Bishop B. Bromley Oxman of the Methodist Church will address a public meeting Friday noon in the Pacific Coast Club as scheduled despite protests by two Long Beach pastors, Rev. William Harrison Myers of First Methodist Church here said Saturday night.

Bishop Oxman's character is unassailable, and his record has been cleared by the government agency concerned with that responsibility, Rev. Myers said.

Bishop Oxman is speaking at an interdenominational meeting sponsored by the Methodist Church of Southern California and Arizona. Rev. Myers said.

Crash Hurts Three; Police Quiz Driver

Three persons were injured Saturday night in a head-on crash of two cars on Coast Hwy. at Anderson St., Sunset Beach, and California Highway Patrolmen were questioning one of the drivers as a possible hit-and-run suspect.

Donald Richard, 28, driver of one car, and his passenger, Mrs. Donna LaCrosse, 23, both of Riverside, suffered minor injuries.

Patrolmen said Richard's car was hit head-on by one driven by Denton A. Davenport, 24, a Marine stationed at Long Beach Naval Station. They said Davenport's car swung over the center line.

Witnesses told officers that Davenport ran from the scene of the wreck into the slough to the north of the highway. Highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies searched for him with flashlights, but were unable to find him. They broadcast a notice to Long Beach police to be on the lookout for him.

Some time later, Long Beach police received a call from Community Hospital that Davenport had been admitted there as a patient. Davenport said he had walked to Seal Beach and had telephoned a friend who had driven him to Community Hospital. He suffered minor injuries. He said he was "dazed" when he left the scene of the accident.

WATCH KEEPS TICKING IN GIRL'S TUMMY

AKRON, Ohio—(AP) Doctors pondered Saturday night on the best way to remove a wrist watch that 13-year-old Edna Stewart swallowed.

The girl swallowed the timepiece as she lay in bed talking with her mother this morning. It was still ticking away in her tummy Saturday night.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Edgar Vincent, said Edna was lying on her back, with her arm upraised over her face while she tried to take off the watch. As the girl talked, the watch slipped and fell into her mouth. The girl choked for a moment, then swallowed the timepiece.

TRIPOLI, Libya—(AP) Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived here Saturday en route home to the United States after his two-month tour of Pacific, Middle East and Asian countries.

Nixon will make his last official visit of his round-the-world good-will mission today. He will fly to Bengasi to see King Idris. The Vice President flew here from Tehran, Iran.

Emergency Hearing for Dock Unions

NEW YORK—(AP) The National Labor Relations Board will hold an emergency hearing here Monday in an effort to settle a bitter longshoremen's jurisdiction dispute before the deadline for a Christmas Eve strike that would shut down every East Coast port from Maine to Virginia.

The NLRB scheduled the hearing even though President Eisenhower's fact-finding board in the critical Atlantic Coast port situation held out "no hope whatever" that a strike could be prevented.

It is unusual for the NLRB to hold a hearing outside Washington.

CONVENTION DOLLARS

Papa Doesn't Fritter All His Time in Bar

By BEN ZINSER

Contrary to what the Little convention goer doesn't spend all that's on the authority of the International Association of Convention Bureaus, which has made a survey on how delegates distribute the long green.

Twenty-nine cities, including Long Beach, participated in the study. In all, 423 conventions were surveyed.

The report discloses that delegates averaged $1.60 a day for liquid scalp-lighteners—only 6.67 per cent of their total expenditures. Yet, added together, $56,932,974.53 went to quench parched throats, which is no small tab.

Delegates to national and international conclaves, for some reason or other, forked over a nickel more a day than the national average spent for hells of tummy-warmers.

Most of the conventioners' coin went for hotel rooms and incidentals. National average was 25.41 per cent of his expenditures.

Hotel restaurants got 13.74 per cent of his money and other restaurants 13.42 per cent.

RETAIL STORES profited by conventions. They wound up with 19.95 per cent of the delegate's dough. And night clubs got only 6.36 per cent of the average man's moola.

Sightseeing suffered. The average delegate spent only 26 cents a day for this item.

Long Beach fell below the national average when it came to raking in the loot. Delegates to Long Beach conventions spent an average of $15.30 a day compared to the national average of $24. Long Beach's average total expenditure was $56.48 in comparison with the national figure of $93.69.

However, the delegate's average stay of 3.67 days came close to the national average of 3.904.

HERE'S HOW the national average delegate dollar was spent:

Hotel rooms and incidentals, 25.41 per cent, $216,761,594.65; hotel restaurants, 13.74 per cent, $117,209,929.57; other restaurants, 13.42 per cent, $114,480,149.56; beverages, 6.67 per cent, $59,932,974.53; retail stores, 19.95 per cent, $170,201,784.20; local transportation, 3.24 per cent, $27,596,369.88; theater, 1.58 per cent, $13,503,880.53; sightseeing, 1.06 per cent, $9,076,518.56; night clubs, 6.36 per cent, $54,262,908.44; car, oil and gas service, 2.11 per cent, $17,982,425.88; and other items, 6.45 per cent, $55,022,128.51.

PROCLAIMING Christmas party of Long Beach Press Club next Saturday night in Wilton Hotel is Mrs. H. Hollingworth, wife of club president. The program will include band music and a visit by Santa Claus.

Dimes Drive Plans Shaped; Start Jan. 4

Preparations for the opening of the 1954 March of Dimes are in full swing with Long Beach antipolio crusaders shaping their plans for the month-long appeal which will get under way officially with a kickoff luncheon Monday, Jan. 4.

Increased personnel, more co-chairmen and many more field workers will be needed in the campaign to carry out the broad-based program mapped by polio officials. Plans were outlined at a meeting of the Long Beach Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, last week.

No. 1 project in the 1954 appeal will be a switch in the tactics of battling polio from defensive to offensive. Backed by two new weapons, gamma globulin and a recently discovered preventive serum, antipolio workers are heartened by the promise of results that will deliver a telling blow to the rising incidence of the malady.

Mrs. Gail C. Hudson, chapter chairman, George M. Vermillion, campaign chairman, and others expressed the hope of seeing a gradual recession of polio once gamma globulin and the new serum come into widespread use throughout the nation. The serum is to be administered on a mass inoculation basis in February, Mrs. Hudson said.

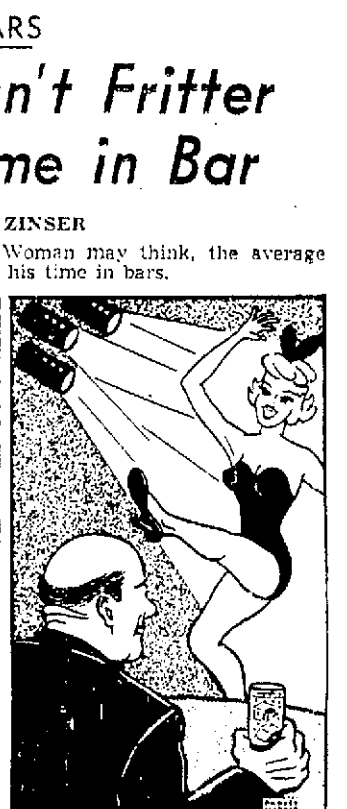

Joe F. Dowling of Los Angeles, state representative for the national foundation, said that because of the stepped-up program a 50 per cent increase of funds over this year will be needed. This means, he pointed out, an ultimate national goal of $75,000,000. The overall national proceeds in the 1953 drive totaled $51,000,000.

Long Beach contributions in the 1953 appeal totaled $18,462.41, but the local chapter will close the year with an approximate $25,000 deficit, due to the heavy cost of treating and caring for polio patients.

To date there have been 155 polio cases in the Long Beach Unified School District, compared with 150 last year. The chapter has a backlog of 83 cases under its care, some dating back several years.

Appointment of a number of co-chairmen was announced by Mrs. Hudson. Head of the men's division is Ray Underwood, insurance man. M. A. Duncan and C. F. Liebenguth head the commerce and industrial division. Joe Kennick, superintendent of the juvenile bureau, will have charge of the municipal, county and federal employees division. Other captains are Fred E. Russell, North Long Beach; Lloyd H. Smith, Belmont Shore; Bart Burgin, East Long Beach, and Art Mooney, Catalina Island.

Street newspaper sales by members of the city's seven Lions Clubs under command of Phil Jattery, and other special events are planned to spur interest in the appeal. The campaign closes Tuesday, Feb. 2, with the annual Mothers' March on Polio.

ONLY 6.36 per cent of the convention dollar goes to night clubs.

Christmas Fruit Cake

By Mildred K. Flanary

(Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor)

IT'S OPEN SEASON on fruit cakes . . . and whether your Christmas specialty is white fruit cake, dark fruit cake, or just fruit cake, it's the choicest gift you can give if you can say, "I made it myself."

Such has been the case in the home of Mrs. Fred B. Clark, for there, no Christmas has ever been complete without delicious home-baked fruit cakes, packed full of goodness and flavor. And, "like mother, like daughter," this tradition is being happily carried on in the homes of her daughter, Mrs. Daulton B. Lee, 3001 Mariquita St., and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Clark, 517 Termino Ave., as well. Fact is, they've inherited the art to such an extent that they're past masters in the fruit cake field. They have a family plum pudding recipe, too, which is tops, and today they've shared this and their recipes for regular fruit cake and white fruit cake with us. Peruse them and then clip them, for they'll add much to Christmas festivities.

Fruit Cake

1 pound margarine
2 pounds sugar
1 dozen eggs
2 pounds seeded raisins
4 pounds white raisins
1 pound currants
 $\frac{1}{2}$  pound walnuts
 $\frac{1}{2}$  pound blanched almonds
1 pound mixed peel (cut)
1 pound cherries (whole)
1 pound pineapple (cut)
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sour cream
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon soda
5 cups flour
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice, cloves

Cream margarine and sugar. Add beaten yolks. Add spices and extract, cream of tartar. Add soda to sour cream and add to mixture alternately with four cups flour (other cup goes on mixed fruit—mix well so fruit will not stick together). Lastly, fold in beaten whites. Add fruit to batter and mix well. Put in loaf pans that have been greased and lined with wax paper. Put in slow oven and bake for two hours. Place pan of water in bottom of oven. When cakes are done, remove from oven and place on side. Before cakes are cold turn out and remove wax paper. Makes about 18 pounds.

Plum Pudding

$\frac{1}{2}$  pound stale bread crumbs
1 cup scalded milk
 $\frac{3}{4}$  cup sugar
5 eggs
1 cup seeded raisins—cut,

floured with 2 level table-spoons flour

$\frac{1}{2}$  pound cherries (whole)
 $\frac{3}{4}$  cup currants
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup nuts
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup citron (cut)
 $\frac{1}{2}$  pound kidney suet (ground)
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup brandy (optional)
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon nutmeg
 $\frac{3}{4}$  teaspoon cinnamon
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon cloves
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon mace
1 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt

Soak crumbs in milk for one hour. Add sugar, beaten eggs, spices, then fruit. Mix and steam for two hours. One-pound coffee cans lined with wax paper are excellent to steam pudding in. Serve hot with either hard sauce or pudding sauce.

Hard Sauce

Kitchen Tip:

Kitchen tip by Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Clark—One-pound butter cartons make good molds for ice box cookies.

Mrs. Clark's White Fruit Cake:

1 doz. eggs
1 lb. margarine
1 lb. sugar
1 lb. currants
1 lb. white raisins
 $\frac{1}{4}$  lb. orange peel (cut)
 $\frac{1}{4}$  lb. lemon peel (cut)
1 lb. flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. blanched almonds
1 lb. pineapple (cut)
1 lb. cherries (whole)

Cream margarine and sugar. Beat yolks and add to first mixture. Add beaten whites. Beat until light and fluffy, about  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour. There is no baking powder or soda! Add flour and fruit and almonds. Put in pan that has been lined with cardboard and wax paper. Bake oven hot when you put it in but turn down immediately and cook slowly 2 hours.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Candlelight for Christmas

Cleverly crafted Christmas candles are a specialty at the home of Mrs. Cleone Greerson of Norwalk, who tells below how others, too, can make these attractive items.

By Marion Seddon

MOST OF THE YEAR, Mrs. Cleone Greerson, of 14346 Ilex Ave., is combination housewife, mother and teacher. But during the weeks preceding Christmas she adds the role of candlemaker. Each year Mrs. Greerson makes 20 or more candles as gifts for friends and for use at various social or school functions.

Here is her recipe: Melt paraffin in a deep saucepan — deep enough so that it will not spatter on the stove burner. While paraffin is melting make the mold ready. Mrs. Greerson's favorite mold is a milk carton. To make sure that the weight and heat of the melted paraffin does not split or sag the sides, she reinforces the carton by tying string around it in three places. Before pouring in the paraffin, insert the wick. Poke a string through a tiny hole at the bottom of the carton and knot it. At the top, the string can be secured by tying it to a pencil and twisting the pencil until it fits snugly across the carton. Pour the melted paraffin into the carton. While doing this it is wise to have the carton set in a large metal container (such as an old canister). To speed up the cooling of the paraffin, set it in the refrigerator.

When the paraffin is hardened, simply tear off the paper carton. If paper seems to stick to paraffin, place carton in warm water.

Now place more paraffin in the deep pan, melt it to a liquid and let it cool slightly. Then beat it until foamy with either an electric beater or hand beater. With a spoon daub the foamy mixture onto the molded candle.

BY USING MOLDS of different sizes and shapes all kinds of candles can be made. For a small, fat candle use a half-pint milk carton. To make a tall, slender candle use the paper core from a waxed paper roll. Make sure it will cleave away from the paraffin by waxing the inside of the roller. Cookie and gelatin molds can be used for wax figurines or for shallow floating candles.

Colored candles are made by dropping into the melting paraffin pieces of Crayola, tempera powder paint or vegetable dye.

"The best coloring," said Mrs. Greerson, "is made by using left-over lipsticks."

"One year," she said, "I was asked to make candles for an installation dinner. Being pressed for time, I bought 10 round red candles, then daubed on the whipped paraffin. The effect was lovely — dull red and sparkling white froth."

"But I do think my own candles would have burned with less flickering than did those I purchased!"

"The clean-up job is simple if you pour boiling water over your utensils," concludes Mrs. Greerson.

Function Joins With Fashion

NEW styling, greater comfort and expanded use of color mark dining and playroom furniture shown in the local stores this fall and winter. Designers have worked for a union of fashion and function in the new trends of furniture styling, and metal furniture has been brought out of the kitchen by use of color and pattern. Plastics and graceful tubular steel, color sheathed and magnetically bonded, have brought metal products into living spaces. A hint of what some of the newest-of-the-new looks like is given by the examples pictured here. They are models by Daystrom, a big producer of dining furniture. Chairs are foam-rubber padded and wire-backed; open work making them easy to move about. Slip-over backs for all chairs prevent wall markings. Scores of designs and groupings are available, indicating the variety existing in all 1953 furniture lines.

Kitchen dining becomes a fashionable affair if you choose practical chrome furniture that's a show of color and design. Here is a set to brighten any corner. It's comfortable, strong.

Farm Bureau May Boost Benson Aims

WASHINGTON—(AP). Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson may get a big boost from the powerful American Farm Bureau Federation next week in his drive to remodel farm aid programs.

The bureau will hold its 35th annual convention at Chicago to draft a platform of farm policies and to elect officers.

Benson is now in the process of formulating new farm proposals which the Eisenhower administration plans to lay before Congress soon after the lawmakers return to work next month. Farm legislation is expected to be one of the big Congressional issues of 1954.

The GOP farm chief has been saying that present programs inherited from the Democrats—featuring high level price supports and production controls—are unsatisfactory. He says they tend to price many crops out of markets, pile up surpluses and bring on undesirable farm controls.

OPINION DIVIDED

Although there has been a sharp division of opinion within the farm bureau on the price support issue in recent years, the organization has gone on record in favor of flexible supports, as opposed to the present rigid system. The government now supports producer prices of major crops at 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they pay.

The 90 per cent supports were set up during the war to spur food production. They had been scheduled to expire two years after the war's end, but Congress has kept extending them, the last time through the 1954 crop year.

At annual conventions since 1948, the Farm Bureau Federation has endorsed a system whereby price floors would be high in times of shortages to encourage production and low in times of surpluses, to discourage production.

Benson's views, expressed at a time when farm prices and incomes were going down, touched off a debate that reached millions of farmers.

The major farm organizations asked their members to express their views on price supports, crop controls and other farm-aid measures at county and state conventions. These polls were to be used in helping the organizations write their national platforms—platforms which were to be laid before Congress along with the Eisenhower administration proposals.

SUPPORTS FAVORED

These polls were taken at a time when the House agriculture committee was touring farm areas and reporting it found a majority of farmers favoring continuance of the present supports.

The National Grange, oldest of the farm groups, met in convention in Burlington, Vt., last month and urged steps to broaden markets for agriculture's increased productive capacity. But it cautioned against any quick shift away from present supports before such markets are developed.

A third organization, the National Farmers Union, will convene early in 1954, but its leaders are conducting a campaign for price supports at full parity for all farm commodities.

Officials of the National Farm Bureau predicted that their Chicago convention would stand firm in opposition to high, rigid price supports and would recommend more flexibility.

The farm bureau convention will be held at a time when some farm state Congressmen contend that the organization reflects the thinking of its president, Allan B. Kline, Iowa hog producer, rather than that of the rank and file of its members. Kline has been a principal proponent of the flexible support idea.

Foreign Aid Slashes Seen by Mansfield

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — (AP) Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) predicted Saturday Congress will trim any request for new foreign aid money down to not more than two billion dollars.

For this year, Congress authorized $4,531,507,000 in new money, along with carryover appropriations to make the total military and economic foreign aid $6,652,422,390.

Mansfield, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has advocated ending foreign economic aid except for "Point Four" technical assistance.

The Montana Senator said he feels that public opinion is against any large-scale aid abroad. But, he said, he thinks most voters favor continuing military assistance to build up North Atlantic Treaty Organization strength in Europe.

"Of course," he said, "we obviously must continue to give assistance in the fight against communism in Indochina."

Recent surveys by the staff of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee have resulted in reports of strong opposition to continuance of foreign aid programs. Staff aids said they found feeling more nearly unanimous on this issue than almost any other.

Harold E. Stassen, director of the Foreign Operations Administration, has written members of Congress that substantial reductions can be made in the program over previous outlays.

Stassen probably will sit in when Republican legislative leaders confer with President Eisenhower on his program next week.

France Will Pick Chief on Thursday

PARIS—(AP) Members of Parliament meet next Thursday to elect a new president of France, but they may wind up with the man who was held the job for the past seven years -- Vincent Auriol.

The same political weakness that has forced Auriol to pick 16 new premiers since 1946 could leave the senators and deputies powerless to agree on a new president.

Though the presidency is regarded as above politics, no less than six parties may be backing their favorite sons. Counting splinter groups, more than a dozen candidates are considered in the running.

Inability to agree among themselves may force the parties to draft Auriol though the president, now 69, has repeatedly insisted he does not want another term.

The whistle stop tours, tub thumping and stump speaking of an American presidential campaign are absent. In France, the office is supposed to seek the man. But there is behind-the-scenes activity. There will be no formal nominations, no discussion when the 946 MPs gather in the Versailles Palace's ornate assembly hall for the election ritual.

The roll of parliament will be called and each senator and deputy will pass by a teller's desk to drop in a paper with the name of his choice printed on it. An absolute majority of those voting will be needed for election.

Never in French history has it been necessary for parliament to ballot on the presidency more than twice. The record may be broken Thursday.

The president has few powers, but Auriol, through patience and persuasiveness, has restored the prestige of the office by his refereeing of party quarrels.

The president is chairman at full-scale cabinet meetings and often makes his force felt through his summing up of arguments. He presides at meetings of the Supreme Magistrature, which administers the judicial system and decrees amnesties. He also is president of the French Union (formerly the French Empire) and chairman of the National Defense Committee, which includes military chiefs of staff and top ministers. The president receives all foreign ambassadors and talks to French ambassadors when they come home. He gets a copy of all the diplomatic cables, delivered to him each morning from the foreign office.

The president must also dedicate dams, open art shows, visit the automobile show, receive and entertain visiting chiefs of state and make innumerable trips to the Arch of Triumph to lay a wreath on the unknown soldier's tomb.

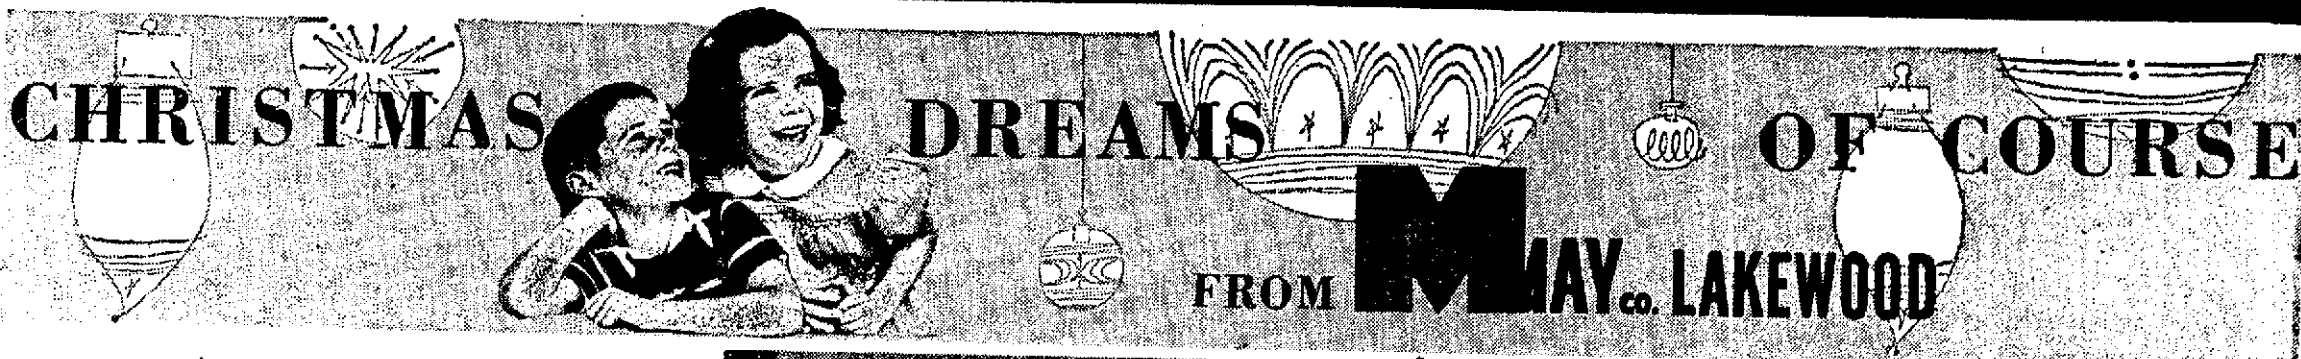

He lives in the Elysee Palace which has been a showplace since it was built early in the 1700s by the Count of Evreux. Madame Pompadour, Napoleon and Czar Nicholas of Russia have lived in the elegant old palace at one time or another.

Jackie Robinson Finds Neighbors Friendly

NEW YORK—(AP) Jackie Robinson, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said Saturday he and his family have bought a home in the fashionable North Stamford, Conn., community and have encountered "nothing but good feeling" on the part of residents there.

The Negro baseball player told a Long Island Daily Press reporter that a North Stamford builder had accepted from him a one per cent payment on a partially completed house on Cascade Ave. in the exclusive area. The house will be completed by next April, he said.

YOUR ANTIQUES

Mugs and Plates to Cherish

of the first types of ABC mugs made.

BLUE AND WHITE pottery mugs with names and inscriptions form another group of children's mugs. Other mugs had rhymes and scenes from children's poems and maxims from Poor Richard's Almanack. These Franklin maxim mugs are among the most sought after today. Most of them are of heavy ironstone. One of the maxims used the most was "Keep thy shop and thy shop will keep Thee." The earliest scene illustrating this maxim shows a shop with the name, "Do Nothing," and a "To Let" sign.

While a collection of children's mugs with late transfer scenes may be purchased at a moderate price, the early transfers and those with silver-resist patterns are scarce and expensive.

CHILDREN'S PLATES were not made in so many different patterns as the mugs. Most of the plates are later in date, and the majority of them illustrate a story or maxim. The most popular plate for a child was the alphabet type which have become very popular with collectors in the last few years. The borders usually are embossed with the letters of the alphabet, hence are called ABC plates. They were made between 1820 and 1860.

In no way connected with the story of children's mugs and plates are the dishes illustrated, which were used by children when "playing house," or having a tea party. They are the treasured possession of Mrs. Mark Houghton of 1108 E. Tenth St. and belonged originally to her great-grandmother. They came from England about 1800 and were given to Mrs. Houghton by her grandfather, Oliver Torbet of Indianapolis, Ind.

The dishes are of blue and white Englishware, and are kept on a small dish shelf which is 28 inches tall and 11 inches across. The plates on the second shelf are three inches in diameter and the scenes depict a shepherd boy with his dog. The platter, on bottom row, three inches by five inches, shows a quaint pastoral scene. The teapot stands five inches high. On the top row are two saucers, each 2½ inches in diameter, which are deep and are supposed to have tea poured into them. When Mrs. Houghton had the cups, they were without handles, as they were made before cups had handles.

"Play house" dishes shown above are cherished heirlooms of Mrs. Mark Houghton of Long Beach. Items like these can form the basis of interesting collections.

By Ruth Reece

IF YOU are longing for a new hobby, why not start to collect children's plates and mugs of the 19th Century? There are many types of mugs, from those with cheap transfer prints and rhymes and jingles to the fine, decorated creamware mugs of Leeds, Bristol, and Liverpool.

Some of the earlier types of children's mugs bore the name of the owner, such as "A Gift for William," "A Present for Nancy," or "For My Sweet Little Girl." These mugs are rare.

Another type of child's mug was made of canary-color and had quaint transfer scenes, such as a cow grazing, a house with children playing, and bore inscriptions such as "A Squirrel for Mary," "A Pony for Edward," or "A New Doll for Martha," together with the animal or object mentioned.

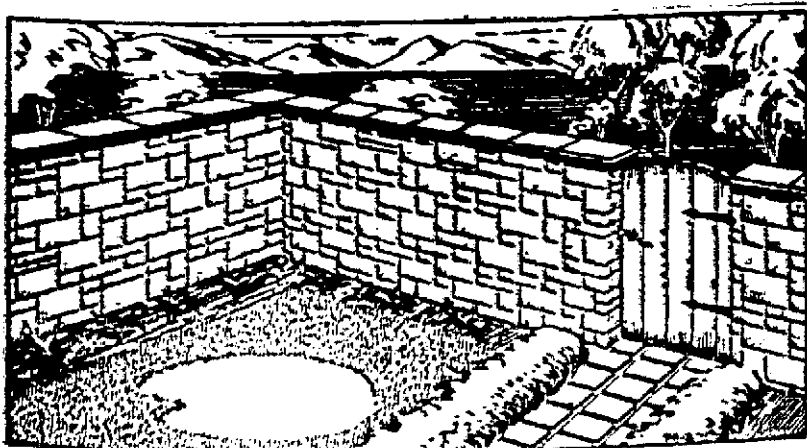

A canary mug in one collection has a black transfer with the words, "Come, dear child, and let me see, How can you do your ABC." It has an ABC border around the edge and was one

It's Done With Blocks

MORE AND MORE architects, builders and owners are selecting lightweight concrete block for home construction. The durability of block has long been recognized and utilized in the building of walls, commercial and industrial buildings. With the idea in mind of employing versatile masonry units for residential construction, much research has been done to improve the appearance and uniformity of concrete blocks. Great strides have been made by architects and designers to provide attractive plans adapted to our Southland way of living. Experience has proven that a home constructed of lightweight concrete block is warmer in winter, cooler in summer and quieter all the year around. Insurance companies, recognizing the added safety of lightweight concrete block homes, offer the owner lower rates of insurance.

Lightweight concrete blocks are manufactured to withstand all of the elements which cause deterioration and raise the cost of upkeep of a home. They have no attraction to vermin, fungus and termites, which have proven to be costly to home owners everywhere. They will not burn and the owner of a lightweight concrete block home knows that he and his family have all of the safety and comfort they desire and yet the maintenance cost is practically non-existent. All of these features can be enjoyed with no sacrifice in beauty, as lightweight concrete block can be easily and attractively adapted to any style and design.

The Moores call their home "Moore Manor," a title in keeping with its large site and spacious dwelling. A pool sparkles amid enclosure of house, trees.

Moore were looking for a home, the manor filled all their necessities—and then some! Living space in the house is something over 3600 square feet. There is plenty of room for entertaining, and it offers living on quite an elegant scale.

The exterior of the home is pretentious and altogether pleasing. It is, however, uncompromisingly colonial in everything from architecture to landscape—a feature not at all what the Moore's set out to find.

But its convenient location (Moore's automobile agency is located in Bellflower), its spaciousness, its lovely grounds with the stately old oaks and eucalyptus trees and the swimming pool and barbecue facilities were too tempting to resist.

So last April, the Moores with their two little daughters moved into the manor and proceeded to convert the interior of the house into something of interesting and pleasing variance with

Hatteras Isle Enjoys Two Christmases--Old and New

RODANTHE, N. C.—(AP) Hatteras Island is a wind swept stretch of sand off the North Carolina coast, almost forsaken during most of the year—except at Christmas. It comes twice for the people who live on the little island just south of the site of Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated "lost colony."

On Dec. 25, island folk join the rest of the world in celebrations marked by religious services, gift-giving and Santa Claus. They call this "New Christmas."

"Old Christmas" comes Jan. 6. There's a king-sized oyster roast, dancing, merry-making and a dash of witchcraft when "Old Buck" drops in for his annual call.

Legend has it that Old Buck is the wild bull of Trent Woods who leaves his home once a year and holiday with Epiphany, the festival of the wise men's visit to Bethlehem, although that falls on Jan. 6. Others speculate that it dates from the shift to the Gregorian calendar in 1752, which dropped 11 days from the old style calendar.

Hatteras, isolated by the Atlantic Ocean on one side and Pamlico Sound on the other, has received changes slowly and not always with welcome.

The islanders still keep Elizabethan speech characteristics

Modern

ly, it is a dramatic setting for the extreme modern furniture. The Moores' 15-foot sofa appears no larger in this room than a standard sized piece would in a more ordinary room. But the fact that this, after all, is a long expanse was borne out by the difficulty the Moores experienced in installing a valance box of that length. A wooden casement proved to be of inadequate strength to span the distance after the added weight of padding and fabric was added to it. After a futile attempt to have such a box hung, they had a valance of metal manufactured especially for their needs. It is padded in cherry-colored silk faille quilted in metallic gold. The champagne colored faille curtains that cascade from this extraordinary height are woven through with gold. The sofa is upholstered in plain textured cherry fabric.

Beyond the living room is Moore's sanctuary, a cozy den paneled in mahogany. A red brick fireplace adds interest to the room.

THE DINING ROOM has the separateness and the expansive proportions characteristic of Colonial styling. Again, oversized furniture seems quite insignificant in this large area. The bleached dining table—a completely unrelieved, sleekly designed piece typical of modern—is more than eight feet in length, before expansion. Ten sidechairs upholstered in green and gold tweed stand ready to accommodate a large party of diners.

The room is wainscoted in paneling in two tones of sage green. Above, the walls are papered in a pattern of dubonnet roses with green foliage against a ground of oyster white. It is interesting to note how this paper neither modern nor strictly period in feeling, helps bridge the gap between the two.

An attractive feature of the dining room is a solid row of windows, curtained in sheer white organza, that overlooks the pool and the terrace.

Beyond the dining room is the informal breakfast area for the family. This is possibly one of the most welcoming spots in the entire house. It is spacious enough to accommodate six diners with ease, and its bay windows and French doors open onto the terrace leading to the pool. The dining room and the living room both have access to the central hall from which curved stairs lead to the two bedrooms and baths upstairs.

A third bedroom, a guest room, is located directly off the hall downstairs and has its own bath.

It is out of the family's traffic areas, assuring quiet and privacy. Its windows overlook the shaded carriage drive.

UPSTAIRS, the master bedroom boasts of a dressing room, a master bath and an inviting little balcony overlooking the front yard. Branches from the giant oaks and eucalyptus trees, much smaller than the house, brush against the windows and filter the sunlight.

In addition to the stately front yard, the house has two side yards and an expansive back yard as well. One side, that on which the dining rooms face, is complete with pool, bricked terrace and an impressive array of outdoor furniture.

The yard at the other side of the house features a latticed barbecue pit with an assortment of dining tables and benches grouped about the stone fireplace. Swings and slides provide an inviting play area for the girls adjacent to the barbecue.

The backyard is less formally planned. Out here is the girl's play house and a badminton court.

Tagging the Yellowtail

WHEN the California Department of Fish and Game's big research boat, N. B. Scofield, goes to sea, the quest is a scientific one, but there's excitement—and sport—too. Activities of this big 100-foot specially equipped craft, range from deep sea trawling for plankton study to many tagging operations of game fish and "long line" fishing for monsters seldom taken by commercial and sport fishing boats.

Of special interest to South Coast anglers are tagging operations, which the biologists of the department believe will result in findings to aid in better fishery management of our tuna, albacore, many varieties of bass and the popular yellowtail.

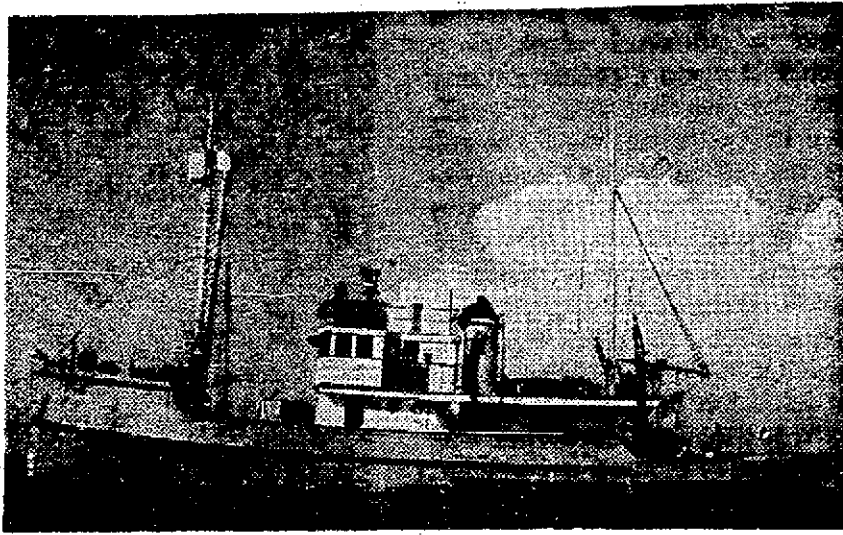

On a recent 23-day voyage down the coast of Baja California to Magdalena Bay and adjacent waters, the writer was a member of the Scofield's personnel. Yellowtail tagging was the principal aim of the trip, and 1496 of these, fine game fish were taken, tagged, and returned to the water unhurt.

This number constituted a record on "yellow" tagging for one voyage, many more of which will be undertaken to reach a tentative goal of 10,000—possibly more—fish so marked. Little is known of the yellowtail's migration pattern, spawning habits or rate of growth. Always appearing in Southern California waters from their southern habitat in the spring, these fish rate "No. 1" in most sea anglers estimation. But fewer appear in local waters each season, and the scientists from the state's big Terminal Island Marine Laboratory want to know why.

TWO TAGS are attached to each fish taken. One plastic disc is held by nylon monofilament, inserted under the dorsal fin. A plastic tubular "bridle" tag is passed through the back farther to the rear, having the necessary data printed and visible inside it. Each fish is measured, exact data on locality and its condition recorded, to correspond with an identifying number on the tags. These, found on fish, should be returned to the laboratory promptly, as directed on the tag.

In charge of the overall yellowtail tagging operation, financed by Department of Fish and Game funds jointly with federal money provided under the Dingell-Johnson Act, is Robert Collyer, associate biologist at the Terminal Island laboratory. Entire supervision of the many marine research programs handled by the Scofield and her sister ship, the Yellowfin, is under Dr. Frances Clark, senior biologist at the laboratory. Chief of the Marine Division, in charge of all California marine fisheries, is Richard Croker, of the department's head office, in Sacramento.

The Pacific off Baja California literally teems with fish of many varieties. Each voyage there proves one "of discovery." And always there's grand sport, along with the scientific work. When Captain Mitchell pinpointed a tiny 13-fathom bank at the edge of larger Uncle Sam Bank, far offshore, and dropped the hook, ravenous yellowtail were expected. They materialized! More than 200 were landed and tagged the first day, with all members, even the cook, plying rods.

Then came the flashing, gorgeously-colored dolphin, perhaps the speediest fish that swims. When hooked they make a long, swift, surface run, leap like marlin, never give up. Seldom appearing in local waters, the ocean temperature of 80 degrees there was to their liking. First in pairs, then dozens, and finally literally in hundreds, they surged about the boat, night and day. Many were taken and frozen for food. Others were returned to the water unhurt.

GIANT BLACK SEA BASS were taken on the banks, great Cabrillo of several varieties—and sharks—which were not welcomed. Returning, the Scofield anchored at Cedros Island, which guards the lower sweep of great San Sebastian Vizcaino Bay. Here schools of very large yellowtail were found, first taken on light, sporting gear, then "jackpoled" in, after copious chumming with anchovies to bring them to the surface. Several large tuna clippers also were "working" the fish close under the island cliffs. One "topped off" its light tuna load with several tons of fish, taken within an hour or two.

Most recent voyage of the Scofield entailed tagging of the last of the albacore run, which generally missed local waters and swept past far to sea. Already tagging has disclosed that these strange, unpredictable migrants claim all the Pacific as their own. One recently taken in waters off Japan had been tagged locally only a few months before. It had traveled more than 4000 miles, at an average speed of 15 miles per day!

Only time will tell—and the hard-working biologists can only guess—what future deep sea exploration will disclose about our Pacific fishery. The Scofield last winter essayed her first "long line" fishing far south, along the equator and around the Galapagos Islands.

THE LONG LINE is eight miles in length, is suspended from buoys, and carries 350 dropper lines, 240 feet long. Each has a large hook baited with a sardine. This exploration, it is hoped, will help develop new fields in commercial fishing, which heretofore in southern waters has been only on the surface.

Great tuna, up to 300 pounds, were thus taken, and many other fish not usually found on the surface. And a 700-pound black marlin was caught in this deep fishing. So, there's much scientific interest in the Scofield's voyages, always the element of excitement, in playing with the "unknown." And always there's marvelous sport with rod and reel, to compensate for the long days of labor and the evenings of record keeping and laboratory study.

Cavernous, spike-toothed mouth yawning, an unwanted shark is hauled up on the N. B. Scofield's heavy gear.

PROBING OCEAN DEPTHS

Blast Will Survey Offshore Oil Fields

Rebounding Shock Waves Check 2500-Foot Strata

Several hundred explosions will be set off in the ocean immediately offshore from Long Beach early in January as the city probes the contour of the earth 2500 feet and more below the surface.

The explosions will throw a column of water 150 to 200 feet into the air and may be heard over most of Long Beach, but they offer no danger to residents, even in the immediate area.

Purpose of the survey is to chart the southeasterly extension of the Wilmington oil field.

The Wilmington field is part of a series of oil-bearing sands which lie along an axis running roughly from Torrance, through the Port of Long Beach and southeasterly to sea.

Through the drilling of nearly 1000 oil wells in the harbor area, port geologists have obtained data which give them virtually an exact picture of how the earth is formed beneath the surface in the area now under production.

At about 2000 feet down, according to Dr. Manuel N. Mayuga, chief petroleum geologist for the harbor department, there are horizontal layers of sand and rock, laid down over a period of thousands of years. Below this is a more basic structure, known to geologists as unconformity.

HIDDEN RIDGE

Wells drilled into these lower depths have revealed that there is a ridge—which geologists call an anticline—running along the axis from Torrance through Long Beach. The ridge itself rises slowly to a peak at a point about under the Edison Co. plant and then begins to drop off to the southeast. To the north and south, its slopes are comparatively sharp.

Harbor Department oil wells, however, have been bottomed only as far east as what would be the south extension of Pine Ave.

Beyond this, in a vast area of about 5900 acres from Pine Ave. to the east city limits and as far out as the three-mile limit, geologists can only surmise as to the structure below the submerged lands.

This also applies to about 3700 acres which lie directly south of the strand in an undeveloped area out to the federal breakwater.

Inasmuch as oil is frequently, although not always, found where there is an anticline, petroleum experts seek more accurate information about the subsurface structure offshore from Long Beach to determine its potentialities and best method of development.

To get this information, the city has hired the Western Geo-

STRINGS OF DETECTORS

The heart of the operation is a boat on which are located a number of delicate recording instruments. Strung out behind this boat is a cable, and at the end of the cable are two strings of detectors. Each string is 1000 feet long and each has 12 detectors. At the end of each string, another boat makes fast. These craft so position themselves that the two strings of detectors float on the surface at a 90-degree angle from one another.

A fourth boat spots itself halfway between the two strings of detectors. It is from this boat that the explosions—each consisting of 90 pounds of black powder—are set off.

Although not directly a part of the operation, one other boat stands by. It carries a representative of the State Fish and Game Commission who sees to it that the blasts do not kill fish and other marine life.

When the black powder is detonated, about six feet beneath the ocean surface, shock waves are emitted in all directions. Many of these waves are radiated downward, through the water, and into the earth below the water. Some shock waves are reflected by the ocean floor. Others penetrate the ocean bottom, but are reflected by the various layers of rock which lie under the surface.

These reflected waves return to the surface and are picked up by the detectors.

The geophysicists know of these waves. By computing the elapsed time between the moment of the explosion and the moment the reflected waves reach the detectors, they can plot the depth of the formations which reflected the waves.

500-FOOT INTERVALS

Explosions will be set off about every 500 feet at the survey boats move back and forth across the entire area between the shoreline and the breakwater. No explosion will be set off closer than 1500 feet to beach or breakwater.

Dr. Mayuga said it is anticipated that there will be 450 to 480 explosions set off. They will be spread over a period of 10 to 15 working days. An estimated 40 days then will be needed to interpret the readings. This interpretation will be done by United Geophysical Co., also of Los Angeles.

Black powder is used, Dr. Mayuga explained, because experience in prior surveys as well as many experiments have shown it does the least harm to marine life.

Lest any person worry that the explosions offer a potential danger, the harbor geologist pointed out that a series of experiments were conducted last May off Santa Barbara to prove that no danger exists. These tests showed that vibration from a blast 200 feet away was less than that of a passing truck. An explosion a quarter of a mile offshore caused only one-third of the noises and land vibration of a passing freight train.

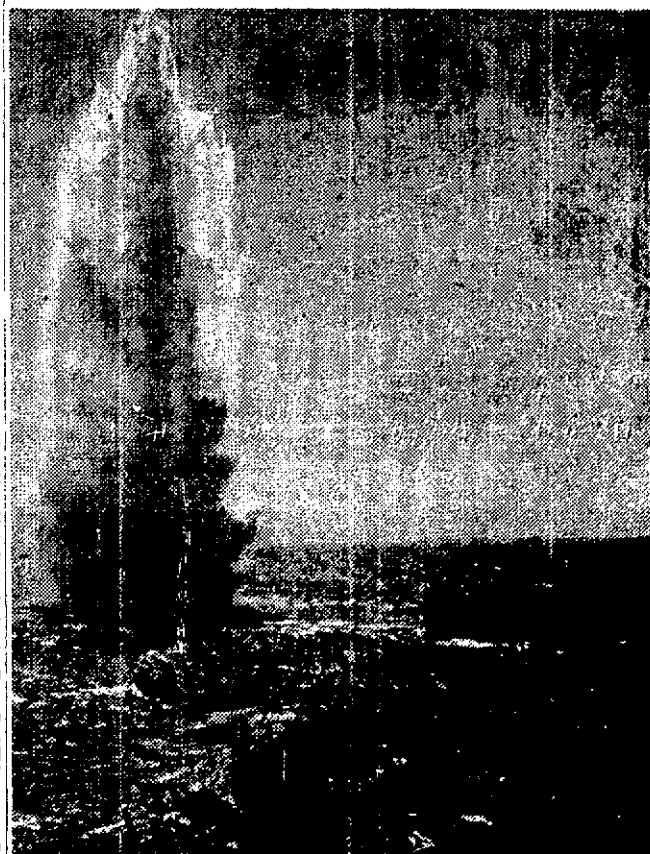

"The men aboard the ship which fires the blast are within 150 feet of the explosion and they notice only slight effect," Dr. Mayuga said.

SWIMMERS WARNED

In fact, the only warning to the public is directed to swimmers in the area. The explosions will not prevent persons from going into the ocean in the area, but geophysicists advise such persons not to put their heads under water while the blasts are being detonated.

Water is a good conductor of sound, Dr. Mayuga pointed out, that there is a possibility, even though slight, that a swimmer's ear drums might be injured.

During the actual survey, operators of small craft will be asked to avoid the immediate area in order that they not hinder progress of the project.

Because part of the submerged land being surveyed is within the harbor area, the city and the harbor are sharing expense of the project, which will cost from $75,000 to $100,000.

"This method does not actually prove there is oil, but it tells geologists the structural configuration or topography beneath the surface," Dr. Mayuga said.

The end results is a subsurface contour map of the geological horizons which give a picture of the size, shape and extent of the structure—all vital items in the preliminary steps of developing an oil field.

SKETCH PREPARED by office of Dr. Manuel N. Mayuga, chief petroleum geologist for Long Beach Harbor Department, shows traverse lines of area to be surveyed by underwater explosions.

Sport and work were combined in taking big yellowtail on rod and reel. Here, one comes over the side, carefully netted and handled to prevent any injury.

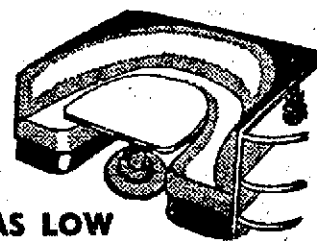

This big "yellow" will be tagged, returned to water unhurt in three minutes. Fish may be caught and tag returned by fisherman, showing migration of fish.

One man holds a yellowtail in a measuring trough; another tags it. Compiling records on hundreds of fish is research aim; hope is to assist all fishermen.

Life With a Purpose

LIFE IS WORTH LIVING, by Fulton J. Sheen (McGraw-Hill, $3.75).

"Is life worth living, or is it dull and monotonous?" asks Bishop Sheen, and he answers himself with, "Life IS monotonous if it is meaningless; it is NOT monotonous if it has a purpose."

This volume, timed to come out before the Christmas season, includes 26 of Bishop Sheen's television talks, transcribed from tape recordings because, as his followers know, Bishop Sheen speaks spontaneously, not from prepared notes. Sprinkled through the pages are the blackboard sketches and the little angel familiar to watchers of his programs.

Bishop Sheen discusses a variety of subjects: How husbands and wives should get along, how teen-agers should be reared, as well as relativity and the atom bomb, Marxism and communism compared with Christianity and democracy, conscience, fear, fatigue and poetry.

The volume is dedicated "to our heavenly mother who stands behind me at every telecast..." —V. W.

CHRISTMAS IDEA BOOK, by Dorothy Biddle and Dorothy Blom (Barrows, $3.50).

Make it easy, make it inexpensive and make it simple is the theme of this book about decorating the home for Christmas. And it contains an array of ideas such as you have never seen!

SNOWFLAKE, by Paul Gallico (Doubleday, $1.75).

The author of "The Small Miracle" and other great books sets down the tale of a snowflake which turns out to be a charming and inspirational al-

OUR AMERICA: Engagement Calendar for 1954 (Doubleday, $1).

Fifty-four beautiful scenes in full color, some of them from California, augment the day-by-day, morning-afternoon-evening spaces for advance listing of personal engagements. Boxed as a gift and it's a beauty!

THE NOEL COWARD SONG BOOK, with an introduction by Noel Coward (Simon and Schuster, $7.50).

Fifty-one Noel Coward song hits — beginning with "Forbidden Fruit," which the composer wrote when he was 16, and ending with "Three Juvenile Delinquents" from the musical comedy, "Ace of Clubs" — fill this handsome treasury. They are divided into sections according to the years in which they were written, and each section is prefaced by its own introduction. Music lovers will cherish this one.

A TREASURY OF RAILROAD FOLKLORE, edited by B. A. Botkin and Alvin F. Harlow (Crown, $4).

The most complete collection of railroaders available today—544 pages of stories, tall tales, traditions, ballads and songs — calculated to mirror railroading as a way of life on the American scene. You will thrill to the real Casey Jones, the first train hold-up, the hoboes, the cracker-barrel lines, and even the special run of California's own Death Valley Scotty.

Record Stamp Sale

First day cancellations of the Trucking Industry commemorative stamp at Los Angeles on Oct. 27 broke all records. A total of 875,021 first day covers was cancelled. This surpasses the previous record of 712,873 covers cancelled during the first-day sale of the Centenary of the First Postage Stamp issue at New York in 1947.

ULRIC VANDEN BERGHE
... Becomes a playwright ...

"ZARINE," two-act play by Ulric Vanden Berghe, Long Beach representative for G. Schirmer Music, Inc., operating music and records at Humphreys Music Co., 130 Pine Ave., has been accepted by the Philosophical Library publishers of New York. The book, illustrated by Howard Clark of Long Beach, will be published next spring.

Ulric, whose uncle, Antoine Devare, is a leading Belgian contemporary artist, writes under the name of Ulric Devare.

The drama is the tragic story of a Roman noblewoman who, forsaken by her husband, falls in love with a young Roman officer, only to sacrifice herself because of self-condemnation. It now is being translated into French by the head of a theatrical troupe who expects to present it in France next year.

The young writer was born in Culver City, attended South Gate High School and Compton Junior College where he took part in dramatics. He has lived in Long Beach eight months.

Don't Be Afraid of Your Child

Piano for the Kids

By Elaine Hauck

FRED WARING has made many worthwhile contributions to the enjoyment of music. His latest, however, is of particular interest to music educators and parents of young children. It is "Piano Sessions" — an introduction to music for children 4 to 7 years of age.

Recognizing the problem of how and when to introduce children to music most effectively, the Fred Waring Music Workshop set to work five years ago to study the attitudes of young children and teen-agers toward music instruction, appreciation and participation.

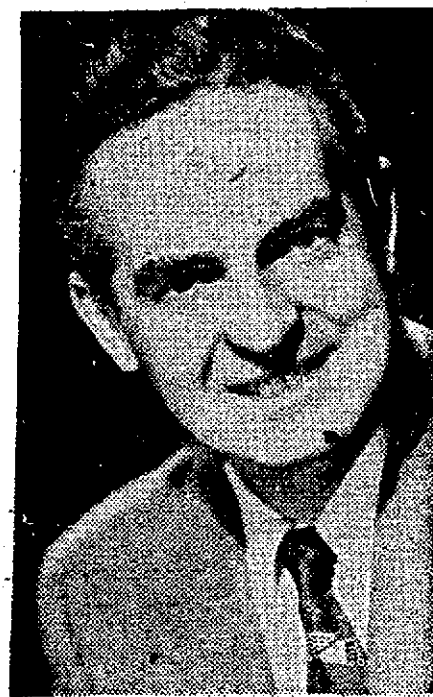

Their surveys of more than 5000 individuals showed that the negative attitude of many teen-agers toward music was the result of unhappy early experiences in musical training. It was evident that conventional musical training was begun too late, at a time when the student's other abilities were already well advanced.

The Fred Waring staff felt that an improvement in teen-agers' attitudes toward music would result from an earlier introduction of music training — so that musical ability, inherent in all young children, would develop simultaneously with other abilities.

"Piano Sessions" has been successfully tested in close to 3000 homes across the nation and is being offered to the public in the form of a complete instruction kit. It is a colorfully illustrated package of five books which present the fundamentals of music in child-size portions by means of games, puzzles, pictures to color, cut-outs, rhymes and other activities known to be appealing to children.

The most mysterious thing about music for most people is the reading of music; the translation of musical symbols into sounds. With "Piano Sessions" children are taught by their parents, who need no previous music training, to recognize musical symbols just as they are taught the letters of the alphabet.

Fred Waring and the staff of his Music Workshop are confident that the proper application of the principles of "Piano Sessions" by parents and educators will significantly affect the future of music in America by fostering the love of good music in the home through early understanding and family participation.

FRED WARING
He works for children

TOP TEN TUNES: Tony Bennett's "Rags to Riches" continues to cop top spot on the local hit parade; (2) "Vaya Con Dios," Les Paul and Mary Ford; (3) "Oh, Mein Pappa," Eddie Fisher; (4) "Changing Partners," Patti Page; (5) "Ebb Tide," Frank Chacksfield; (6) "Stranger in Paradise," Tony Martin; (7) "That's Amore," Dean Martin; (8) "Cumpari," Julius LaRosa; (9) "Many Times," Eddie Fisher, and (10) Eartha Kitt's "Santa Baby."

ELAINE ELECTS: Jacki Fontaine, new Crystalette songster, has a good one spinning in "Fortune Teller." "Selena's Waltz," from the movie, "So Big," is beautifully done by Victor Young on Decca. "The Girl in Satin," LeRoy Anderson, also on Decca, and Stan Freberg's answer to Eartha Kitt's "C'est Si Bon" on Capital.

There's good listening in Mantovani's Christmas Records on London lp. Decca puts out another outstanding lp in Gordon Jenkins' "Seven Dreams," terrific orchestration spun around fantastic fantasy.

Schools Present Holiday Events

School bells throughout the Long Beach Unified School District have taken on a holiday ring as the youngsters absorb their annual dose of the yuletide spirit.

The big day itself—when old Whiskers leaves his polar workshop for his annual whirlwind tour—will come midway in the vacation scheduled to start with the end of the school day Friday and last through Jan. 3.

Before the schools lock up shop for the two weeks, 20,000 parents are expected to turn out for Christmas programs ranging from the 35th annual Christmas concert at Poly High to the little party for Mrs. Rinehart's first grade class at Lowell School.

All the senior high schools plan evening programs. Special Christmas entertainment is also slated for parents and friends at the junior high schools.

Christmas will be observed in the elementary schools with programs and parties planned on the classroom level.

Activities pointing up the yuletide spirit of giving also are planned in many local schools. In some, foreign youngsters have been "adopted" through CARE. Other young Samaritans will collect food and toys for needy people in this section.

The Poly High Junior Red Cross will put on a special Christmas program for the handicapped kids in the orthopedic school. A program is planned at Garfield School featuring the Cherub Choir of first and second graders.

Formal programs, all open to the public, include:

City College—A concert, "Choral for Christmas," at 7:45 tonight at First Baptist Church; complete performance of Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" by the College Singers and College Orchestra at Wilson High auditorium, next Sunday at 3 p. m.

Poly High—Concert and presentation of "Living Pictures" of famous masterpieces at 8 p. m. Friday in the auditorium.

Wilson High—A play, "Star Song," at 8 p. m. Thursday in the auditorium.

Jordan High—Jordan presented its concert, "Christmas Eve Song," last Friday.

Jefferson Junior High—Dickens' "Christmas Carol" at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the auditorium.

Hamilton Junior High—Combined music and dramatics program at regular PTA meeting at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Lindbergh Junior High—A play, "The Legend of the Sagebrush," at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Rogers Junior High—A short play and music at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Washington Junior High—A play, "The Christmas Story," on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

Franklin Junior High—Scenes of Christmas in other lands and musical program at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Hughes Junior High—A play, "The Littlest Shepherd," at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Lakewood Junior High—A play, "A Bed of Hay," and choral and orchestral music, at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Marshall Junior High—Tab-leaux from the Nativity Story with musical background at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Stephens Junior High—Christmas tableaux with music at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Lobbying Act Due to Get Crucial Test

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) The fate of the federal lobbying law, designed to arm Congress with facts about pressure groups, will be decided by the Supreme Court soon—perhaps Monday.

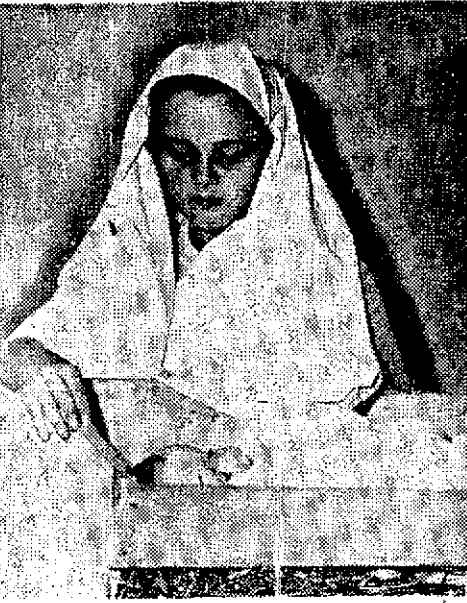

The idea behind the 1946 statute was that Congress needed help in evaluating the arguments of persons and organizations trying to influence legislation. These individuals have long been known as lobbyists.

The act requires lobbyists to register with the secretary of the Senate and the clerk of the House. And it requires filing of financial reports by persons spending or receiving money "to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of any legislation." The reports are supposed to identify each person contributing $500 or more; and each person to whom an expenditure of $10 or more has been made, and for what purpose.

Violators are subject to a penalty of one year in prison, a $5000 fine, or both. In addition, no one may act as a lobbyist for three years after conviction.

In 1950, a special House committee headed by the late Rep. Frank Buchanan (D-Pa.) set out to determine how the act was working. The committee's first discovery was that witnesses were sensitive about being called "lobbyists." To soothe their wounded feelings the legislators suggested naming any future revised law the "Legislative Interests Report Act."

LITTLE CORRUPTION FOUND
At the hearings, Democratic committee members reported that some people were using various devices to get around the law but that, on the whole, there was little evidence of corrupt lobbying. They said "organized business" is the main beneficiary of lobbying activities.

READY WITH HIS canned food gift for a needy family is Burl Busquick, 5, of 4600 E. Broadway, co-operating in the Lowell Elementary School first grade gift program. The little madonna rehearsing for a Christmas dramatization at Los Cerritos School is Darlene Johnson of 215 E. 46th St. Special Yule programs are planned this week at public schools here.

OLD WORLD METHODS

Candlestick Maker's Got All the Answers

By JEAN BAUMGARTNER

Supposing you came across a familiar braided, chemically im-beat-up box of old straw, a pile of wicks, of twisted sticks, a dirty mop and a "House of Wax" at 226 E. Broad- wouldn't you?

Not Joe Johnson. When his designs proved a sensation at a creative mind transforms the or-dinary into the unusual, so-called young lady wanted to enter as a junk takes on a new look that would astonish Monsieur Dior, originator of that famous phrase.

Rubbing the magic lantern of ingenuity, Johnson creates a centerpiece of refinement and taste that neatly disguises the lowly components.

Piece de resistance of his ar-rangements are the subtly shaded candles that bleed and har-monize and lend their waxy beauty to gaunt driftwood or twisted manzanita.

CANDLE LIGHT
Candles are what make John-son's eyes light up. Testimony of his adroitness in designing the different is his knowledge of in-terior design, sketching, ceramic engineering, sculpture and mold making. Lump them all together and out comes a candlestick-maker with all the answers.

An Italian family in Florida taught him the Old-World meth-od of producing a hand-carved, effect in petal design on tall tapers. His own color sense gives the candles harmony with an in-dividual's surroundings. Just as a furniture designer matches fab-ric to wallpaper, Johnson matches candle shades to fabric or paper swatches.

He can carry the effect a step farther. If a woman is identified with a certain per-fume, he can inject the scent in a taper in her home, thus establishing a double romantic dose of soft light and person-alized scent.

Long-burning candles, Johnson says, are a blend of four sources of wax—petroleum, vegetable, animal and insect. Of the four, the insect is the most important and the most expensive.

"There's more to a bee than his-ting and honey. All that wax they produce is what keeps can-dle-makers in business. It takes 10,000 bee trips to make a pound of honey. Half of that pound is wax. From here it would seem that an ideal team would be a candle-maker and bee-keeper."

Then there's the wick. Twisted papyrus fibers were used in the beginning, centuries ago. Later cotton threads were used, but they were a nuisance because they required constant snuffing and clipping to keep from curl-ing.

It wasn't until the early 1800s that the major step in modern candle-making was taken. Into the candle picture came the fa-

IT TAKES 10,000 bee trips to make half a pound of wax and Joe Johnson is just the fellow to use it up in his "House of Wax" candle shop at 226 E. Broadway.—(Staff Photo.)

Auto and Truck Output in 1954 Over 7,370,000

DETROIT—AP. By year's end, an average of 930,000 employees will have built 7,370,000 cars and trucks in 1954 with a wholesale value of $11,440,000,000. For this, they will have received $2,500,000,000 in wages.

These figures, pointing up the vastness of the auto industry, were contained Saturday in a year-end report of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association.

The 930,000 employment figure is a record, topping the previous high set in 1951 by 85,500.

GINGER ALE GIVES PUNCH THAT 'PUNCH'

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—(UP). The Rev. Earnest C. Parish, executive director of the United Temperance Movement of Wisconsin, offered a recipe Saturday for punch to serve at office Christmas parties.

He prescribed a concoction of lemon juice, orange juice, grape juice and ginger ale. The ginger ale, he said, has "a sufficient kick as far as the palate is concerned."

L.A. Detective Wounds Gun-Pulling Juvenile

LOS ANGELES—(UP). A police officer, five years on the gang squad without ever unholstering his gun, shot and wounded a tattooed suspected parole violator Saturday, his first day on the juvenile squad.

Detectives Herbert Herrera and Frank Tsarikos were questioning Roland Gillette and Thomas Washington in a routine "shakedown" when Gillette pulled a gun. With Gillette's gun aimed at his heart, Herrera drew and dropped him with a bullet in the shoulder.

Air Mail from Santa Claus

Iglooville, North Pole, December 13

DEAR CHILDREN:

Cuddle was alarmed when I said that I was getting behind with my work and making lots of mistakes. He ran to the top of my head and looked around to see if he could figure out what was wrong. Suddenly he began to laugh.

"Santa," he called, "I know what is wrong. Your magic lamp isn't turned on!"

Sure enough! Where was my lamp, my magic lamp? My love lamp, sometimes I call it, because when it is turned on I feel so full of love for everybody and everything and all the toys just dance across my bench and are done in a jiffy. My happiness lamp, I call it, because it makes everything so bright with happiness.

But it was gone! Oh, it couldn't be! I called the elves, in great excitement, to come, help me find my magic lamp.

There wasn't a thing in that workshop we didn't look under. We moved all those thousands and thousands of gifts looking for the lamp, but we couldn't find it. Not a single ray of it!

About the time we were ready to give up, Mrs. Santa came in from the barn where she had been visiting Dipper. "Why, what is the matter?" she cried.

"My magic lamp! It is gone."

And then she began to laugh. She laughed until she cried. When she could get her breath, she said, "Why I moved it into the living room to make them grow. That's what the magazine said to do. And you should see how they are growing, too."

"What is growing?" I asked, very much puzzled by the way she was behaving. She took my hand. "Come, see," she said.

Love,
SANTA CLAUS.

Ranch, Branded as Red, Closes

TAOS, N. M.—(UP). San Cristobal Valley Ranch, described in government testimony as a Communist indoctrination center, is closed.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Vincent, the operators, announced Friday they were forced to close guest-ranch activities because of a two-year off-and-on battle with anti-Communist investigators.

"Our guest business is a casualty of war and McCarthyism—not of free competition," they said, adding that they would continue their farm and livestock operations.

The 160-acre ranch is 90 miles northeast of Los Alamos.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(UP). An attractive 23-year-old blonde won a damage suit against a neighbor but the verdict cost her more than it did the defendant.

Miss Jimmie Yopp filed a $15,000 assault and slander suit against Fred A. Burmeister, 65, after a backyard squabble.

The jury returned its verdict: $1.50 damages.

Court costs were $25. The law provides that where judgments are less than $5 the defendant need only pay the amount of the judgment toward court costs.

By a law quirk, the plaintiff—Miss Yopp in this case—must pay the rest — $23.50.

Dwarf Citrus--A Lasting Gift

IF YOU HAVE a friend or relative who is a garden enthusiast, check off one item on your Christmas shopping list and mark it "dwarf citrus." There you have a ready answer to the question of "what to buy?" and you can give double value!

Dwarf citrus—Meyer lemon, Rangpur lime, kumquat and Calamondin—are double-feature gifts, offering beauty in the garden the year around and yielding tangy, delicious fruit for use in beverages and in making preserves. What's more, the gift is more than just a thing of the season; it will stand for years as a memento of the regard of the giver.

In the Long Beach district, Meyer lemon is most popular among home gardeners, but Rangpur lime is a close second. Both do well in pots, espaliered or as a bush or hedge—but, by all means, be sure your gift recipient's garden has the spot for the gift before you send it along. Dwarf citrus are economical of space but they do need some room in a sunny place.

They make handsome garden subjects, thrive in almost any sun-drenched spot and start

bearing while still quite young. And they bear fruit, blossoms and shiny green leaves at the same time, remaining green the year around. Even small trees in gallon-sized cans at the nurseries will often be found bearing golden fruit.

And surprisingly, you will find they do as well in a large pot or box as they do in the ground. Then you can move the pots around at your will, to dress up a patio, a verandah, a terrace.

AN ATTRACTIVE GIFT way to present one of these ornamental citrus plants is to set it in a pot, then after the holidays are past, it can be set in the ground. February is a good month to set out citrus.

The Meyer lemon bush grows three to five feet tall and almost as wide, has luxuriant shiny light green foliage and fragrant blossoms. Its very large lemons have an orange-colored flesh.

Rangpur lime shoots up in no time to five or six feet and spreads to 4 or 5 feet. It is an unusually heavy bearer of tangerine-sized orange, tartly flavored fruit about the size of a medium tomato. The fruit can be used, as are lemons, in beverages, in pies and is especially delicious in marmalade. It too, has lustrous bright green foliage.

Another small citrus tree, the kumquat is a choice member of the dwarf citrus clan. It seldom grows taller than 5 feet, is a symmetrical rounded tree. Through winter and spring, this miniature tree is loaded with small oval orange-like, orange-colored fruits, about the size of a large almond though plumper. The skin is eaten as well as the flesh. The skin has a refreshing aromatic flavor while the flesh is pleasingly tangy. When preserved whole, kumquats are considered a gourmet's delicacy.

Early in summer the dainty little tree is studded with countless blossoms, a promise of a heavy crop of fruit.

THE KUMQUAT does as well in a large pot as in the family orchard. Plant it in a warm, sunny spot. It requires considerable summer heat to produce a generous crop of fruit.

Another newer dwarf citrus, the Calamondin is a slender, 10-foot tree with quite small glossy leaves that form a dense

Lawn of Eternal Spring

TO HAVE a lawn of lasting beauty with the rich greenness of eternal spring, the lush springy touch of an imported carpet and the least amount of work believable in connection with a good lawn, plant dichondra repens. Here is a glutton for abuse that so thrives on good care there is a temptation to plant it over the entire yard area. Happily its lush growth is mostly horizontal, so cutting is only an occasional chore.

Dichondra is partial to loose sandy soil with generous amounts of humus incorporated into the top two-inch layer. For proper growth it needs ample fertilization plus generous and frequent watering. Weed control is important in the early stages of growth although dichondra will throttle out most weeds when well established.

For starting lawns, flats of field grown dichondra turf are generally available. Dividing this material into one-inch pieces provides about 300 to 500 starts. These should be pressed into the ground on about eight-inch centers. Then the entire area should be moderately covered with peat moss, sawdust or well aged steer manure to conserve moisture and protect the young stalons that shoot out. Twice daily watering is recommended until the clumps take hold.

Once established a dichondra

lawn is a permanent fixture for years to come. Cutting is recommended when growth becomes untidy or stringy. In shade areas the leaves will be larger and the general growth will be looser and in such an area more frequent cutting is beneficial.

Dazzling Delphinium

By Walter Finch

DELPHINIUM is one of the true garden aristocrats and ruling this royal house is the cross pollinized strain of Pacific Giant hybrids from the gardens of Frank Reinelt at Capitola. Here are delphinium that are dazzling in their size, color and form and are rewarding for the time and patience required to flower them.

While delphinium can be planted the year around in California, the Bedding Plant Advisory Board recommends starting in November or as soon after as is feasible. The Pacific hybrid strain grows tall and requires rich loose soil. Do not surround your delphinium plants too closely with other plant material as regular cultivation is a requisite. It is better to let delphinium stand as a focal point in some prominent spot in the garden with some lower growing material to shield the base. Delphinium clustered in groups of five to seven surrounded with a spring blooming base of Iceland poppy, later with Sweet William, or a summer base of pink or white petunias and stock or tetra snapdragons bordered with yellow viola would be a garden portrait to delight the eye for months on end!

Another combination of note is to combine the tall Pacific Giant hybrids with the dwarf Chinese delphinium which are 12-to-18-inch growers. These are available in a rich deep blue and a soft sky blue. Such a planting, bordered with corresponding shades of lobelia, will produce a true "Rhapsody in Blue."

A true aristocrat in the garden, delphinium will yield dazzling color results. Best are Pacific Giant hybrids.

"GOOD MORNING! . . . How are you today? . . . Good morning! . . . How are you today? . . . Good morning! . . . How are you today?"

The woman's voice, pleasant, unhurried, comes from the record player. Beside it a parakeet sits in a covered cage, listening intently.

He will hear the record for 20 minutes in two sessions today and tomorrow and the next day and the next. With some luck, on the fifth day he will be able (Continued on Next Page.)

Garden Authority Urges Fertilizing in Winter

It's now time to give those new and renovated lawns sown in October a feeding with Red Star Gro-Master. And be sure to work Gro-Master into flower beds where you'll be planting asters, daisies, phlox and other perennials and annuals along in March!

When you enrich the soil with triple-action Red Star Gro-Master, you help plants three ways: 1. Promotes immediate growth; you see results the first week. 2. Keeps feeding as plants grow; long lasting. 3. Provides organic matter to improve soil; no "inert filler," every ounce helps.

FOR SHADE GARDENS. Red Star Oak Leaf Mold worked into the soil will pay big dividends in extra growth and bloom. It provides humus and also helps to keep soil on the acid side.

Police Seek Pair Who Slew Marine

WASHINGTON — (AP) Police searched the capital today for two Negro hoodlums who murdered a young Georgia Marine veteran, just home from Korean War duty, in a cold-blooded street scene within shouting distance of the White House.

The victim was 21-year-old Joseph Linstedt of Austell, Ga. He was shot through the heart Saturday night on busy 14th St. in the downtown area in a murder so callous it shocked veteran homicide officers.

One officer called it a "murder without reason." But other authorities said circumstances suggested that the pair, despite the presence of a number of witnesses in a well-lit area, tried to hold up Linstedt.

Linstedt and a Marine Corps buddy of Korea War days, Robert M. O'Conner, along with Mrs. O'Conner, were en route to a downtown night club.

O'Conner, 22, now employed at the Defense Department, had just parked his automobile on 14th St., police said, and Linstedt and Mrs. O'Conner had alighted.

The area was well-lighted and at least six persons were in the vicinity. One of the two hoodlums called from a few feet away to Linstedt, "Come here a minute," Mrs. O'Conner said.

She said she heard one of the pair "mumble something" and Linstedt drew back his fist and said loudly, "Oh, no you don't."

In the next instant what had been planned as a pleasant evening of reminiscing for the young O'Connors and Linstedt turned into a nightmare.

Another witness recalled that one of the pair yelled "No! No! Don't shoot him!" But the warning went unheeded and the other fired a shot that pierced Linstedt's heart.

O'Conner rushed up just in time to catch Linstedt as he fell to the sidewalk. "The boy died before he hit the ground," a detective said.

The assailants, who fled with the firing of the shot, vanished into the night.

Linstedt, described by his family as a devout Catholic who neither smoked nor drank, left Georgetown University here, where he had enrolled for a law course, to join the Marines.

Discharged from the Corps on Dec. 1, he came here to visit his 65-year-old mother, Mrs. Sarah Linstedt, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alex M. Luchak, all of whom live in nearby Annandale, Va.

The stunned Mrs. Luchak said her brother had hoped one time to become an FBI agent. He was not the type to cower at the point of a gun, Mrs. Luchak said, but "he died... instantly... right on the streets of Washington, D. C."

WASHER GIVES KITTEN WHIRL

BERKELEY — (AP) The salesman told Mrs. Marie E. Rydman her new washer "would wash anything," and the machine's versatility was demonstrated. Mrs. Rydman said she was startled to find two bewildered eyes staring from the washer when she started to lift out a finished load of laundry. Her pet kitten, which had fallen into the machine, hopped out unhurt. He was cleaner than he'd ever been, she said.

German Kills Himself to Defeat Reds

BERLIN.—(AP). The anti-Communist Free Jurists League of West Berlin said Saturday a noted German history professor committed suicide by throwing himself in front of a train because of Communist pressure on his writings.

He was identified as Dr. Karl Grievank, 53, professor at the University of Jena in the Soviet Zone.

The Jurists League said the East Zone Socialist Unity Party had brought increasing pressure recently on the historian. For some time, the league said, Grievank had been working on an account of the big Battle of Leipzig of 1813 in which the Prussians and the Russians joined to defeat Napoleon.

The Jurists League, which has excellent East Zone connections, said the Reds wanted Grievank to depict the battle as a Russian victory. Shortly before his work was to be published, the league said, Grievank was asked to change important sections to conform to the "spirit of Communist history."

"As he saw no other way out, he threw himself in front of an express train," the jurists report said.

It's Time for Winter Glads

Gladiolus thrive if planted now in a sunny location. They are heavy drinkers, but drainage is a requisite.

By Bob Gilmore

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is one of the few areas where gladiolus thrive during the winter months. The new crop of bulbs, or corms, to be botanically correct, has been harvested and is now ready for planting.

The gladiolus is easy to grow, making few demands on the caretaker. With just a little attention you should be able to grow florist type blooms in your garden. The one must, of course, is adequate drainage. Without it all other efforts at raising top quality flowers will fail. The soil should be fairly retentive of moisture for the glad is a notoriously heavy drinker. But an excess of water in the vicinity of the roots may lead to rotting.

During the winter season glads are especially valuable due to the comparative scarcity of other flowers. This is certainly true of cut flowers for indoor use. For this purpose the glad spike should be cut when the flowers are still in the bud stage. One of this plant's most interesting features is that the buds will open slowly in water after being removed from the parent plant.

PLANTING GLAD CORMS is easy and free of prolonged soil preparation. Light sandy loams or even heavy adobes will suffice as long as accompanied by adequate drainage. A sunny location is advisable for fall and winter planting; a semi-shady spot is recommended for later plantings. Set the corms from eight to 12 inches apart and from three to five inches deep, depending on size of the corm and texture of the soil.

Glads in almost every stage of their growing cycle are in danger of attack from thrip, a tiny mite that usually causes much trouble. Make certain that the corms are clean when you buy them. If not they should be treated at once with one of the thrip controls now obtainable at all leading garden supply stores. As the plants grow they should be sprayed about once every 10 days.

Do not take up the corms until the plants have bloomed and the foliage turns brown. But do not wait until the leaves die down completely. Cut the stems off about one or two inches above the soil surface. Clean and dry the remaining section in the sun for an hour or so and then remove to a dry and airy location.

THE CORMS require a resting period of from three to five months before being replanted. The small bulblets that form around the main bulb or corm should be removed and stored in moist sand.

The best planting stock is what is referred to as a No. 2 corm. This has a high crown... the distance from the base of the bulb to its top. The No. 2 corm is a young bulb, full of energy. Large corms, often known as mother bulbs, have a wide spread laterally but a shallow crown. These bulbs are usually worn out and will not produce as good a plant as the No. 2 type.

Glads planted now should flower in from 90 to 100 days depending upon the weather. It is advisable to start a new batch of bulbs about every two or three weeks to provide a succession of color in your garden. Setting each corm on a cushion of sand aids in preventing rotting after heavy rains. This is especially valuable in heavy land such as adobe or clay.

Play It to the Birds

to say "Good morning!... How are you today?"

When he "graduates" from that lesson, the record will be turned over and he will hear the same voice: "What a beautiful day!... Give me a kiss, Sweetheart!... What a beautiful day!... Give me a kiss, Sweetheart!... What a beautiful day!... Give me a kiss, Sweetheart!"

The same process will be repeated, and with some more luck those sentences will be added to his repertoire.

By that time, both the parakeet and his happy owners will be convinced that he can talk.

That is the theory behind the B & M Bird Training Records issued by G. S. Ballard, real estate dealer of 1165 E. 10th St., whose B & M Aviaries' roller canaries have won a flock of prizes. The records, which are being distributed by Oscar D. Locke, 1021 Orange Ave., are available in pet and record shops and even some bookstores.

Ballard first recorded the full, complete song of one of his best canaries, a little greenish fellow, at the Garrison Recording Studio, 1120 Pine Ave. This record, which has no music except the canary's song, he believes is valuable in teaching canaries to sing or correcting faults of birds that already sing.

THEN HE cut a record to teach parakeets, cockateels, mynahs and even parrots to talk. After they have learned the basic lessons from the record they easily will pick up words and sentences from their owners, he believes. Locke says that 50 women were auditioned before the one woman was chosen to make the record. Although her identity has not been revealed, he says she is prominent socially in Long Beach.

Third of the series of records is a medley of roller canaries' songs. For this purpose, the recorder was placed in the aviary. This is not a training record, but was made for persons who enjoy the singing of canaries and would like to have such a record.

Both Ballard and Locke are disabled veterans, Ballard from World War I and Locke from World War II.

Rep. Hoffman Opens Probe of Junketing

WASHINGTON — (UP). Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) Saturday opened an inquiry into reported "blank check" spending by his fellow Congressmen in their travels abroad.

Hoffman is the peppery chairman of the House Committee on Government Operations. In this capacity he frequently has tangled with other members of the House and of his own committee.

He went into action after hearing that House and Senate members, in the near-record, around-the-world travel season just ended, have been seeing the sights at minimum expense to themselves and with little or no accounting to the taxpayers.

The system is to pay the bills with foreign currency, put up to match dollar aid from the United States. This money is known officially as "counterpart." Some touring lawmakers have been reported to prefer the term, "wallpaper money."

Under a 1951 law which came into widespread use for the first time this year, a properly accredited member of Congress abroad can draw as much of this money as he wants, and spend it for what he pleases.

Frequently he doesn't have to report to anybody on what he did with it.

Presumably he spends it only for essential items like food, lodging, and transportation. In some cases, committee chairmen are reported to have made this presumption stick, and to have required an accounting from each returning traveler.

In other committees, no questions are asked.

The State Department, which hands out the money on request, does not inquire into its disposal. Nor is any accounting made to the House Committee on Administration, which goes over House members' ordinary expense accounts (covering dollars) with a gimlet eye, rejecting such items as liquor and entertainment.

It is a tradition that no member of Congress questions another's integrity. All Hoffman would say on this point was that he doesn't think Congressmen should subject themselves to needless temptation.

He wondered why they should not have to make the same accounting of what they spend—even in counterpart funds—as is required of other officials traveling on government business.

Farm Group Faces Split on Supports

CHICAGO — (UP). The American Farm Bureau Federation prepared for its most important convention for a split in its own ranks over the issue of government price supports.

The federation, largest and most powerful of the nation's farm organizations, is expected to play a significant role in shaping the administration's farm policy for 1954.

An estimated 5000 delegates representing 1,951,777 farm families in the 48 states and Puerto Rico, will attend the federation's 35th annual convention, which opens today and ends Dec. 17.

Crucial issues to be voted on by delegates include the level of farm price supports, the disposition of current surpluses and means of bolstering the sagging foreign market.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has asked the federation and other major farm groups for their views on each of these subjects.

The federation's views will be forwarded to Benson in the form of resolutions passed at the convention.

Benson himself will address the delegates Wednesday in the session's most important speech.

Thirty-seven of the 48 state organizations affiliated with the federation already have voted on the price support issue at their own state conventions.

Of the 37, 19 favored a system of "flexible" supports, which would permit the support level to fluctuate up or down, depending on crop supply.

Thirteen states favored continuation of the present "rigid" system, based on 90 per cent of parity.

The "rigid" system was inherited by the administration from the Democrats. Benson and other administration spokesmen have expressed disapproval of it.

The vote among the 37 state groups evidenced a trend toward the retention of "rigid" price props. In the past, only two or three state groups have favored the system.

Among state groups favoring the "flexible" system are Illinois, the largest of all federation affiliates, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New York and Alabama.

This group includes some of the most populous and influential farm states, with large blocs of voting delegates.

The group favoring the "rigid" system was composed principally of the southern cotton and tobacco states.

Red China Exporting Rice Despite Hunger
HONG KONG — (UP). An American diplomatic source said Saturday Communist China is still shipping rice to Ceylon in exchange for rubber despite acute food shortages at home.

Ceylon, meanwhile, has built up a surplus and is reselling 30 thousand tons of China rice to Japan, he added.

RAMS COAST OVER GREEN BAY, 33-17

Record by Lewis in Finale

Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES COLISEUM—The Los Angeles Rams closed out their most frustrating season in six years here Saturday by exploding for four touchdowns in the first quarter and then coasting to a 33-17 triumph over the Green Bay Packers before a slim turnout of only 23,069 fans.

The affair marked the first time since 1948 the Rams have failed to be in championship contention going into the final game of the season.

If nothing else, the game produced two noteworthy items: (1) a new all-time NFL kickoff return record, and (2) one of the most weird touchdowns of the 1953 season.

Woodley Lewis, the Rams' great safetyman, returned three kickoffs a total of 96 yards to boost his season's total to 830 yards on 32 returns to better the old record of 797 yards set by Eddie Saez of Washington in 1947.

'ONE FOR BOOKS'
Los Angeles' final touchdown of the game midway in the third period really was "one for the books" as Fred Cone's attempted field goal from the 34 boomeranged into a 66-yard scoring play for the Rams.

Dick Lane hurtled in to block the placement with such force that the ball bounced clear back to the Packers 20-yard line where the "Night Train" picked it up and raced the remaining distance to the goal line for the tally.

The Rams took the opening kickoff and marched 62 yards in seven plays for their first touchdown. . . . Brad Myers skipping 31 yards for the score on a pitchout around left end. Tom Fears' attempted conversion was wide.

Moments later Vitamin Smith fired a southpaw pass to Elroy (Crazylegs) Hirsch on the Packer 17 for a 50-yard gain to set the stage for Norm Van Brocklin's four-yard scoring pitch to Fears four plays later. Hirsch's placement for the extra point was blocked.

The Rams moved out to a 19-0 lead at 10:55 when Van Brocklin passed 46 yards to Skeet Quinlan. Fears kicked the conversion. The Packers, who had gained only eight yards up to then, notched their first touchdown at 12:51 when End Carlton Elliott rushed in to intercept a lateral from Smith to Van Brocklin on the Ram 17-yard line and pranced over for the tally. Cone booted the extra point.

YOUNGER SCORES
The Rams bounced right back with their fourth touchdown in the initial stanza as Deacon Dan Towler roared 40 yards to the Packer four-yard line from where Tank Younger slammed across on the next play just 32 seconds before the period ended. Hirsch converted to make it 26-7.

Green Bay racked up its second touchdown on the very first

Eighth Junior Rose Bowl Tussle 'Comedy of Errors'

By JIM FRAMPTON

Two powerful lines and two choked-up backfields stumbled through 54 minutes of sloppy football Saturday in the eighth Junior Rose Bowl game, but tense Northeast Oklahoma A&M and even tenser Bakersfield exploded for six minutes of thrilling football in the game's waning moments.

A first-half Comedy of Errors that even Shakespeare couldn't have surpassed found the two evenly matched junior college foes in a scoreless deadlock. The comedy even began to border on the farcical at the outset of the second half when the Aggies' opening kickoff was allowed to lie untended in the Bakersfield end zone until Aggie end Jim Thompson pounced on it for the Oklahoma touchdown.

Through better than three and a half periods there were backfield bobbles, missed assignments, numerous penalties, but-terfingers, and even one instance of a back carrying his own team's punt the wrong way.

But in typical Junior Rose Bowl fashion, they saved the fireworks till the end, and the verdict was in doubt until the final gun. Only the magnificent Bakersfield forward wall, headed by one of the greatest line-men ever to play in the JRB, Gary Gore, retained its composure throughout. With two minutes to play they held the Aggies on the Renegade one-foot line.

It was a lineman's game throughout—both lines played like pros, making the backfields look like grammar schoolers. Gore, who played the entire 60 minutes, was a demon all afternoon—practically unstoppable on defense, and a brutal blocker and play leader on offense.

But in the locker room after the game Gore admitted he'd never played against a tougher or harder-hitting line than Oklahoma's Gary, who'd never gone a complete game before, said he couldn't remember a rougher game. "But we never doubted we'd win," said the stone-faced, 190-pound guard.

No wider locker room has ever been seen than the jubilant Bakersfield quarters after their hard-fought, come-from-behind triumph. Gene Fitzgerald and Gore were mauled and pummeled by their yelling mates.

Coach Homer Beatty was swarmed over before he could make the safety of the lockers by a horde of red-clad Bakersfield pompon girls who gave him a real "last man on earth" treatment.

Once free of the throng of admirers, Beatty confessed to newsmen his boys had played one of their sloppiest games of the year. "We made more mistakes to-

OPEN ONLY A YEAR, Hoefly's Lakewood restaurant has quickly established a reputation for serving cuisine as superb as that of its famous older brother, Hoefly's in Belmont Shore.

Steaks and prime ribs are two of the featured attractions at Hoefly's, Lakewood. And top billing on the menu goes to the house specialty—an immense, 40-ounce planked porterhouse (served for 2) which is only slightly less impressive than the Empire State building.

This enormous steak is served on a round wooden plank, the meat in the center. Upon it are heaped golden French fried onion rings and dollar-sized mushrooms. Alongside are perfect peas, asparagus and grilled tomaatoes and the whole technicolor treat is surrounded by a dainty garnish border of whipped potatoes. Also included are a large Hoefly's tossed green salad, a jumbo, 14-ounce baked potato with cheese sauce, and choice of beverage. For patrons who still have room, Hoefly's Strawberry Surprise makes a fitting finale to the meal.

PRICES at Hoefly's are scaled for all budgets. Dining in the Coffee Shop is quite inexpensive. Complete dinners in the Dining Room and Tap Room (where Ray Whittaker is featured at the piano-bar) are priced as low as $1.75.

Host and manager at Hoefly's, Lakewood, is tall, broad-shouldered Al Solomon, one of the five sons of Irving Solomon who owns both Hoefly's restaurants. A Wilson High graduate and former City College student, Al served four years in the Air Force during World War II and was associated with his father at Hoefly's, Belmont Shore, for six years before taking over as Lakewood manager. On week ends, Al is assisted at the restaurant by his Girl Friday—his petite, brunet wife, Jean. They have two children, Marlene, 5, and Nancy, 2½.

IN THIS CORNER with DICK ZEHN

A little roll of paper, containing no more than a straight or curved line and some symbols in a predetermined code known only to two people, is the basic reason why nearly 45 minutes were shaved off the stock car record in the Nov. 19-23 Pan-American Road Race.

This is one of those "now it can be told" stories, in part, and it shows to what great detailed preparation auto-racing pilots and co-pilots go in order to improve their chances of victory.

There must be something of the boy scout in Chuck Stevenson and Clay Smith, the driving team which steered the Lincoln No. 52 to its second straight stock division triumph in this international speed test, whacking 45 minutes off the record en route. If there isn't they at least believe in the scout's motto, "Be Prepared."

"Two weeks before the race we logged the route, traveling nearly 9000 miles," Clay revealed Friday, amid a flurry of mop-up activities now that he's home for a few weeks. "Chuck did the logging, noting each dip, bump, road texture, right turn, left turn, grades, straightaways, sharp curves and flat-out, high-speed curves."

"We devised our own set of symbols for each approaching feature on the course all the way from Tuxtla, the start, to Juarez, the finish. These were noted on the log. Then, in the race, as the log unrolled it told us what was ahead—whether it be safe to increase speed, necessary to diminish it, whether we were coming to a sharp curve at the top of a grade, or what else might be ahead."

"As the pilot, Chuck naturally was able to get maximum speed out of our entry because the log told him as he was unfolding what was up ahead. The traffic signs along the route foretold and forewarned of regular motorists, not for racers."

"In a race of this kind, when the pilot takes his foot off the gas for just ten seconds or so, his actions may be reflected in ultimate time by a minute or more. The log, you see, told him how long he should ease up or how heavy he could go."

"I'd venture to say that the log accounted for at least 30 of the 45 minutes we cut off the record. The rest? Well, improved handling of the car, I guess. We did more work in advance on the chassis this year. As the sports car drivers say, the Lincoln was 'cornering' better this time."

"Last year when we won in our first try with the Lincoln, we were timed in 21 hrs., 13 mins., 48 secs. This year we finished in 20 hrs., 51 mins., 35 secs."

FIVE LONG BEACHERS figured in the first four stock car spots with the Lincoln teams. Smith, Earl Finkner, Chuck Daigh, Johnny Mantz and Bill Strope were the local contestants. After the Stevenson-Smith winning combine, Finkner and Daigh finished second, while Mantz and Strope came in fourth.

They all appeared on a recent Ed Sullivan "Toast of the Town" television show in New York, then flew to Detroit for a round of luncheons and conferences with the Lincoln-Mercury brass, then flew home.

The long grind ranging from sea level to 10,000 feet altitudes, covered 1918 miles in five laps—Tuxtla to Oaxaca, 328 miles; Oaxaca to Mexico City, 330 miles; Mexico City to Durango, 600 miles, above 7000 feet almost all of this route; Durango to Chihuahua, 440 miles, and Chihuahua to Juarez, 222 miles.

147,000 pesos, or $410,000 in this realm, were posted for each lap. Stevenson and Smith won the first, Mantz and Strope in No. 51, and Finkner and Daigh in No. 52.

Stevenson and Smith banked the big booty, 150,000 pesos, or $17,000, for first money, while 75,000 pesos, or around $8,500, was second prize.

THE FAMOUS RACE had quite a few casualties, but Clay, who has been "thinking" with motors since he was 14, hasn't had even a close call in three endeavors—two firsts and a fourth in a Mercury in 1951 with Troy Rutman, '52 Indianapolis winner, at the wheel.

"We didn't even skid off the pavement," he said, "nor did we hit any animals. Our top speed, I think, was 128 miles per hour."

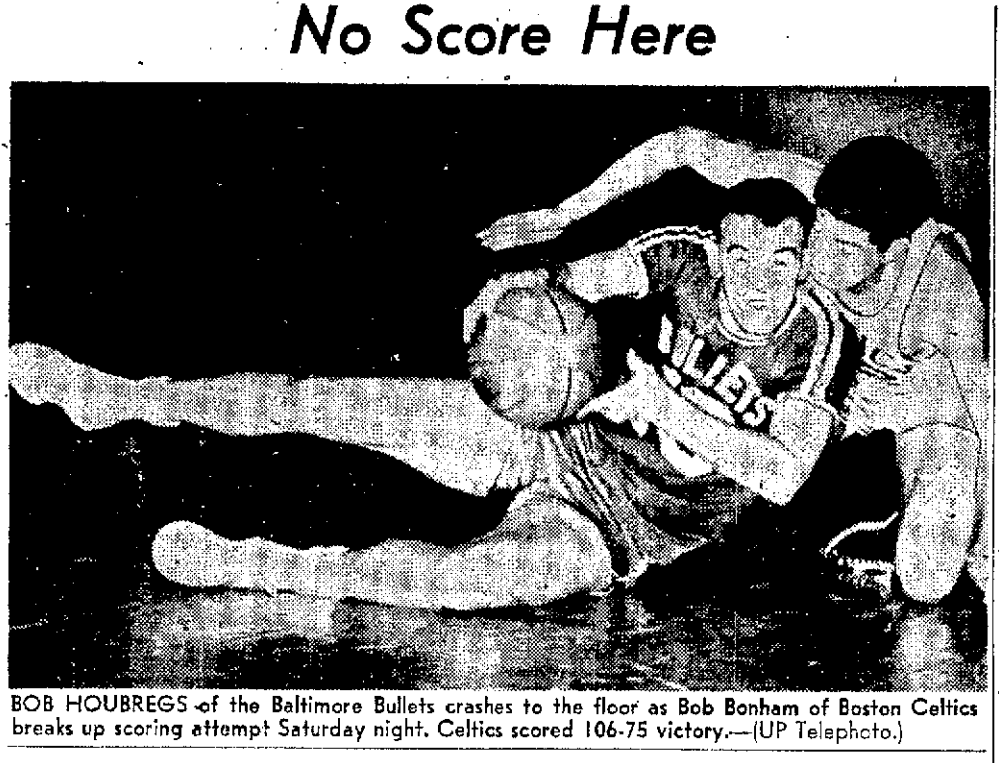

After each lap, the pilot and co-pilot had three hours in which to prepare the car for the next lap, after which it was impounded and guarded by soldiers of the Mexican Army. Then the hood was sealed.

Before the impound, the co-pilot was the busiest.

"I'd have to get the car fueled up, change the spark plugs if necessary, change tires in the caretaker for the variations of altitude, inspect brakes, change tires and other things," he explained. "All maintenance was preventive maintenance for possible chassis failures, so that nobody would get hurt. I checked at every stop, never found one item."

"We did stop 100 miles after we started out on the first leg for a tire change after a rugged go on roads made of asphalt and volcanic rock. We changed the two front tires—Chuck and I—in less than a couple of minutes."

Clay, who has made his hobby of racing engines—speedboat and auto—into his business, has been

Snead Eyes 6th Miami Tee Title, Grabs Lead With 66

MIAMI—(UP). Sam Snead, who likes to win Miami golf tournaments so he can pay for his Florida fishing trips, forged to the front in the $10,000 Miami Open Saturday with a 54-hole score of 204.

Snead fired a 66, four strokes under par, to make a strong bid to capture this pre-Christmas tournament for the sixth time.

Should he emerge on top after today's final round it would be quite a feat, even for the veteran slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who has won every major golf title but the National Open. No one has won a major PGA-sponsored contest six times.

Snead took over the lead as Doug Ford of Yonkers, N. Y., the second-round leader by three strokes, surmanned among the palm trees for a par 70. That left the second top golf money winner of the year second place at 205.

Tied at 208 for third place were Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Fred Wampler of Indianapolis. Harmon shot a third-round 68 and Wampler a 71.

As Ford faltered, Snead took over with the kind of golf that has made him famous—long drives and pinpoint approaches to the flag which left him only short putts for his pars and birdies.

On the 500-yard, par five fifth hole, Snead's third shot for an eagle—a 15-foot putt—rimmed the cup. But he tapped in the ball for his first birdie. Snead canned a 20-foot green shot on the sixth for a second birdie and emerged from the front nine with a two-under-par 33. On the back nine, he collected two more birdies with accurate approach shots on holes 12 and 15.

Sam Snead, 46-204, Doug Ford, 70-205, Fred Wampler, 71-208, Claude Harmon, 72-208, John Frawley, 73-209, John Cooper, 74-210, Jack Nicklaus, 75-211, Dick Mayer, 76-212, Billy Martin, 77-213, X-Frank Stranahan, 78-214, Gardner Dickinson Jr., 79-215, X-Archie Hunter, 80-216, X-Matteson.

Kentucky in 81-66 Triumph

CINCINNATI—(UP). Xavier University boxed up Kentucky scoring ace Cliff Hagan but could not case the rest of the Wildcats scorers who whipped Xavier 81-66 Saturday night. Hagan tallied a scant 12, while teammate Frank Ramsey hit 27 points.

Rule Argentine Star OK at SMU

DALLAS, Tex.—(UP). Oscar Furlong, a two-time Olympic basketball player from Argentina, Saturday was declared eligible for Southwest Conference competition with Southern Methodist University.

Furlong, a sparkling floor man with Argentina's 1948 and 1952 Olympic teams, enrolled at SMU this fall, but a question arose over his eligibility because of his enrollment at a Buenos Aires "law school" in 1947.

The conference faculty committee, in effect, ruled that the school was not a school under American standards since Furlong's enrollment there amounted to no more than an application to some day take a bar examination. He did not attend any classes.

Louisiana State Topples Kansas

BATON ROUGE, La.—(UP). Don Sebastian, a ball-hawking substitute guard, showed Louisiana State University how to squeeze out of the Kansas press Saturday night as LSU forged a 68-63 basketball victory.

More than 12,000 fans—largest ever to see a deep South basketball game—came off the bench in the third quarter to give the Jayhawks a taste of their own ball-snatching medicine.

LSU was trailing 53-52 at the time and had not held the lead since center Bob Pettit plunked in the opening field goal of the game.

Undeclared Hoosiers Pummel Butler, 76-57

INDIANAPOLIS—(UP). Unbeaten Indiana outclassed Butler Saturday night, 76-57, before 10,436 fans for its third win of the season.

The rangy defending national and Big Ten champs led from the start. Butler, suffering its fourth straight setback at the hands of a Big Ten five, never had a chance.

Center Don Schlundt pumped in nine of Indiana's first 16 points and he was lifted even before the half.

Indiana Coach Branch McCracken substituted freely the rest of the game, using 15 players.

Butler made only five points in the second period as the Hoosiers monopolized the backboards.

Schlundt led the scoring with 17 points, Butler's John Mustain made 16.

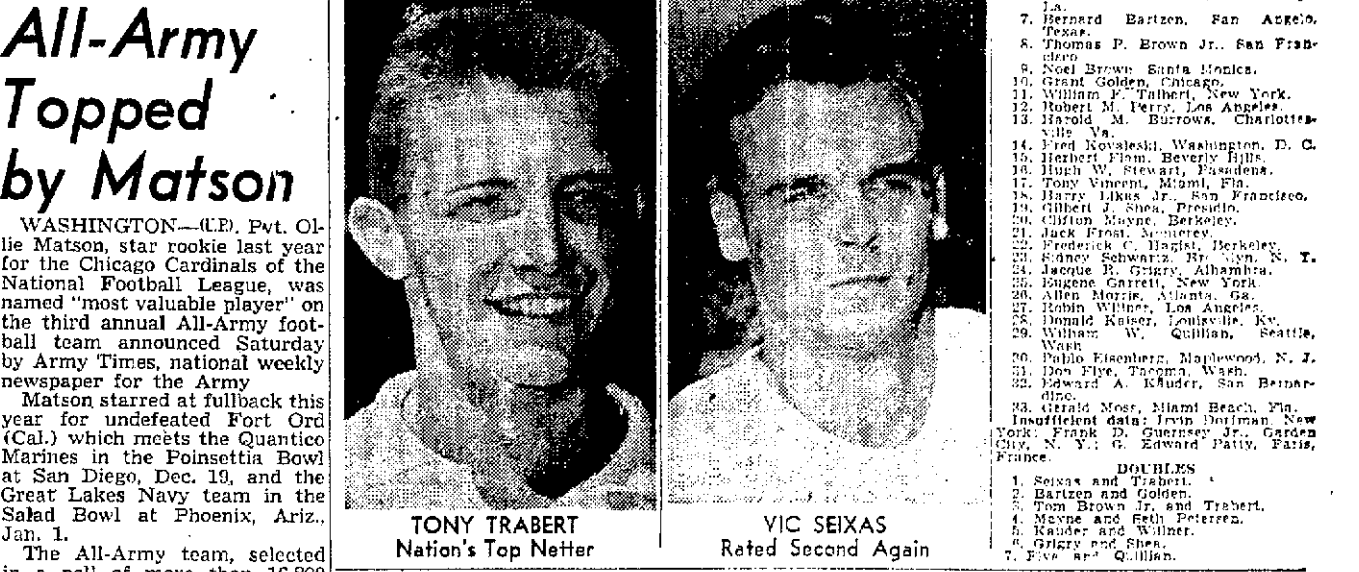

Trabert Tops U.S. Net Stars

NEW YORK—(UP). Tony Trabert, who came bouncing out of the Navy this year to win the national singles championship, was picked as the nation's No. 1 player Saturday in the 1953 rankings of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

However, in selecting the 23-year-old Cincinnati youth over Wimbledon champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the men's ranking committee of the USLTA emphasized that the selections are tentative pending the outcome of the Davis Cup matches in Australia later this month.

Trabert and Seixas are heavily favored to lead the U. S. Cup Team to victory over Belgium in the interzone finals at Brisbane next week and into the challenge round matches against Australia's defending champions at Melbourne, Dec. 28-30.

Trabert's upset victory over Seixas in the national finals at Forest Hills in September undeniably was the deciding factor in his selection as the No. 1 player. Only out of the Navy three months, he turned back

All-Army Topped by Matson

WASHINGTON—(UP). Pvt. Olie Matson, star rookie last year for the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League, was named "most valuable player" on the third annual All-Army football team announced Saturday by Army Times, national weekly newspaper for the Army.

Matson starred at fullback this year for undefeated Fort Ord (Cal.) which meets the Quantico Marines in the Poinsettia Bowl at San Diego, Dec. 19, and the Great Lakes Navy team in the Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 1.

The All-Army team, selected in a pool of more than 16,800 soldiers, and the college affiliation:

End—Pfc. Les Sugar, Fort Lee, Va. (Purdue); Pfc. Bob Langas, Fort Belvoir, Va. (Wayne U.).

Tackle—Cpl. Mike McCormack, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. (Kansas); 2d Lt. Hal Miller, Fort Lee, Va. (Clemson); Guards—2d Lt. Ted Daffin, Fort Belvoir, Va. (Tennessee); 2d Lt. Ray Beck, Fort Jackson, S. C. (Georgia); 2d Lt. George Morris, Fort Belvoir, Va. (Purdue).

Quarterback—Pfc. Ed Soregel, Camp Atterbury, Ind. (Eastern Illinois Normal).

Halfbacks—Pvt. Dave Mann, Fort Ord, Cal. (Oregon State); Pvt. Billy Sanders, Brooke Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. (Southwest Texas State); Fullback—Pvt. Olie Matson, Fort Ord, Cal. (University of San Francisco).

Bevo Scores 43 in 82-45 Victory

HILLSDALE, Mich.—(UP). Clarence (Bevo) Francis hit on 46 per cent of his shots Saturday night as he led his touring Rio Grande teammates to an 82-45 basketball victory over Hillsdale College.

The fabulous Ohio wonder was saddled with double and triple-teamed defense tactics but managed to build 43 points on 13 field goals and 17 free throws. Friday night he scored 82 against Bluffton in Ohio.

Long Beach State College hoopers have three games carded this week, highlighted by their trip to San Diego Friday and Saturday and clashes with Navy Phibs Pac and San Diego State.

Tuesday, the 49ers tackle Chapman at the National Guard Armory, Seventh and Alamitos.

San Diego's Aztecs boast perhaps their outstanding quarter in recent history, led by high-scoring Forward Bob Brady.

State will counter with its regular five of forwards, Glen Becker and Chuck Davis; center, Duane Ring, and guards, Bill Wright and Bob Seymour. All games start at 8 p. m.

Who's on Second? — Stengel Unconcerned With Two Stars

SAN FRANCISCO—(UP). Two of the major leagues' greatest second basemen, both in the prime of their athletic life, are spending the winter worrying about winning a job with the New York Yankees next spring.

One, Gerry Coleman, 28, was a hero of the 1951 World Series; the other, Billy Martin, 25, was the big star of the 1953 attraction.

"The difference is that Coleman has been with the Yankees in Korea for the last two years while his young understudy has blossomed into one of the most feared men in the American League."

The two young men, friends and neighbors who spend their winters in the San Francisco Bay Region and the summers traveling with the Yankees, aren't "mad" at each other. In fact, they have nothing but a healthy respect for the other.

ASK CASEY

"Gerry is the greatest second baseman in the world," says the usually cocky Martin, and then adds with sincere admiration (and possibly a slight tinge of remorse): "If you don't believe me, ask Casey Stengel."

Stengel, ringmaster for the five-times-in-a-row world champions, isn't saying anything right now, but he has in the past termed Coleman "the greatest double-play maker in baseball."

Coleman has been worrying about making a "comeback." After all, he has had his baseball career interrupted twice by Uncle Sam, the first time during World War II.

"It's mighty hard to come back after being away two years," he observes. "You just can't lay off that long and come back as good as ever."

Apparently he has overlooked the case of Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox outfielder, who came back at the age of 36—better than ever.

While Martin is spending the winter relaxing for the first time in his rugged young career, Coleman has been a Spartan at work. He has walked seven to eight miles every day; does push-ups; swings a bat loaded with lead at least a half-hour daily; and he has been working with spring grippers to build up the muscles in his wrists.

To most managers, having a pair of stars like Coleman and Martin to worry over would be a dream instead of a nightmare. Stengel, who also is wintering in California, isn't saying anything. But he probably has some fine plans. These are the alternatives:

BILL STILL AGILE

1—He could move out young Gil McDougald from third base and put one of the boys there. But Gil, also only 25, probably is a better third baseman than either of these fellows ever could be. And his bat is just as potent.

2—He could bench the aging but still very agile Phil Rizzuto from shortstop. But Rizzuto still is one of the finest, short-patchers in the business, although he admits that he has slowed down a bit. If this course is followed, it is probable that Coleman would make the move, because he has had considerable minor league experience at that spot. Martin has been a second baseman all his life.

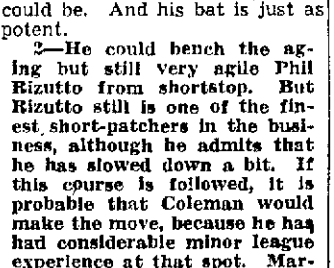

3—He could alternate the two lads at second until he finds which one is the better. (And that might take all season and ruin the records for both).

Casey, however, just sits back and grins.

He knows that such a problem as this about 15 other major league managers would like to have!

Twelve picked UCLA to win by a close margin; three picked Michigan State. The OSC players believed the UCLA line was stronger, Gregory said.

Quantico Tumbles Pendleton, 21-14

SAN DIEGO—(UP). Playing without their star halfback, John Pettibon, former Notre Dame player, the Quantico, Va., Marines ground out a 21-14 victory over a surprisingly strong Camp Pendleton team to win the U. S. Marine Corps football championship here Saturday.

Quantico used a running attack almost entirely, although it took a pair of passes by John Fry to Ken McAfee to give the Virginians the victory.

John Amberg, former Kansas University and New York Giants fullback, traveled 71 yards on an end sweep in the first three minutes of the game to give Quantico its first score.

Fry tossed 13 yards to McAfee in the second quarter for the second touchdown and then threw a 15-yard aerial in the fourth quarter for the winning marker.

Quarterback Ed Brown scored one of Camp Pendleton's touchdowns and passed for the other. In the first quarter, he tossed 43 yards to End Willie Roberts, who went the remaining three yards for the score. Brown went over a 200-yard yard out on a quarterback sneak in the fourth period to complete the scoring.

Pirie Sets Sights on Records

LONDON—(UP). Every night after the sun goes down and England's damp winter air settles in, an angry youngster who looks like he needs a square meal, goes out and runs another 23 miles.

Gordon Pirie, who is, to say the least, one of the world's strangest athletes, will run about 9500 miles this year.

Where is all that mileage getting him? What's his aim?

Pirie wants his name in track record books in the place of two other pretty fair leggers—Gundar Haegg and Emil Zatopek. Pirie wants a good size piece of fame.

Will he get his wish and depose such middle and long distance men as Haegg and Zatopek?

Pirie is an unorthodox type, but potentially he may be the world's greatest distance man in the making.

Determination is a necessary thing in a distance man, for who else but a determined man will run six, 10, 15 miles or the marathon distance. And determination is Pirie's specialty.

For several months Pirie's 28:19.4 time for the six-mile run was the world's best. Then, the magnificent Czech, Zatopek, shattered it last month with a 28:08.4 performance.

The new crushed Pirie and he's still fuming. "The breaking of my record is temporary. Only temporary," the bony legged 22-year-old said.

Pirie will take his vacation from his bank clerk job in August and go to Bern, Switzerland. There, he hopes to run against Zatopek in the European 10,000 and 5000 meters championships.

Recently Pirie said "the four minute mile shouldn't be too difficult for me."

He hasn't specialized in the mile, but on Aug. 8 gave Wes Santee of Kansas University, a beating in London with a 4:06.8 timing. Last September he ran the third fastest two mile on record in 8:47.7.

Pirie goes on a three-hour, or 25-mile, jaunt every night. He runs through woods, down roads, cross country and around a nearby track. He sprints, jogs, opens up and promptly at 9:30 trots home to bed.

CHICAGO—(AP). Paul Giel, the workhorse of Minnesota's football team who did everything for the Gophers except sell programs in front of the stadium, was named Saturday as the most valuable player in the Big Ten.
It was the second straight year Giel won the honor and the silver football that goes with the selection.

ance against Southern Methodist in a nationally televised game.

It was Lattner, here to receive the Helms trophy a few days ago, who gave the best explanation why the experts picked the star of the moderately successful Minnesota team over the star of unbeaten Notre Dame.

"At Notre Dame it was more of a team effort. Giel had to carry the whole load," Lattner said. "If we had a bad day, we all shared the blame; if Paul had a bad one, all the blame landed on him. He didn't have many bad ones."

In Minnesota's attack this season, Giel handled the ball on 345 plays of all kinds and accounted for 57.6 per cent of his team's yardage—a total of 1836 yards. He ranked sixth in the nation in the total offense statistics with 1339 yards on 291 offensive plays. He also did a fine defensive job and was the key man in Minnesota's single wing offense.

Lattner also did a terrific job, running, passing, catching passes and tackling, to become the outstanding player on the fine Notre Dame team and the winner of numerous awards, including the Heisman and Maxwell trophies.

Giel Edges Lattner for AP's Outstanding Back of Year

NEW YORK—(AP). The outstanding back of the 1953 college football season, in the eyes of the nation's sports writers and broadcasters, was Johnny—uh, uh—Paul Giel.

That's how close the decision was. When the ballots of 304 experts in the Associated Press post-season poll were tabulated Saturday and points awarded on the usual basis of three for first place, two for second and one for third, Minnesota's Giel came out ahead of Notre Dame's Johnny Lattner by just two points—527 to 525.

These two dominated the voting to the extent that it became a separate race for third place. Giel drew 110 first place votes, 79 seconds and 39 thirds. Lattner's count was 104, 88 and 37.

Most of the votes were cast before Lattner's final appearance against Southern Methodist in a nationally televised game.

INDIANS DEFEND

Collegiate Sail Title at Stake on Saturday

By BOB RUSKAUFF

That brisk something in the air these days is occasioned by fact that for most of this month intercollegiate competition will dominate the picture. The two great events are: Saturday and Sunday, the ninth Pacific Coast intercollegiate team championships, with Stanford defending and at least nine schools slated to challenge in a series of races on Newport Bay.

Dec. 29 and 30, the fourth annual Rose Regatta, with UCLA (as host) and Stanford meeting three-skipper teams from Michigan State and University of Wisconsin, also on Newport Bay.

All of the action will be out from the Newport Harbor YC which, on Dec. 26-27, will present its own traditional fixture, the Christmas Regatta.

Today, except for trials by the collegians, will be barren of any competition on the SYCA calendar. That in itself is a unique condition in this climate, where some official event is usually scheduled 52 week ends of any given year.

Three ace Long Beach sailors will comprise the Stanford array of helmsmen in the Rose Series. All "graduates" of the Alamos Bay racing, they'll include Kim Munholland and the stellar Merrill brothers, Paul and Charles.

The trio will likewise race on either A, B or C flights in the Pacific Coast intercollegiate, as defending champs.

Last year, as the three-time winners of California sagged to fourth spot among 12 schools, Stanford earned 164 points to beat out San Diego State (152) and Claremont-Pomona (144).

The big four are again entered for the week-end battle.

Likewise UCLA, USC, Pasadena City College, John Muir, Orange Coast College and probably the University of Washington. Uncertain to date are New Mexico and Santa Barbara State, which entered last year.

Bank Debits Show L.B. Leading West

Long Beach business, as measured by the flow of money payments through banks, has set the pace for the entire west coast this year, according to the Federal Reserve Bank. While complete figures were not available, tentative reports show the Long Beach business gains may top the entire nation.

The bank debits reflect all banking operations including debits to demand deposit accounts of individuals, partnerships and corporations and of states and political subdivisions. They do not necessarily reflect the complete retail business picture.

For the first 11 months Long Beach bank debits totaled $2,686,194,000 which was a gain of 23 per cent over the same period for last year.

Riverside with a 22 per cent gain was a close second but few of the major cities of the West could show comparable figures.

For the month of November the bank debits reported by the Twelfth District of the Federal Reserve showed Long Beach with a 21 per cent increase, also the highest figure percentage-wise, for the West.

L. A. GAIN 16 PER CENT
The Los Angeles debits so far this year are 16 per cent above 1952. Pasadena showed 14 per cent, the same gain as reported from Santa Barbara, Berkeley, Fresno, Oakland and Portland all showed decreases for the year.

San Francisco's gain was 3 per cent. Oakland's November reported was a decrease of 18 per cent over last year.

Boise was up 1 per cent for the year with a 3 per cent drop for November compared to the same month last year. Reno was up 6 per cent for the year and 2 per cent for the month. Salem gained 8 per cent for the year but showed a 2 per cent loss for November. Ogden had 1 per cent increase for the year and Salt Lake City 11 per cent.

The San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank said today bank debits in the 12th District totaled $13,190,805,000, up 6 per cent from November, 1952. It was the best monthly comparison since the 10 per cent gain reported for July.

Debits for the 11 months of the year were 8 per cent higher than the comparable 1952 period, having settled a little in the last two months from the 10 per cent gain at the end of September.

November gains failed to show in 13 out of 35 reporting cities.

Sales of Homes in Big Jump

Continuing to break records, real estate sales here showed a gain of 28 per cent in November over the same month last year, reports Barbara Moss, secretary-manager of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

The 1083 separate sales recorded the past month totaled $13,117,849 compared to $11,848,000 for 1026 sales in October.

For the first 11 months of the year the real estate sales for Long Beach - Lakewood have totaled $12,646 and represent $147,919,886.

"This report bears out our prediction that real estate sales this year would be better than the record-breaking sales of last year," said the secretary.

"Furthermore, there is everything to indicate that sales will continue at a record pace."

Lakewood again reflected the biggest sales, 378 properties selling for $4,646,804 last month compared to 285 costing $3,260,886 for November of 1952. In October Lakewood had 347 sales totaling $3,792,935.

Total Lakewood sales this year have been 3383 amounting to $59,884,672.

The area from Cherry Ave. to Bellflower Blvd., Anaheim north to Wardlow Rd., ranked second for the past month with 328 sales amounting to $3,709,400. There have been 2450 sales this year in that area totaling $27,642,410.

60 IN DOWNTOWN
The Wrigley area had 92 sales amounting to $1,098,345 which brings the 11-month total for that area to 1109 sales worth $11,990,210.

Downtown Long Beach had 60 sales for the month for $1,031,200. For the year the sales in the downtown area have been 788 amounting to $12,912,361.

Belmont Square sales in November were 30 for $326,100 making the 11-month total 406 sales, $6,138,830.

Belmont Heights reported 14 sales for the month worth $228,750 or 178 for the year amounting to $3,434,457.

The area from Third St. to Anaheim showed 46 sales worth $467,700 or 449 for the year worth $5,311,276.

Bixby Knolls - Country Club area had 40 sales in November amounting to $564,750. This makes 500 sales for the area this year worth $3,099,745.

North Long Beach reported 95 sales for the month and 1283 for the year. November totals were $846,800 and $11,505,694 for the year.

F. F. Shields Wins Trip to New Orleans
F. F. Shields, Long Beach representative of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., has qualified for his company's annual sales honor club. In recognition of his achievement, Shields has been invited to attend a conference at the Jung Hotel in New Orleans in January. There he will meet with more than 200 of the company's outstanding sales representatives from throughout the country to study latest developments in life insurance and accident and sickness insurance.

'House You Asked For' Still Open

"The House You Asked For," Barker Bros.' three-bedroom ranch style model home at 15 Cinnamon Lane in Portuguese Bend, Rancho Palos Verdes, has drawn more than 30,000 visitors during the first two months of its public showing.

The unusual home, which is situated on a half-acre site, will remain open through the coming holidays. Built by the Palos Verdes Corp., the home's 1800 square feet are arranged in an H shape.

The house was designed by a group of representative families who wanted a home that would be easy to care for and comfortable to live in. Their ideas resulted in a house that is radical in some respects, but with a purpose behind every feature.

Use of redwood and Palos Verdes native rock, plus the comfortable contemporary decor in black, white and turquoise by Barker Bros., echo the home's feeling of being designed for a full, leisurely life.

Park and Shop Adds Two More

Two more downtown parking lots have joined in the Park and Shop program sponsored by the Long Beach Retailers Association, according to Frederick A. Sykes, manager. They are the Victoria Auto Park, 123 W. Sixth St., and Superior Auto Park, 338 Elm Ave.

Real Estate and BUSINESS DEPARTMENT Only Few Remain

CONTRASTING TEXTURES of brick and Philippine mahogany are effectively used in living room of a Brookhurst Park Electric Award home designed and built by Henry C. Cox and Affiliated Companies at Gilbert and Lampson, Garden Grove. Offering 42 luxury features, these homes have received favorable comment in national publications. Only a few of the homes remain to be sold.

Melody Estates Opening Is Today in Garden Grove

Formal opening of Melody Estates, new Garden Grove subdivision of custom-designed, luxury-type homes, is being held today, according to Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers.

Four model homes, furnished by Lloyds of Long Beach, are open to the public on Brookhurst Ave., a quarter of a mile north of Chapman Ave.

The residences, built to FHA standards and available on FHA terms of financing, have brick exteriors and four-foot eave overhangs in a variety of architectural treatments. Thirty-foot jalousie windows with sliding glass doors, overlook covered patios and the rear yards. There are spacious planters on the patios and also inside the homes.

Large Roman brick fireplaces are included in all plans. Heating is provided by 90,000 BTU forced-air furnaces. A touch-control wiring system, with master control panel in the master bedroom for major house lights and exterior floodlights, is in each home.

There are also radio-controlled garage doors, operated by push-button in the family car.

Kitchens feature Thermador built-in electric ranges and ovens, with the latter installed at counter height. Cabinets are natural birch in streamlined design. Ceramic tile counter tops and covered linoleum floors are added features. GE garbage disposals, built-in Hotpoint dishwashers, and electric exhaust fans are other notable advantages.

Each Melody Estates residence has two baths with pastel colored fixtures and pullman-type lavatories. Baths have electric heaters and exhaust fans.

Tietz Construction Co. is owned by Mr. Tietz and Harry S. Rinker, secretary. Elmer Nelson is manager. The homes were designed by John Nelson, the manager's brother.

The company recently completed Melody Park, $1,500,000 Garden Grove development, which proved unusually successful. Melody Estates was planned to meet the demand for larger homes with additional luxury features.

Hamlet's Custom Built Homes Gain in Popularity

With the scarcity of ready financing, coupled with the rising costs of building, the Hamlet Development Co. is finding that their low priced, custom built units are finding a wide acceptance among families in Long Beach and the Harbor area.

Hamlet's practice of building custom homes on privately owned lots enables the budget conscious buyer to not only have a top quality home, but at the same time located in a community of his own choosing.

Among the units being featured by Hamlet is a two-bedroom home priced at only $6895 and this includes a long list of luxury features seldom found in homes priced so low.

Hamlet is also building a three bedroom home for only $7,995 and an income duplex unit for as low as $6,250. According to experts who have seen the homes, they are good values and a new innovation in low cost building here in the Southland.

Hamlet just placed on the market a picturesque modern home priced at only $4,950 in the contemporary modern styling.

WITH THE BUILDERS

Robertshaw-Fulton Expands Anaheim Plant; Start Soon on $4,000,000 Project Here

Ground was broken the past week for a $500,000 expansion at the Anaheim plant of the Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co. and it was announced that plans have been completed by engineers for the first buildings of the $4,000,000 Long Beach plant which will be erected near Dominguez. Work on those units will be rushed. The Long Beach plant will employ about 2000 persons.

The initial construction will be on two buildings, located just west of the intersection of Long Beach Blvd. and the Long Beach Freeway in the Del Amo Blvd. area near Dominguez.

Building No. 1 will be 130,000 square feet in area and No. 2 will be 28,000 feet. There will be an office section of stone veneer and indirect lighting.

The Anaheim Division, one of seven Robertshaw-Fulton manufacturing divisions, is the only one devoted entirely to defense production. It is engaged in the manufacture of electronic, electro-mechanical, hydraulic and pneumatic components for aircraft, guided missiles and fire-control systems.

According to President John A. Robertshaw at the Robertshaw-Fulton executive office at Greensburg, Pa., the expansion at Anaheim "will provide facilities for additional scientists, physicists and researchers in electronics and dynamics to serve the increasing needs of the nation's defense program."

The new facilities will include two research and development laboratories, an auditorium, offices and an employee cafeteria seating 250.

O. K. Earl Construction Co. of Pasadena expects to complete the addition early in 1954. The original building was erected in 1951.

Robertshaw-Fulton has another California plant at Lynwood, near Los Angeles, where the Grayson Controls division manufactures water heater thermostats, automatic safety pilots and other items.

Mark Braithwaite, 2741 Maine Ave., will erect a five-room home at 2859 Gale Ave., at a cost of $10,500.

A six-room home at 2701 E. Ocean Ave., is being built by Forrest R. Vail, 1384 Prospect Ave. It will have two brick fireplaces, mahogany and pine wainscot, sliding glass doors and built-in electric oven and stove at a cost of $18,000.

H. W. Purcell, 4249 Elm, is building a duplex next door costing $9500 with Daseo Co., Compton, doing the work.

E. E. Allenbach, 1013 Appleton St., is erecting a 1730-square-foot residence at 5460 Oleta St., costing $14,600.

Virgil Poch, 5472 Garford St., plans a $15,000 dwelling at 5483 Oleta St., of 1700 square feet.

Employment Agencies Form Organization

Formation of the South Coast Association of Employment Agencies was completed here at a dinner meeting Thursday night in Broomers. The group includes Long Beach agencies as well as those from Santa Ana, Norwalk, Compton, Hawthorne and Torrance. Robert Cushman presided at the meeting which was devoted to adoption of by-laws and a name for the organization.

Playmates Nursery Builds Addition

With construction of a new addition to the Playmates Nursery, 2650 Pacific Ave., and incorporating it with the preschool nursery, Long Beach now has a new private school consisting of kindergarten and the first grade. It is operated by Mrs. Elbe Harris with nine teachers and employees. More than 80 children, most of them children of working mothers, are now enrolled at the nursery.

Expanding Big Anaheim Plant

SPENDING $500,000 for an addition to the Anaheim plant, the Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co., also is rushing plans for its new $4,000,000 Long Beach plant. The entire wing at the right of this drawing, including the two-story section will be constructed at the Anaheim plant, located along the Santa Ana Freeway at Euclid Ave. It will house two research and development laboratories, an auditorium and a cafeteria. ## To House Richfield Departments

READY BY MARCH 1 will be the new $600,000 office building at 5900 Cherry Ave. which will house the Southern Division headquarters of the exploitation, geological and pipe line departments of the Richfield Oil Corp. This is a sketch from the office of Kenneth S. Wing, FAIA, who designed the structure. Construction is well under way.

"KING-SIZE" is the way this home is described. It is one of many four-bedroom or three-bedroom and den, two-bath, 1350-square-foot homes being offered to veterans for nothing down except costs and impounds in Lakewood Plaza "king-size" unit. Property is at Studebaker Rd. and Los Santos Dr., a mile south of Spring St., in the Lakewood district.

Aldon 'King-Sized' Homes Sales Brisk

After less than two weeks on the market, 251 four-bedroom, two-bath homes have been sold to veterans for nothing down but costs and impounds in Lakewood Plaza's new "king-size" unit at Studebaker Road and Los Santos Dr., a mile south of Spring St. in the Lakewood district.

The new unit of homes is now 50 per cent sold out, said E. (Billy) Hamburg, general sales agent.

The enthusiastic response has strengthened the Aldon Construction Company's contention that today's most pressing housing need is a larger home at a popular price.

Containing living areas of 1350 sq. ft. inside the homes, the dwellings are priced at $13,000 each. Veterans are eligible for terms of nothing down but costs and impounds and low payments.

The homes have four large bedrooms or three bedrooms and den, with two baths.

Three model homes, furnished by Aaron Schultz, are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Exteriors are completely of California redwood in a variety of details and color schemes.

Living rooms are at the rear with French glass doors. One bathroom has a stall shower, while the other has a tub.

The "queen-sized" kitchen has a built-in "convertible" dining nook-breakfast bar—buffer-desk Waste King garbage pulverator, double sink with coved and self-edged plastic tops, grease-proof asphalt tile floor, easy-to-clean washable enamel paint, and extra-large cabinets.

The homes also have custom-designed lighting fixtures, parquet block hardwood floors, and a minimum of seven closets.

The property is fully improved. Visitors may reach the "king-size" home from Long Beach by entering Lakewood Blvd. at the traffic circle, then north to Spring St., east to Studebaker Rd., and south to Los Santos Dr.

Loan problems on real estate were discussed by Adolph Seleeta, president of the Great Western Loan Co., and owner of Liberty Escrow Co., at the Wednesday luncheon meeting of the North Long Beach Real Estate Club. President Al Meyer introduced three new members, Frank and Hazel O'Farrell and Sterling O'Day. A name plate was presented by the Vista Escrow Co. ## Can-A-Pop Company Building Local Plant

Following other new industries in establishing plants in this area, the Can-A-Pop Company is constructing a $500,000 plant at Artesia Blvd. and Alameda St. with a starting capacity of 12,000,000 cases per year. Equipment will cost an additional $750,000.

The canning of pop in small tins is somewhat new in this area and the company predicts it will become highly popular since it will permit distribution of soda without picking up the empty bottles. The plant is scheduled to begin operations on March 1.

Covering nearly four acres, the plant will have 75,000 square feet of floor space. The plant has its own railroad siding for shipping to all parts of the Southwest.

Jim Ray, of Whittier, is the contractor for the Can-A-Pop building which is the only one of company to supply this area.

The completion of the plant will bring the headquarters of another large industry to this area. Can-A-Pop was first in the field, distributing canned pop in flat-top cans with much success in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. The California plant enables the company to supply this area.

BUILT AT a cost of $500,000 with an additional $750,000 for equipment, this building will house the Can-A-Pop Co. at Artesia Blvd. and Alameda St. It is another new industry locating in this fast-growing industrial area.

STRATFORD SQUARE homes like this one have been especially completed in time for occupancy by Christmas, sales agents Walker & Lee, Inc., have announced. This model features a living room on rear. Others in FHA community provide for families who like living rooms on front. A wide selection of floor plans and exteriors is available.

You Can Be 'Home for Christmas' Under Stratford Square Offering

A number of Stratford Square sales agents for the new Long Beach subdivision west of Bellflower Blvd. and south of Spring St. Cunningham & Co., the builders and developers, provided a representative selection of floor plans and exterior designs in two, three and four-bedroom sizes, he disclosed, so that a family wishing to be in a new home for Christmas would be able to find exactly the house to suit them.

STOP

As one of the relatively few 100 per cent FHA developments in this area, Stratford Square is attracting responsible people, able and willing to make reasonable down payments on their homes, Hart said.

"FHA building requirements give these families the quality of construction they want," he continued. "Cunningham & Co. have included the so-called 'custom class' features which such families expect. Living rooms front or rear, pullman-type baths, two bathrooms in three and four-bedroom residence; large, roomy kitchens with dinette areas, extra large closets and cupboards, stall showers, select oak floors, and oversized double garages are some of these."

Stratford Square has already proved that the substantial buyers drawn to the development take great pride in their homes and are exceptionally good neighbors, the sales manager added.

Stratford Square is located between Willow and 28th Sts., west of Bellflower Blvd. It is convenient to schools, churches, transportation and shopping areas. A furnished model is open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The Line's Busy

BERLIN — AP. The Western allies and the Russians have started talks on how to re-establish telephone connections between the eastern and western sectors of this city. David Maynard, deputy director of the U. S. high commission, said agreement has not been reached on some "technical questions."

WAITS FOR HARD TOP

Rodney Dee Making Gains

CHICAGO — AP. It may be months before Rodney Dee Brodie gets a hard top for his skull, but life isn't passing him by.

Rodney, now 26 months old, has made definite strides toward a happy and useful life since he was separated from his brother Roger last Dec. 17. The two infants were joined at the top of their skulls. Roger died 34 days after the delicate surgery.

Rodney is going through a period of physical, mental and emotional growth. Doctors say children of his age must be taught to do things for themselves and acquire a sense of self confidence and security if they are to develop into effective adults.

"Right now the problem of future surgery is less pressing than the need for day-to-day development of Rodney's emotions, his body and his mind," said a doctor who has been on the case from the start.

It was the hope that both or one of the twins would have a chance to live a normal life that prompted the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie, to consent to the operation a year ago.

If you visited a children's ward in the University of Illinois' Chicago Medical Center today you would see a cheerful and alert

RODNEY DEE BRODIE
Cheerful and Alert

boy busily scouting his surroundings in a wheel-equipped walker. The brown-eyed lad with a quick grin and large-size curiosity bears little resemblance to the bandage-swathed boy who for two months teetered on the brink of death while surgeons covered his brain with skin in a series of operations.

Maybe he'll center his investigations on a cupboard in the ward kitchen where food and pans are stored; tugging out a drawer of bandages to spill them on the floor, or playfully pull the drain plug out of his filled bathtub.

Or he might sight a wall thermometer just out of reach, with the remark, "What do you call that, I want that."

Whatever he does, there are no hasty shouts of "Don't," and no physical punishment.

For Rodney's proper development, doctors, nurses and physical therapists try to provide the ward with the healthy and comfortable environment a child normally finds in the home.

The "dean" of the child patients in the ward, Rodney gets love and affection, understanding and encouragement from all quarters.

HE CUDGLES UP to his parents when they visit him every other week, making a 450-mile auto trip from their downstate home in Ferris. The nurses fill in at other times.

He is encouraged to accomplish things within his limitations but there is no effort to push him beyond his capacities.

Feeding himself is one accomplishment. So is dumping a drawer full of medical supplies, even if it requires some cleaning up later.

Nevertheless, Rodney is learning all the world is not his merely for the asking. Although he is not punished physically, he is disciplined, like any other boy his age.

Rodney, now learning to walk, recently stood alone, supporting himself against a firm object. He can walk a few steps, clinging to someone's hand. His neck muscles have strengthened to a point where he can hold his head erect.

The separation operation affected the use of Rodney's left hand and leg. Although he has shown continuous improvement under a program of physical therapy, Rodney still has to look first and then give these extremities a sort of conscious mental command.

Doctors call Rodney's overall progress since the operation "reasonably satisfactory."

SHRUBS PROVE VALUABLE—in a series of automobile crash deceleration tests at Saugus, Mass., Motor Research Incorporated, proved conclusively that certain types of shrubs and bushes can save many lives and reduce injuries in highway accidents. These shrubs and bushes create a safety barrier into which cars can crash at relatively high speeds without injury to their occupants in many cases.

A primary research program covering a three year period was completed when director Andrew J. White of the safety research group drove a 1953 sedan into a planting at thirty miles per hour without the protection of a safety belt or crash helmet. These facts and others were disclosed at an informal gathering of medical scientists at an Eastern medical center. White stated, "that our original predictions made three years ago are now proven substantially correct. We stated that car occupants could be protected against injury in crash decelerations into marginal and median plantings on roads and turnpikes. Time studies of motion pictures taken during the tests, disclose no peak forces that the average person could not tolerate.

The plants form a giant energy absorbing barrier that stops an average 3000 pound car in a relatively short distance like the application of excellent brakes.

ALONG THE ROW—George Ruhe, Buick's west coast regional manager, A. H. Bilfie, general sales manager of Buick and his assistant Jerry Nash along with Joe Shaw, Los Angeles zone manager were in town last week to discuss plans for the opening of Campbell Buick's new building with Charles Campbell, president of Campbell Buick.

Sisters in Reunion Sing Songs of Old-time Wales

Tongues fly almost as fast as knitting needles these days in the Bert Rogers upstairs apartment, 4016 E. Sixth St.

Mrs. Rogers, 67, and her sister, Rebecca Williams, 68, of Bangor, North Wales, are together for the first time since September, 1911.

In the meantime there have been a couple of World Wars, their parents have died, members of the family in the United States have increased from three to 38.

As they knit, the sisters talk in Welsh about old times, and they sing the Welsh songs of their childhood. Sometimes, they admit, they sing until 2 o'clock in the morning.

"The language is coming back to me," says Mrs. Rogers. "I have not talked it for many years."

They talk about how beautiful the crocuses and the daffodils are in Wales in the spring, and they talk about the wild flowers in the winding lanes, and they talk about old friends, many of whom now are dead.

"We laugh and we sing and we cry," says Miss Williams. "They last saw each other when Mrs. Rogers, then Isabel Williams, left home to come to America to marry a childhood sweetheart. Her husband will retire this month after 25 years with the Ford Motor Co. They have a son, Albert in Los Angeles, a daughter, Mrs. DeLoy McMullin of Ogden, Utah, two grandchildren.

Miss Williams' cottage faces the Snowdonian mountains, the highest in Wales. A hospital seamstress, she saved money for seven years for this trip to America.

Air Race Office Set for C of C

Headquarters for the 1954 All-Women's Transcontinental Air Race will be in the office of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, it was announced Saturday by Lee Kirby, chairman of the chamber's aviation committee.

Long Beach was named recently as the starting point for the race, which takes place next May. The race, more familiarly known as the Powder Puff Derby, will terminate at Knoxville, Tenn.

Official arrangements for the event are under the direction of the Long Beach Chapter of 99's, a local women's pilot club, in conjunction with the national air race committee.

Long Beach was the terminus for the race last year which was flown from Lawrence, Mass.

The Chamber of Commerce and other civic groups are preparing preliminary plans for hosting the women contestants before the start of the cross-country flight.

AFTER

A patient from Long Beach writes: I had a terribly big sore on my left leg. It was 5 inches long, 2 inches wide and 1 inch deep. Under my right foot I also had a deep sore, which was so painful that I could hardly walk on it. After my first treatment from Mr. Eriksson I felt much better. After four months of treatments from Mr. Eriksson only, the sores were healed completely. Mr. Eriksson has pictures of my sore leg before and after healing. Many of my friends have watched my sores. They, too, can tell you about it.

I also have been blind in my left eye for many years which has dried completely away now. My right eye was on the same way when I started with Mr. Eriksson. I have much faith now in him for me to continue to take treatments for my right eye so I can have good sight in it again, as I have only the one eye left. Mr. Eriksson uses nothing else but his own healing hands. I want to express my many thanks to Mr. Eriksson. I highly recommend Mr. Eriksson to any one suffering with this sickness or other kinds. Mrs. M. C. Brown, 4518 Josie Ave., Long Beach. Mr. Eriksson has several hundred letters of testimonials and pictures showing the patients' condition before and after complete healing. Cases such as blindness, arthritis, lameness and eczema.

River Storage Project Asked for 5 States

WASHINGTON—(AP). Secretary of the Interior McKay Saturday recommended authorization of a revised upper Colorado River storage project in Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona with an initial construction phase estimated to cost $1,134,643,000.

The project is subject to the approval of Congress and the President, and to possible revision.

The initial phase would include three storage dams and reservoirs, including the controversial Echo Park Dam on the Green River in Utah which is bitterly opposed by conservation groups, and 13 participating irrigation projects.

The proposed Echo Park Dam would cost an estimated $176,400,000.

The other two dams would be Glen Canyon, about 13 miles upstream from Lee's Ferry on the Colorado River in Arizona, to cost about $521,300,000, and Navajo, on the San Juan River in New Mexico, estimated to cost $63,000,000.

The Interior Department said the initial phase construction, "although proposed for authorization at one time, would be staggered over a considerable number of years."

Silver Ball's Glitter Lights Holiday Skies

By BETTY WENTWORTH
Independent Women's Editor

Over many a breakfast table this morning there will be reminiscent conversations centering around the glamorous Silver Ball given by the Assistance League of Long Beach last night at the Virginia Country Club. Always an elegant highlight of the holiday season, the party was more beautiful than ever, and small wonder, since every minute detail had been worked out with the greatest of enthusiastic and careful attention.

A white velvet-suited St. Nick was stationed at the entrance and scarlet poinsettias were everywhere — on the mantel, edge in copper tubs, in huge wreaths under the balcony at the end of the lounge and on the tables tied with silver ribbon bows. Multitudes of satin ribbon bows were used on four slim, graceful Christmas trees under the marquee at the entrance. Jimmy Whelan's Orchestra played for dancing.

Ola (Mrs. Don) Murphy was chairman in charge of the gala and a vast, successful event and was receiving verbal bouquets right and left. Seated with her and Dr. Murphy at a no-host table were Dr. and Mrs. Houston Fairley, Messrs. and Mrs. Harold Appleton (Cecile was on the decoration committee and wore a wonderful silver gray nylon net gown with the bodice encrusted with sequins and pearls. Her flowers were deep rose camellias and her wrap was a silver-blue mink cape. Messrs. and Mrs. Ryan G. Whisenand, Robert Rittner, Warren, Ten Eyck, Toll Tuffill and Glen Organ.

Doris (Mrs. Ansel) Olson, president of the Assistance League, was escorted by Dave Wilkinson and was seated with Mrs. and Mrs. Rufus A. Davis, Ward G. DeWitt, Messrs. and Mrs. J. Stowe Carney, Logan H. Goodnight, Leslie J. Heedworth, and Mrs. Carol Scott. The dancing was held at the ball. Mrs. Olson was dressed in blue net and lace with a tulle skirt, waltz length.

A tradition with the League has been that provisional members are hostesses for the year party with the assistance of other members. This year's group, headed by Eva (Mrs. Milton) Arthur, were seated with their husbands with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur and were Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Kollag, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hancock and Mr. and Mrs. E. Tenyson Moore. Others at their table were Dr. and Mrs. George Hanson and Mr. and Mrs. George Van Dyke. Bea Vincent, who was in charge of reservations, chose a gown of beige silk patterned in black velvet which she wore with pearls and a black tulle evening coat. Jean Moore wore a dashing and bouffant bright red pleated nylon net with red satin bodice, gold slippers and gold jewelry.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shank were host to Messrs. and Mrs. Herman H. Ridder, Emmet Sullivan and Lou E. Peck. Mrs. Shank looked regal in a smart white beaded sheath and her white ermine wrap.

Making up a no-host group were Messrs. and Mrs. Francis Heusel, Lawrence A. Collins Sr., Marvin W. Davis, Gus A. Walker, Morris Holmquist, Ross E. Hall and Theodore Swenson. Forming another sizable group near by were Dr. and Mrs. John K. Hunter, Messrs. and Mrs. George W. Trammell, Arthur Holtz, Joseph A. Ball, Lynn O. Hosson, Frende Combs, Jack Evans of Santa Ana, Art Hall, C. Standlee Martin, Roy McCullough and Frank H. Person.

Much gay camaraderie was evident at the large table made up of Drs. and Mrs. William Woodard, Mill in champagne taffeta, with jeweled bodice and tiny spencer jacket, Phil Voigt, Messrs. and Mrs. William Macrae, E. W. Elliott, Lester Lawson, R. Sam Cameron, Donald Erb, Edwin Bechler, and Norman Lucas.

Forming another table were Messrs. and Mrs. John W. Brooks, Douglas H. Graham, Lester Callahan, Myrl Ott, Elmer L. Decker, Bill Barber, Richard Patterson, Frederick Tebbetts, Jonah Jones, Mrs. Thomas McQueen and Charles Padgett, Mrs. Mildred Braxton and Alan Asher.

More members and their guests enjoying the evening together were Drs. and Mrs. Mollard Smith, Stirling Pillsbury, Messrs. and Mrs. Dwight McFayden, George Clark, Edwin Quinn, Mrs. Lida Feltham and John Connolly, and Mrs. Phil Swaffield.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clegg entertained at cocktails in their home, before going on to the country club with their guests, Messrs. and Mrs. Richard Russell, George Hart Jr., Gordon Dougherty, Jack Merrick, Gilbert Brown, John B. Ivey, Gilbert Karst, Arthur Rene, Mrs. Marjorie Sawyer and Valie Young. All-white was worn by Marje Morrish, the gown's bodice being of lace trimmed with gold motifs and rhinestones and the long-torso skirt of taffeta. Over it she wore a duobenet velvet wrap with kolinsky collar and cuffs.

Eleven couples who dined together were Drs. and Mrs. John Rowe, Laurence Houts, Messrs. and Mrs. George J. Radenhausen, Mark L. Taylor, Harry O. Pritchard, Charles Stratton, Raymond W. Harter, Don E. Montague, Harold Beckley and William Abrams.

(Pictures taken at the Ball will run Tuesday in both papers.)

"THE CAROL OF THE LITTLE PAGAN FAUN," a Christmas fantasy, was presented by Women's Music Club in Ebell Auditorium as a community yule gift. The clever stage production was followed by the annual Christmas tea in the patio of the clubhouse, which was featured by carol singing and lovely Christmas music by the Music Club's choral and orchestra sections. Pictured above are some of those who took part in the fantasy. At center is Eddie Bragg, the little faun, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Bragg, and others (from left) are Mrs. Byron Schuster, biggest seraph; Mmes. Marshall Julian, John O. McDonald and Irvin F. Meairs, three members of the choral-speaking group; Mrs. Vincent Bailey, Mother of the Babe; Mrs. Betty Kimber and Miss Dorothy Denee Snowden, seraphs. The production was under the complete charge of Mrs. John O. McDonald. (Photo by H. S. Melvin, staff photographer.)

Work With International Flavor Interests Mrs. Jacobowsky, Exponent of U. N.

By ELAINE RISINGER

When Phil Jacobowsky jotted down his ideas on "One World" as senior speaker for his Wilson High School graduation class several years ago, his most enthusiastic adviser and listener was his mother, Mrs. Alexis V. Jacobowsky. The precepts of her son's talk caught her interest and now, six years later, Mrs. Jacobowsky is probably the United Nations' most energetic exponent in Long Beach.

Joyce Jacobowsky's calendar in her attentive Belmont Heights home is crowded with numerous dates for local meetings, conferences in the east and her official business as vice president of the Southern California State Council for American Association of the United Nations. She is in constant demand to talk before women's clubs and the job she has done acquainting residents with the problems and functions of the U. N. is invaluable.

"My interest in the U. N. is the culmination of the interests in education and religion I have had all along," Mrs. Jacobowsky explained.

"While Phil was home I spent most of my time in PTA activities, serving as president of Jefferson Junior High School unit and on the Long Beach council. I also was director of young people's activities at Emmanuel Presbyterian Church and served as president of the Women's Society of Christian Service. After he went away to Occidental College, I really became interested in U. N. work."

Her first plunge into United Nations activities came when she attended the regional conference for UNESCO in San Francisco as a delegate from Long Beach. Pausing to touch on this controversial group, Mrs. Jacobowsky commented that most persons who disapprove of UNESCO are "either misinformed or uninformed."

One of the important advantages of the U. N., she feels, is that it teaches young people to appreciate cultures different from their own. "I've never gone to an international conference that I haven't been impressed with the Indian delegation—the contribution they had to make."

And conferences, international and local, are second nature to the attractive blonde woman. Since her first convalescence in the bay city, Mrs. Jacobowsky has sat in on discussion groups, been an observer at the U. N. twice and is in the throes of planning to attend a meeting of the National Association for U. N. during March in Washington, D. C.

A past president of the local organization, Mrs. Jacobowsky's positions with the U. N. groups have run the gamut from member to chairman of U. N. work for Southern California this fall.

However, U. N. activities aren't all work and no play and throughout her travels and experiences, Mrs. Jacobowsky said she has had the opportunity to meet many of the great personages behind world history.

From these, Mrs. Jacobowsky picked Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt as "one of the outstanding personalities I have ever met." Besides seeing the former first lady at a State Department briefing session and when she served as chairman of the Human Rights Commission of the U. N., Mrs. Jacobowsky served as Mrs. Roosevelt's hostess during her recent visit to Long Beach. "She has infinite patience, humility and devotion to the job," Mrs. Jacobowsky commented.

Although U. N. work forms a major part of her efforts, Mrs. Jacobowsky still finds time for a myriad of other activities. This winter she will head the women's division of the 1954 Heart Fund sponsored by the Long Beach Heart Association, and also will serve as a member of the Board of Deacons of Emmanuel Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles County Committee of Human Relations, Southern California Council for UNESCO, Chapter CR, PEO and as vice president of the League of Women Voters. These are only a few of the civic and culture interests that won her selection to appear in Who's Who as one of the outstanding women in Southern California.

For leisure time diversion, Mrs. Jacobowsky chooses music, which she majored in at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln. "I taught public school music a year at Burbank before my marriage and have done graduate work at UCLA," she added.

Through her husband, an USC alumnus, she had become an avid sports rooter, especially where the Trojans are concerned. She keeps up an interest in her college sorority, Alpha Delta Pi, by attending the local alumnae gatherings and has served as president of the Long Beach Panhellenic. "The first scholarship program of that group was established when I was the leader," she continued.

As a final thought about her many interests, she confessed, "I do have a hell collection, but I'm not really much of a collector." Then she added, "I'm far more interested in people than in things," which statement probably more than any other sums up Mrs. Jacobowsky's attitude toward life.

MRS. ALEXIS V. JACOBOWSKY
United Nations work is her rewarding avocation.

Friends Greet Mrs. Schumann at Courtesy in Lee Home

Renewing of old acquaintances was the order of the day when Mrs. Daulton B. Lee was hostess on Wednesday afternoon at a tea from 2 to 4 o'clock honoring Mrs. Roland W. Schumann, the former Mary Gillette. Mrs. Schumann, wife of Comdr. Schumann, USN, arrived last week to visit her parents, Commodore and Mrs. Norman C. Gillette, 216 Roswell Ave., while her husband is at sea. With her is her baby daughter, Estelle, three months of age. The Schumanns have spent the past two and a half years in Washington, D. C., and Quonset Point, R. I., and will return to the latter on Comdr. Schumann's return.

Assisting Mrs. Lee receive the 75 guests were Mmes. John M. Clarke and Frederick Clarke Jr. of Sierra Madre, her sisters-in-law, and Mmes. Franklin Waters, Max Miller and John F. Craig II.

The table was laid with a red damask cloth and its central decoration was silver candelabra entwined with holly and holding white tapers. On the piano was a lovely croche brought by the hostess' mother, Mrs. Fred B. Clarke, from Oberammergau, done by the famed woodcarver, Ludwig Kraus.

Three-Fold Reception Wednesday

A party with a three-fold purpose is the reception to be given on Wednesday from 5 to 9 p. m. by Dr. and Mrs. Ben K. Parks at their home, 5280 El Roble Ave. They are feting Mrs. Parks' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam M. Smith, on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, and in addition are honoring their two sons, both of whom were married in September, and their brides.

The wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Ben King Parks (Anna Ceytlin) was an event of Sept. 12 in Paris. The former Miss Ceytlin arrived in Long Beach last Thursday. The other new-lweds, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Parks (Joan Welch), were married on Sept. 27.

Other guests were Mmes. Virgil Rothwell, Earl Todd, Glade Wall, H. L. Shannon, Robert Rittner, Jack Cassidy, Eugene Moore, Clarence Miller, Frank Reagan, Milford Smith, Houston Fairley, Elmer Todd, H. G. Appleton, all of Long Beach; Mrs. Wendell Hook of Inglewood; Mrs. John Wood of Sierra Madre; Mrs. Ted Tuffill of Balboa and Mrs. Tom Sawyer of Whittier.

Morning Wassail Delightful

Capturing the true spirit of the holidays in beautiful and imaginative style was the morning wassail party given by Mrs. Clare Hanuman and Mrs. Robert B. Avery on Wednesday morning at the Virginia Country Club. A huge English silver bowl contained the spicy and steaming wassail and set the motif for the affair. The bowl was placed on a long buffet table laid with a floor-length red tulle cloth, and surrounded by bright accents of holly and scarlet satin ribbons. Two white coach lamps swung at the club entrance.

Toasted English pound cake, baked ham on tiny biscuits, fruit cake, and gingered butter on French bread were among the delicacies served with the wassail, which set guests exclaiming with pleasurable surprise.

Assisting the hostesses receive their many guests were Mmes. Herbert Fielding, William Stanton, Rufus A. Davis, Marshall Stone, Kenneth Wing, Robert Ivey, James Frew and William Wallace.

Bridge Guests

Luncheon at the home of Mrs. Harold G. Appleton, 25 Laguna Pl., was followed by cards when she was hostess to members of her bridge club Wednesday. Her guests were Mrs. Todd Soane, Long Beach; Mrs. Wilbur Finch, Palms Verde; Mrs. DeForest Holm, San Fernando; Mmes. Dillon Stevens, Louis Eilon, George Shiley, Los Angeles; and Mrs. Joseph Hook, Pasadena.

Six Couples to Cohost Party

Six couples will co-host the holiday cocktail party Saturday night at Virginia Country Club preceding the Viennese Waltz group's evening of dancing. They are Messrs. and Mmes. Charles Evelt, Eugene Moore, Marvin Davis, Verne Garton, A. A. Carrey and Dr. and Mrs. Walter J. Fure. A three-foot Santa, all in white, will center the buffet, which will be covered in a red suede cloth. Festoons of gold tinsel and holly will add to the attractive setting. Afterwards, the couple will waltz to the music of John Brown's eight-piece orchestra.

Yuletide Customs of Other Countries Told Kiwanians

"Christmas in Many Lands" was portrayed in decor, music and entertainment last night at the buffet supper by Kiwanis Club when members entertained their wives at the annual Christmas party in Assistance League Clubhouse. Hosts for the sparkling occasion were Mr. and Mrs. F. Karl Grassie. In the receiving line were G. Thoburn Davis, Kiwanis president, Mrs. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Corcoran and the Grassies. During the evening, officers of the club assisted. Yuletide customs in other lands were related by Mrs. Grassie during the affair and music pertinent to those countries was performed by individual musicians, Theodore Corcoran, marimba; Barbara Putnam Moore, flute; Mrs. Harry Christensen, soprano, and Jerry Gillingham, piano. As guests arrived they received a tag with the name of a country thereon, and as the entertainment progressed they chose gifts from two elaborately decorated tables centered with silver trees.

Holiday Event for Charity Planned by Lakewood Women

By RUTH REECE
Press-Telegram Club Editor

A very gay event for a very serious purpose is the Christmas party of Lakewood Women's Club tomorrow in parish hall of St. Cornelius Church, 3330 Bellflower Blvd., which will climax a two-month drive to provide Christmas cheer for a number of needy families in the community.

Canned goods and staples will comprise the major part of the contributions, but additional funds have been apportioned for perishable goods and clothing.

In addition the club, which was organized less than a year ago, has asked members to bring toys for donations to the Toys for Tots drive. At the party, a Christmas turkey will be given away, under the direction of the ways and means chairman, Mrs. Regis Jeffries. There will be an exchange of gifts and a floral demonstration by a speaker from Milton's Florists.

Gene Burgoyne, chairman of the Youth Activities Corp., will show members the plans for the new youth center and will distribute tickets for the benefit dance Jan. 15 at Municipal Auditorium. All proceeds from this dance will go toward the youth project.

Mrs. Jay Bartley will assume her new duties as co-chairman of the hospitality committee, along with Mrs. Simon Hodge, and changes in the club's by-laws will be voted upon. Hostesses for the party will include Mrs. Goben Hickman, chairman, and Mrs. Kenneth Hansen, J. A. Henderson, Ray Hoffeditz and Floyd Hollister.

GOP Council

Rear Adm. Benton W. Decker, USN (ret.), will be the featured speaker at the 1 p. m. meeting of the Long Beach Council of Republican Women Wednesday in the Marine Room of the Wilton Hotel. Mrs. Logan H. Goodknight will preside.

Adm. Decker, former naval aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, recently returned from a tour of the Orient with Sen. William F. Knowland. His subject will be "What Is Wrong in the Far East."

Former Gov. Frank P. Merriam will be an honored guest, and the club will celebrate his birthday at this time, an annual custom of the council. Under the supervision of Mrs. Ralph S. Bowdler and her hospitality committee, members of the committee will serve a huge birthday cake in his honor.

Winter Visitor

Arriving Thursday to spend the winter in Long Beach at the Wilton Hotel was Mrs. Claude Bennett of South Dakota, mother of Mrs. Robert M. Devitt, of 5619 Haverty Way. Mrs. Bennett has just returned from a three-month sojourn in Europe.

The GOP Juniors, auxiliary to the council, will join the senior group at this meeting. At a brief business session at 12:30 p. m., a report of the nominating committee will be given, to be followed by the election and installation of officers.

Art Association

Long Beach Art Association announces its semi-formal holiday dinner meeting for 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Sunset Room of Pacific Coast Club. Entertainment will be offered by Miss Dorothy Minnick, one of the stars of the "Wayward Way" (The Drunkard), currently playing at the Theater Mart in Los Angeles, and by Frank Herman, magician and TV star.

Association members are marking this event on their calendars as one to which they may invite friends. Reservations are to be made as soon as possible with Miss Laurene Steven or Mrs. Virgil W. Bullock.

Bay Garden Club

Alamitos Bay Garden Club will celebrate Christmas Thursday at the home of Mrs. William Barker, 6111 E. Seaside Way. The gala event will begin at 10:30 a. m. with an exchange of gifts, a dessert luncheon and then an appropriate Christmas sketch with Mrs. Fritz Bruggemann, narrator, Mrs. Cliff Reiman, soloist, and Mrs. Clarence Norris, pianist.

Hostesses for the event will be Mrs. A. H. Bigony, Gilbert Wagner, Sidney Exley Sr., R. R. Madison, Sidney Exley Jr., Richard Stanfield, Gwendolyn Bisby Jr., Wayne Sloss and E. H. Chase.

La Media Club

La Media Club, a small organization but one with a kindly heart for the needs of others, will put aside its welfare work for a while to do something for themselves in the way of a gala Christmas dinner dance Thursday at the Wilton Hotel.

Members will be honored guests. Among those making reservations so far for this event are Messrs. and Mrs. Herschel Bennett, Jim Behrmann, Barney Bynum, Jack Cheak, John McCutcheon, Mito Meylink, James Myle, George Royce, Ben Sloan, Tom Sykes, David Williams and Paul Ziegler. Plans were completed for the dance at a recent meeting with Mrs. Sloan in her home, 5722 Mezzanine Way.

The club's president, Mrs. Tom Sykes, will present to the Salvation Army a group of baby dolls and layettes to be given to children and expectant mothers whom members of La Media Club support. The club also has adopted a family for Christmas and will provide them with toys, clothing and food.

DAR Chapter

Traditional over the years has been the appearance of Marion Darlington, whistler, and Don Pratt, cornetist, at the Christmas meeting of Western Shores Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, to provide the familiar and beloved Christmas music for the chapter and its many guests. This year's holiday party and program is set for noon Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel.

'Christmas Around World' Theme of Opti-Mrs. Party

"Christmas Around the World" was the theme of Opti-Mrs. December meeting and Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Russell V. Fisher, 655 Terraine Ave. Assisting Mrs. Fisher as co-hostesses were Mrs. Charles F. Degle, George O. Durham, Philip L. Ellithorpe, Lloyd Shidler, Russell Smirl and Edward Wolff.

Members arrived with gifts, some to exchange among themselves, and others of toys and food for needy families annually adopted by Opti-Mrs. during the holiday season.

Each of the luncheon tables was centered by an elaborate scene representative of the various countries portrayed. One of the outstanding arrangements was that typifying Norway as expressed by a figure on skis poised on a snow-covered slope against a background of evergreens and titled "Snow Queen." Another was the "Toy Maker," a cheerful little wooden man, surrounded by tiny carved toys depicting Christmas in Germany, while the setting for Christmas in Hawaii was an exotic miniature tropical garden called "Island Paradise." A life-like doll in clan plaid piped carols on her pibroch amid snow and heather to represent Scotland as "Annie Laurie." Other scenes, equally charming, showed bits of an English garden, Switzerland, China, France, America, India, and the mythical country of Optiland.

During luncheon, Miss Deanna Fisher played Christmas music on the organ.

The business meeting conducted by Mrs. Garland W. Moore, president, opened with a reading of the Optimist creed by Mrs. Roscoe Brewer, Mrs. Kirt G. Parks reported on the three Thanksgiving baskets given to three families, and Mrs. Verl Keiser, welfare chairman, led a discussion concerning the club's Christmas projects. It was decided to give $125 through the Long Beach Clearing House in addition to canned foods and toys. The club voted to give each boy at the Optimist home an athletic shirt as a Christmas gift.

Mrs. Hal A. Hunter announced that the reception was at the home

A hum of delighted comment arose at the coffee buffet on Thursday morning given by Mrs. William Harold Cree and her daughter, Bette Cree, when arriving guests were presented with announcements containing news of the betrothal of Miss Cree and William Cleveland Edwards.

The charming blonde bride-elect, daughter of Mrs. Cree, 4256 Pacific Ave., and the late Mr. Cree, is a third-generation Californian. She was graduated from Polytechnic High School and received her master of arts degree from Stanford University. She has been a teacher at Polytechnic and for the past two years, a counselor at Wilson High School. An active member of the Junior League of Long Beach and a member of Bachelorettes, she has returned recently from a six-week tour of South America.

Miss Cree's fiancé whom she has known since childhood days, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland T. Edwards, 4286 Country Club Dr. He attended Polytechnic High School and was graduated from New Mexico Military Institute. At Stanford where he was affiliated with Beta Theta Pi, he was granted his bachelor of arts degree, and received his master of arts, with distinction, from Harvard School of Business Administration. He is now a petroleum engineer with the Standard Oil Co. at La Habra.

The wedding is planned for early spring. The party at which the announcement was made was given in the Cree home in honor of Mrs. William H. Cree Jr., daughter-in-law of the hostess, for the purpose of introducing her to the multitude of friends of the Cree family in Long Beach.

The junior Cree's marriage took place four years ago, but they have been living in Los Angeles where he has been attending law school. He has now begun his practice here and they, with small son, William III, 2, are residing at 3752 Locust Ave. Young Mrs. Cree, the former Nancy Forgrave, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leon Paul Forgrave of St. Joseph, Mo. She and Bette were classmates at Scripps and she will be Bette's matron of honor.

Greeting guests at the door and presenting them with the betrothal news was Mrs. Hugh Scott Goodfellow (Marjorie Merrell) of San Francisco. In the receiving line were Mrs. Cree, senior and junior; Mrs. Edwards, mother of the future bridegroom, and Miss Cree.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. John Buol, Ruth Craig Merrell, Sam Magill, Chester F. Yunker, Rufus A. Davis, James G. Craig and Henry Jonas (Joanne Boice). An effective silver and white theme was employed in the decor.

Honeymoon at Carmel

A honeymoon trip to Carmel of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mc-by the Sea followed the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Margaret Ellen Slaven, 1042 Gaviota Ave., and Robert O. Bingham, 540 Junipero Ave., son of Mrs. Gertrude Bingham, 3904 E. Fourth St.

Given in marriage by her brother, Emmet Slaven, the bride was wearing a white ball-length gown. Completing her ensemble was a fingertip-length veil with an orange blossom crown. She carried white carnations and stephanotis.

In the wedding party were Rita Churney, maid of honor; Joseph Haines, best man; Edward Malone and Charles Geary, ushers.

Betty Webb Fall Bride

Chantilly lace and tulle over white satin were worn by Miss Betty Webb, daughter of the Andrew A. Webbs, for her marriage to Manuel J. Bourgeois, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bourgeois Sr., all of Bellflower. The ceremony took place at Lakewood Village Community Church with Rev. W. R. Hall officiating.

The bride's flowers were a white orchid, white carnations and stephanotis.

In the wedding party were Phyllis Brooks, matron of honor; Samuel Bourgeois Jr., best man; Marilyn Webb, Pat Goodhart and Bertha Phillips, bridesmaids; James Bourgeois, ushers.

Again Tri Deltas were happy to present to the Medical Research Fund a check for $6000.

Holiday Dance Aids Welfare

Los Altos Women's Club dance in the Marine Room of the Willon Hotel was a very successful event for the club, with many members and their guests dancing until a late hour to music by Burrell Ubben and his orchestra. Receiving at the door were Mr. and Mrs. George Christensen and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lemmon. Mrs. Christensen was gown in seafoam green nylon tulle over tulle. Mrs. Lemmon wore a fitted black metallic brocade accented by white. Many cocktail parties preceded the gala affair.

The ballroom was beautifully decorated with large wreaths and a decorated tree. Guests found small favors at each festive table. Mrs. William J. Daley wore white nylon net; Mrs. John Cleveland chose a rose and blue plaid taffeta with gathered skirt. Miss Vallery White was gown in pink tulle with satin edging and Mrs. D. E. Tannehill was in blue lace.

Mrs. Merle Goldsby, president, wore a gown of fitted mauve lace with flared tunic overskirt. Assisting her with the distribution of gifts was the vice president, Mrs. Carl Hanikins.

Mrs. Christensen, chairman of the dance, announces that the net proceeds amounted to $408.96 and a check in this amount will be deposited by the club treasurer, Mrs. Kermit Moore, in the Los Altos Women's Club youth fund. Merchants assisted with various awards.

The dance committee, all new members, who worked tirelessly to make the event a success, was composed of Mmes. Christensen, William D. McFadden, William R. Quigley, Russell Lemmon, David Lewis, Gene C. Barnes, R. G. Beckstrand, Edward L. Sowman and Dale Weise.

Reception to Honor Ivah Jones

Mrs. Ivah Z. Jones, newly elected national president of Blue Star Mothers of America at a recent convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., will be honored Wednesday at a reception and luncheon by all chapters and Department of California.

The event will begin at noon at the Victor Hugo. In the receiving line will be her elected and appointed officers and chairman of California. They include Audrey Jonechat of Los Angeles, third vice president; and from Long Beach, Florence Hackett, corresponding secretary; Jean Forker, parliamentarian; Anita Elder, conductress; Helen Sullivan, president's aid; Odess Mitchell, co-chairman of by-laws and ritual; Mable Rochford, co-chairman of publicity; Agnes E. Reed, chairman of rehabilitation; Mildred Anderson, co-chairman of servicemen's hospitality.

Others are Eva Johnston of Wilmington, welfare chairman; Althea Redwine of Lynwood, assistant choir director; Leila Huddleson, Indian relief chairman; Pearl Gifford of Huntington Beach, community service co-chairman; Grace Bots of Bellflower, Bundles for Korea co-chairman; Irene Uhl of Rosemead, chaplain's emergency fund chairman; and Augusta Wimberly of San Gabriel, color guard.

Roberts and her committee as well as president Evelyn McNeice promise one of the best and jolliest affairs of the year with lots of entertainment, the traditional gift exchange between members, singing, and delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Cleo Weinstein and Aaron Hale will top the program with some of the secretaries themselves contributing to the gala program.

Other Christmas activities on the agenda for the secretaries include a holiday visit to Long Beach General Hospital and delivering gifts to the wards. This will be done on Dec. 21 under the direction of Zillah Goodyear and her committee.

The executive board will also celebrate the season with a party next Friday at the home of Doris Anderson.

Good parties are abundant this time of year and news of another one reached my desk this week. It is the Executive Secretaries' annual Christmas affair which will take place Dec. 21 at the Apple Valley Steak House.

Cocktails at 6:30 p. m. will precede an evening of informal fun. Dinner for this particular party is a treat from the club to its members and money for this long awaited affair has been raised throughout the year by the auctioning of gifts brought back by members from the various vacation playgrounds where they spent their holidays.

Ouida Plack is chairman in charge and working with her on arrangements for the appearance of Santa Claus, a lovely tree, and the gift exchange are Anne Barrows, Thelma Pettit, Eva Belle and Ruth Foster.

Apple Valley Steak House featured in another Christmas party this week. On Tuesday to be exact, when National Secretaries held their annual traditional party there. Chairman of the affair was Glea Robinson and president Betty Mahoney presided during the all-fun evening.

The tables were decorated with spicy pine boughs and cones and glowing each were snow men flanked by tall red and white tapers.

As members entered they placed gifts underneath a gaily decorated tree and later, with the opening of each gift, secret sisters for the year were revealed. One of the gayest highlights of a perfect evening was the bouncing, jolly Santa Claus who eventually allowed "himself" to be identified as popular Gertie Drago.

It isn't only Christmas that has created a festive mood this week—particularly in Belmont Shore where the opening of the new Bank of Belmont Shore (officially this takes place tomorrow) has been celebrated by several functions.

One occurred on Tuesday when all the women employees were feted by the bank at a fashion luncheon at Hoefly's. A special table was reserved for Evelyn Aline, Pauline Bloom, Katherine Bonnette, Virginia Lee Ford, Ilif Gauthier, Jo Ann Londeree, Grace Lund, Milliecent Mullan and Nancy Persons as well as for Mrs. Nester Studley, only woman director of the new bank.

This table was decorated with white and red blossoms and streamers of silk ribbon leading to each place setting with the name of each guest printed in silver at the end of each streamer.

A pre-holiday visit from friends, "Babe" and Korny Thomas of Prescott, Ariz., was enjoyed recently by Lucille and Ernest Kruse. Lucille and "Babe" were former school-mates.

Reciprocity Day Staged

Reciprocity Day, one of the loveliest meetings of the year for Torrance Woman's Club, was presided over by Mrs. Grover C. VanDeventer. The annual affair honored federation officers and representatives of clubs in near-by cities.

Representing Mrs. George Cornelius, president of Los Angeles District, CFWC, was Mrs. C. W. Bozley, district auditor. Mrs. Tracy Fowell, district parliamentarian, and Mrs. Elsie Ries, Los Angeles County Federation regional supervisor, also were honored guests.

Mrs. B. Taylor Whitney, hostess club hospitality chairman, with the president, welcomed the guests and members of the board, and committee chairmen served as hostesses.

A Christmas theme was used by Mrs. Victor Benard and Mrs. Nicholas Gregory, decoration chairmen, and birthdays of members were observed in a special manner.

The afternoon program, introduced by Mrs. F. P. Foley, was outstanding with presentations by the "Four Tones," record and television artists.

Stag Party Staged for 'Merrie' Gents

By IOLA MASTERSON

"Ye merrie gentlemen" gathered around ye merrie wassail bowl Friday night at the University Club to celebrate ye merrie season. Every year about this time "ye merrie gentlemen" do this and every year they have a "merrie" time with their annual stag cocktail and buffet party.

This year's event rested on the shoulders of Phil Clark, Don Erb, Jim Evans and Bob Mulvey and they did a bang up job. We know this to be true because some of the guys are still wearing icebags on their noggins to prove it!

Fun-for-a-day for all the women golfers of the Virginia Country Club next Friday and that's for sure as golf chairman Rose Northrup, party chairman Ann Molino and the committee are as hard at work as Santa Claus' helpers to make it the best of the season.

There will be a nine-hole tournament followed by Christmas cheer, luncheon, and an exchange of gifts. Men, beware! There could be as many as 70 women golfers on the course next Friday!

Curry to feast upon and an engaged couple to chide made for an evening of good times and fun when Nancy and Myrl Ott and their daughter and son-in-law, "Bindy" and John Vosburg, co-hosted at an intimate dinner party for a few close friends in honor of Ann De Freece and Bob Hopkins at the Ott home Friday.

A bride and groom conversation piece centered the buffet table and there, as elsewhere in the house, masses of snow white chrysanthemums were used for decoration.

Good to see Gretchen and Herb Chase moving merrily about Long Beach streets again. They're here for their annual over-the-holidays visit from Glacier Park, Mont., and they'll probably be around a couple of months in all.

A certain set of men are going to find out why their buttons are never sewed back on and why their socks are never mended and they are going to find it out in a very pleasant way when they are entertained by the sewing club to which their wives belong.

It all takes place next Saturday night at Bobbie and Greer Thompsons and, if possible, it will be even more fun than regular "sewing" (Ra!) days!

It will be Christmas in San Francisco for Genevieve Duncan, who left last week to join husband, Gen. Claude Duncan in the bay area, not only for the holidays but the entire winter. Claude, as you know, is stationed at Hamilton Air Base these days.

A gift to all of Long Beach from the Community Players—and what a present it is! Their new comedy, "Harvey," is their holiday show which began Friday and will play until Jan. 30 and you couldn't ask for anything jollier to happen to the merriest season of all! Sal Mungo in the lead is a happy choice to portray the lovable Elwood P. Dowd, and nipping at his heels for the affection of the audiences are Agnes Hoyt as his sister and big Don Reese as Wilson, the attendant.

Another tidbit of Community Players news concerns the annual Christmas party which will be a costume affair Dec. 20 at the Playhouse. Guests are to wear costumes depicting a favorite play character or representing the title of a play.

Clara Charron is chairman with Martha Knowles in charge of the dinner arrangements. All this was planned last Sunday when the executive board of the Players had buffet dinner and business meeting at the home of Florence Cole and Dr. Orville Cole. Howard Conrad and Mrs. Conrad were welcomed to this meeting—the first for Howard, newest member of the board.

Ruth and John Munday and the three boys, John, Jim and Jeff, are probably on their way by now for a white Christmas. At least, that's what the three boys are wishing for as they head for the holidays in Oklahoma City and a visit with Ruth's mother, Mrs. Garvin Atkins.

Marylou and Lloyd Hilligoss whipped up a memorable buffet supper Friday night for guests Charlotte and Pat Reynolds, Dorothy and "Alex" Alexander, and Coralee and Bill Street. Following the last sip of coffee they all whizzed over to become part of first night audience of "Harvey."

Capital Aglow With Navy Fetes

By VIRGINIA KELLY
Washington Correspondent

Friends, old and new, personal and official, formed the line of 650 guests who paid their respects at the reception given in honor of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Radford, and Mrs. Radford by the secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

At the Ft. McNair Officers Club fete, Adm. and Mrs. Radford with their usual remarkable vitality, stood throughout the entire party. Mrs. Radford wore a most becoming gown of black crepe fashioned on sheath lines with fishtail drapery and a bodice of black lace.

The hosts took their turns receiving with the honor guests. In the absence of Navy Secretary Anderson and Mrs. Anderson the Navy was represented by the tall, young—and newly appointed Undersecretary—Thomas S. Gates and Mrs. Gates.

Mrs. Charles E. Wilson (wife of the Defense Secretary) and Mrs. Arthur Summerfield (wife of the Postmaster General) came together and later went down the line with Secretary Wilson, Army Chief of Staff Gen. Ridgway and Mrs. Ridgway greeted friends on all sides. Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Twining and Mrs. Twining were surrounded by old friends before they hurried off to the dinner party being given by the chief of Naval Operations, Adm. Carney, and Mrs. Carney.

The Carneys were unable to attend the reception because of their own party at their Naval Observatory quarters.

At the reception, a long-time family friend, Rear Adm.

Stuart (Sunshine) Murray of Honolulu told me that Mrs. Murray did not come to Washington because she was visiting "the children," who are stationed at the Naval Postgraduate School at Monterey.

Another good friend, Rear Adm. George Dyer, 11th Naval District Commandant, said that Mrs. Dyer had left the night before to visit her mother in the middle west before returning to San Diego.

In the company were Western Sea Frontier Commandant, Vice Adm. Low and Eastern Sea Frontier Commandant, Vice Adm. DuBose plus all of the visiting commandants from the naval districts.

Catholic University professor, Msgr. Shuby confided just how much he had enjoyed his duty when stationed as district chaplain in Honolulu.

Candy Canes Featured as Decor

First Nighters gathered for their Christmas dinner dance Friday at Pacific Coast Club.

Candy canes and snowmen were featured in decorations, and organ music was played by Mrs. Joseph B. Riddick. The group joined in singing Christmas carols. Santa Claus was there to distribute gifts.

Master of ceremony was Bill Baker and the following were hosts: Bill Sawyer, Douglas Berg, David Mulford, Marilyn Akin, Sue Ellen Dikeman and Gayle Andrews.

Her fingertip-length veil was caught in a beaded tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley, and hollyhock.

Mrs. Alonzo Parker Haines, Jr. attended her sister as matron of honor. Her waltz-length gown was of pale green taffeta and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Calvin Arthur Hicks, attendant, wore a similar gown of dusty pink taffeta and her bouquet was of pink carnations.

Sidney J. Berkowitz attended.

Breakfast

Chi Chapter, Tau Phi Lambda Sorority of the Supreme Forest Woodmen's Circle, had a "come as you are breakfast" at the home of Verna Burgess. Co-hostesses were Louise Sowden and Elaine Pukop.

Mr., Mrs. Moen Fly to Mexico City

Mrs. John Thomas Moen

A rose gown, waltz-length, with bouffant taffeta and Chantilly lace skirt embroidered with sequins was chosen by Avis A. Frederickson for her marriage Saturday afternoon to John Thomas Moen. The couple are flying to Mexico City for their honeymoon. They will reside at 1950 Knoxville Ave. after Jan. 1.

Accented the gown was a cummerbund, and on her head she wore a rose jeweled cap. Her flowers were lily-of-the-valleys centered with three pink orchids.

Daughter of Mrs. Alice Catherine Wee, 165-A Prospect Ave., the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Fred J. Hawley. Her attendant was Mrs. Hawley.

The son of Rear Adm. and Mrs. Thomas Moen, 4200 Theresa St., asked his father to be best man. Ushers were Orlin C. Peterson, Richard E. Goethals, Rodney F. Arvidson, William Oldknow and Robert Spicer. Barbara Peterson was flower girl. Rev. Erich Oelschlagel performed the ceremony at First Lutheran Church.

The wedding reception was at the Towne Club where hostesses were Mrs. Richard Goethals and Mrs. Wilbert Brennan.

The bridegroom's mother greeted guests in a dinner gown in a watermelon shade. Mrs. Wee's gown was pink and brown changeable taffeta. Both wore orchid corsages.

The new Mrs. Moen, a member of Legal Secretaries, attended high school in Minnesota and was graduated from business college in Fargo, N. D. The bridegroom attended high school in Honolulu and the University of Montana. He received his bachelor of arts and bachelor of law degrees from USC. ## Knight's Chapel Setting for Mayes-DeWitt Vows

An archway entwined with chrysanthemums in full colors, and the soft glow of candlelight formed the setting for the marriage vows of Miss Frances Evelyn DeWitt and Robert L. Mayes in Knight's Chapel, First Baptist Church, Dr. Winfield Edson performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of more than 200 guests.

The bride, radiant in traditional white satin and lace, her fingertip veil of tulle held by a Juliet cap embroidered in pearls, was escorted to the altar by her father, Dwight F. DeWitt of Monett, Mo. She was attended by Miss Lela Calloway, maid of honor; Mrs. David Chumel of Ventura and Miss Margaret McFarley of Redlands, bridesmaids. Miss Mary Alice DeWitt of Monett and Miss Linda DeWitt of Phoenix, sister and cousin of the bride, respectively, lighted the candles. Stanley Peter served as best man; Richard Walner, Lt. (jg) USN, and Kenneth Mayes ushered. Little Karen Rescorla was flower girl.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Dorothy Fisher, grandmother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight F. DeWitt and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Mayes received guests with the bride and bridegroom. ## Newspaper Editorials Good Reading for High Schoolers

By ANGELO PATRI

Boys and girls of high school age and all those in junior high should make the most of their reading time. For it helps them to understand it better and better, and think in it. These young people have passed the picture-book stage; we hope, but some of them always reach for the "funnies" and give actual news of the moment scant attention.

Reading the newspaper is a privilege Americans enjoy, but many of us take it too much for granted, never giving a thought to the deep appreciation we owe to the freedom of the press. Teachers and parents would do well to direct the attention of children to that which is educational in the newspaper.

One of the easiest ways for our older boys and girls to become increasingly better acquainted with the English language is by reading the daily paper. Their attention should be called to the editorial columns, where they will find expertly written opinions on the news of the world. Reading these columns inspires thinking. Though some of these articles are controversial, there are always others that are not and which can be used by teachers in the English classes.

Reading of a newspaper to pupils is very helpful in English composition classes. Studying an editorial can be most enlightening. Pupils can get away from slang and learn the precise words to use, the punctuation, the avoidance of tautology -- the repetition of the same words, or synonymous words -- and simplicity of expression.

Teen-age boys and girls should devote their time to reading that which improves their education and their thinking. A good newspaper, a good magazine or a good book -- they are not only helpful in the classroom, but also in the home. Parents and teachers can discuss such reading matter with the youngsters. They are a means by which we lead young people to think for themselves, or, if you will, improve their minds.

Seventy-five guests were gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Riddick last Sunday evening and heard the surprise announcement of the engagement of the couple's daughter, Mary Ann, to J. Mark McDonald. Of double interest was the fact that it was the 30th wedding anniversary of the hosts.

Guest of honor was Mrs. Grace B. Henry who had given the announcement party of the engagement of the parents many years ago. Miss Riddick was graduated from Poly High School and is an alumna of Pomona College where she majored in music history. She has done graduate work at Whittier College in elementary education, has taught school in Anaheim, and is now a teacher at Buffum School. A miniature bride and groom beneath a floral archway, an arrangement of white double stock, white hybrid delphiniums and white carnations decorated the buffet table, presided over by Mmes. Grace B. Henry, Walter Sheek, Albert Davis, John P. Davis and William McMullen.

On the grand piano was an arrangement of strelitzia reginae, purple water lilies and pansies. The bride-elect and her mother wore matching corsages of strelitzia.

Yule Party Gala Event

Group Q of Ebell Club was entertained at a Christmas party at the home of former Gov. Frank H. Meriam, 20 Lindero Ave. The hostesses were Mmes. Frank H. Meriam Jr., and J. D. Cross.

Mrs. Meriam had decorated the doors with swaying groups of Christmas bells and had made a decoration of different shaded large green candles and gold baubles for the piano top. Mrs. Cross had glittering place cards and tiny trees at each place, while Mrs. Meriam had a cluster of red bells swaying from the chandelier over an arrangement of poinsettias which centered the dining table.

Mrs. Alvan B. Nix said the invocation. After luncheon the group gathered in the living room before the fireplace, where a large luminous Santa presided over an interesting collection of pearly wrapped Christmas gifts. The mantel was decked with pine cones, tapers, holly and mistletoe.

After the distribution of the gifts, Mrs. Cross played a medley of selections on the marimba, accompanied on the piano by a guest, Mrs. Opal Benedict.

The group sang Christmas carols and played games during the afternoon.

Mrs. J. K. Sutton, treasurer, reported the card party given by Ebell and sponsored by Group Q had been a financial success.

Gowned in traditional candlelight satin, Miss Carol Ann Tindale approached the altar of North Long Beach Methodist Church to become the bride of James Morgan O'Brien. Rev. Roy C. Mason solemnized the nuptial service.

The ballerina-length bridal gown was fashioned with an overskirt and bodice of Chantilly lace and a nylon pleated front panel. Her veil of illusion fell from a cloche of Chantilly lace encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones. Completing her attire was a white orchid and lilies of the valley carried on a prayer book.

The former Miss Tindale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Tindale, 3730 Gaviota Ave. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Brien, 2321 Roswell Ave.

In the wedding party were Mrs. Robert Conner, matron of honor; Dwight Foster, best man; Barbara Kimme and Suzanne Routh, bridesmaids; and Charles Winslow and Richard Powell, ushers.

After a church reception the newly married couple left for a honeymoon trip to Laguna.

They will reside at the Gaviota address.

The new Mrs. O'Brien attended Jordan High, Long Beach City College and is a senior at Long Beach State College. At City College she was a member of Panmix, Kappa and received the Viking Award and the Five-Jewel Award. At State College she is affiliated with Chi Delta Delta. She is also a past worthy adviser of Rainbow Girls and a new member of Mar Vista Chapter OES.

Now serving in the Army, the bridegroom attended Wilson High, City College and State College. At City College he was a member of the varsity basketball team, the student body cabinet and Supporters. His fraternity at State College was Sigma Epsilon Chi.

Housewives will welcome a pencil that writes on glass and eliminates the need for labeling jars of preserves. Another kind of pencil does away with the old method of identifying garden vegetables with the seed packet. Using this moisture-resistant pencil, employed by professional nurserymen, the home gardener can tag her plants and doesn't have to worry about the rain erasing the name.

Give Your Little Miss a Perky Playmate

When your little girl opens her presents Christmas morning, her eyes will linger longest on her new doll who promises many hours of happy playtime ahead. All the dolls pictured above have hair that can be washed, combed, curled, waved.

The little nurse is in an authentic uniform and carries a first aid kit with a make-believe watch, scissors, bandages, adhesive, thermometer and even hypo needle.

You can complete the picture for your youngster by making her a white apron and cap as shown.

Want your little miss to have a dress exactly like her dollie's? You can make a matching outfit for her from a McCall's pattern.

The queenly doll in a beautiful cotton dress is named Sweet Sue. Her dress is made of lace and nylon tulle over a well-ruffled petticoat. Her feet twinkle in silver dance slippers, and she is wearing a pearl band in her hair.

Imitate a Successful Man's Life If You Are a Failure

By DR. GEORGE W. CRAIN

Case J-366: Henry D., aged 34, originally studied to be a chemist but later changed to the ministry.

"Dr. Crane, Henry is a brilliant man, and finished the seminary with high honors," one of his clerical colleagues informed me.

"But he lacks what you call 'horse sense' or social gumption, so his parishioners dislike him, and have bluntly told him that they will be unable to raise the money for his salary if he returns to them next year."

"Let me give you an example. Henry makes an agenda of his duties through the day. And he insists on sticking to his schedule, regardless."

"A few weeks ago, however, the ladies' society of his church had raised money to install a large congooleum rug in the basement."

"But when the truck arrived, the rug was too heavy and awkward for the truck driver to handle it alone. So he asked the ladies, who were having a meeting that day in the church, if there wasn't some man who could help unload the rug."

"Well, the parsonage was next door to the church, so a couple of the ladies ran over to ask the clergyman's wife if her husband could help lift the rug off the truck."

"She said she'd consult his agenda. 'No, I'm sorry, but he can't help for he insists on not being disturbed between 9 and 11:30 each morning,' his wife replied, 'for that is his time for study of his sermon.'"

"Naturally, the ladies were irate. They figured that they had worked hard and sacrificed time to purchase the big congooleum rug, so surely the pastor could take off 15 minutes to help carry it into the church."

"And that's just one example of his lack of tact. He seems as inept at dealing with people as a kindergarten child. What makes a grown man so stupid in the field of human relations?"

And my answer is simply "lack of attention and drill." You can also live with a piano in your house, yet never be able to bring forth melody therefrom, unless you specifically study piano lessons and practice for many hours.

By the same token, you can

Date-Bait Set Queries Santa on Yule Etiquette

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press Newfeatures.

Santa is loaded with Christmas mail from his little snow-bellies and rain-dears, to say nothing of the queries he gets from puzzled student princes. Girl and boy relationships create confusion for the date-bait set at any time of the year. But all the more at holiday time when the uncertainties of the puppy-love world are in a whirl of mistletoe and tinsel.

Ol' St. Nick is always willing to help his Christmas angels keep their wings shiny, so here's how he and Mrs. Claus solve some problems:

Q: I've been going out with a girl for six months, not steady, but at frequent intervals. What kind of gift can I give her that will not appear too personal?

A: Perfume is an ideal gift because it has a personal touch but is not too personal—if the quantity given is small. A large expensive bottle, however, puts the gift in another category.

Q: A girl who is new in our set is giving a Christmas party for our own crowd. Does this mean that a gift should be brought for each person included to the party, for the hostess alone, or for no one?

A: Whatever gift is given the hostess should be small, and it should certainly not be necessary to give all the guests a gift. Lots of fun, however, is the idea of the Christmas grab bag. Consult the hostess and suggest that each invited guest might enjoy bringing a little gift for the grab bag. There should be a maximum amount suggested for the gift so that some do not bring too expensive presents.

Q: A girl friend of mine who lives in another city has invited me to spend the holidays with her. I would like to go but hesitate to tell my family. They will be disappointed if I don't spend Christmas day with them.

A: Why can't you spend the day with your family, and visit your friend the following days. One missing chick in a family away from the fire-side can put a damper on everybody's fun. You'd miss your family, too, when you observe the family happiness of the other household.

Q: I became great friends with my Army buddy. Now that we are both out, we see a good deal of each other. He is engaged to be married, and has his guns sighted for a match between his sister and me. I have given him gifts on special days, but I feel strange about it now. I expect to spend Christmas day with his family and should bring his mother a little token, too. But what do I do about the sister? I am not interested in her at all and would not like to encourage her by bringing her a gift. Will she be insulted?

A: Heavens to Betsy, why should she be? If you haven't shown willingness to date her and see her only when you visit her home, she certainly must not take you for granted. It would be silly for you to give her a gift. There is no reason why you shouldn't give your buddy and his Mom something, if you feel like it.

Chef of the Week

Super Sales Executive Joins Culinary Experts

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
(Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor)

His idea of a wonderful evening is a good dinner—a seat in the big chair to view a sports event on TV, a snooze, and then a reminder that it's 10:30 and time to continue that snooze in a horizontal position.

Chef of the Week Lester D. Lawson's unique brand of humor is evidenced by the manner in which he met his wife—she made contact with a mad puddle, much to his amusement and her amazement. His rare sales ability is evidenced by the fact that his sincere apology made things right—prompted their first date and a voiced "aye" from the lady to his proposal of marriage in due time. This marvelous humor is complemented by a "Bing Crosby" (no less) singing voice and a pair of nimble feet upon a dance floor.

His "child prodigy" propensities are revealed by his receiving the "winner's" cup at the age of 12 for a 9-hole round of golf—his achievement of the "dissolving" bathing trunks while swimming in a geyser at Yellowstone, and his pre-school interest in cooking. Cur "che" was born with a silver spoon in his hand—not his mouth. He executed his first business trip alone at the age of 16—sold his wares, but forgot his luggage. Yard work leaves him cold.

Born at Tacoma, Wash., Dick came to Long Beach in 1921 and UC at Berkeley is his alma mater. At Wilkes High he "shot the team" for their basketball team and he "yell led" with a vengeance. He has served as chairman of a Cub Scout Group, vice president of the Rotary Club and made the finals in the Virginia Country Club golf championship, being beaten only by Delbert Walker.

Associated with his dad in the Lester D. Lawson & Co., he is in complete charge of all sales and management. He contacts all their nine branch offices in the United States, Honolulu and Guam.

A meticulous, imaginative and an all-around cook, today he's whipping up a batch of Lawson's Fudge.

(Makes 1 pound)

In top of double boiler put 1 cup milk, 2 squares of chocolate. When chocolate is dissolved, add slowly while stirring 2 cups sugar in which you have added a small amount of cream of tartar. Above spoon back and forth easily till there are no grains in mixture when tested on back of hand.

Put Crisco around edge of candy pan. Use heavy pan. A bright shiny one is best. Pour candy mixture carefully so as not to slop onto sides of kettle.

Bring to boil over hot heat, moving spoon back and forth until a good rolling ball has been reached (238 degrees on thermometer). Do not stir while boiling.

Remove from fire. Add butter and vanilla. Let cool to 215 degrees. Do not stir while cooling. Pour onto dampened platter. Fold from edges to center with spatula until ready to work with hands. Work till smooth. Flatten on oil paper and add nuts. Cut in inch squares. (More milk may be added if candy hardens too quickly.)

Mistake to Be 2nd Choice

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

About three months ago a friend of mine asked me if I wanted to meet a girl friend of hers, as this girl didn't get to go out very much and spent most of her time at home.

I like to meet people, so I accepted. She said she would invite us to dinner one night—and she did. Well, I was immediately struck by the girl. She was rather young, 27, attractive and well built. It was hard for me to see why she didn't go out much.

To make a long story short, I started taking her out several times a week. Last week I found out she has been going with another fellow for the past six years. During this time he has never mentioned marriage to her, and there has been no talk of love.

I think when a person goes with the same girl for six years and there's nothing said about being engaged, then something must be wrong, don't you? I didn't want to hurt her, but I did tell her she would have to make her choice between us as I was getting entirely too fond of her to risk being hurt in the end.

She said she would give this other fellow until Christmas to ask her to get married, and if he doesn't by then she would give him up and go steady with me. We made an agreement to see each other only once a week until then.

Since I haven't been seeing her so often the days just drag from date to date. Now I know I'm really in love, and I don't know whether I did the right thing or not. What do you think?—R. D. B.

DEAR R. D. B.: Well, now, personally I think you made a mistake. I think that as long as you are in love you should have stayed right in there pitching. I think it was all wrong to place yourself in the position of being "second choice." I think the girl would have had more respect for you if you'd shown a more aggressive attitude.

Also, I think any girl who would string along with a man for six years who never even mentioned love might have been rather susceptible to a gentleman who really wooed her in the good old-fashioned way.

You know, R. D. B., I'd like to know how this, er, romance works out.—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: Recently I became a hostess for service men at a weekly dance. I met and immediately became attracted to a young man. We saw each other quite often until he was transferred, then we kept up a correspondence.

Recently I saw him again and he told me a story which I had suspected. He had married when too young and was now separated. Divorce proceedings were under way.

He also told me he had met a girl he thinks a lot of—in fact, can't make up his mind whether he cares more for me or for her. He admitted this and I admire him for it. But the point is that every day I'm tortured by wondering whether in the long run he will choose me or her.

What can I do? This just sitting back and waiting for him to decide is sheer agony.—L. S.

DEAR L. S.:

I think you were a fool to let a man place you in the position of sitting around waiting while he makes up his mind whether he wants you or someone else.

We both think you ought to pretend a little indecision yourself, and go out with others; and enjoy yourself. I believe you'd find that if your young man felt he had to worry a bit about your state of heart he'd find you much more desirable.—M. M.

THE BIG MOMENT

AS A REWARD for his quick thinking, Victor (right, on platform) & his family were given trip to New York City on a private car used by road's president.

He Stopped a Tragedy

AURORA, Ohio.

• When Victor Occhuinzi heard the crash, he rushed outside. What he saw frightened him. Across the main line of the Erie Railroad, was a huge load of steel girders, spilled from a truck. It happened not long ago.

A trackworker for 33 years, Victor checked his watch. Suddenly, he realized that a passenger train, No. 686 from Cleveland, was overdue—and that No. 623 from Washington would soon come through in the opposite direction. Unless he could stop them, they would crash.

He ran down the tracks, his heart pounding, and threw a switch that connected both tracks. A half-mile west, red signals flashed. One of them just caught No. 686. A mile east, yellow lights flashed and slowed the Washington train.

Victor had prevented a horrible wreck.

PARK IT!

This toy car teaches driving

THERE'S A TINY car on the market for Christmas that's a lot more than a toy. It can help teach a youngster how to drive, park and even make U-turns. Made on the assembly lines of the Schuco Toy Works in Nuremberg, Germany, the car has three speeds, reverse gear, an electric motor, remote control and precision steering. In one way, the car is even better than Dad's: its forty-odd parts can be assembled and disassembled in about 10 minutes! Models include a streamlined sedan, a convertible coupe and a sports coupe. About 7½ inches in size, they cost from $2.98 to $18.50.

YOU UNDERSTAND the mechanics of a car much better once you've built a life-like model. Schuco car construction kit ($18 to $25) has two different bodies, parts and manual.

THE PROTOPECTINS and 3 other remarkable health factors in fresh oranges are found, to a large extent, not in the juice but in the "meat"—in the walls of the juice sacs and segments.

NEW FACTS ABOUT THE "MEAT" OF FRESH ORANGES!

The "meat" of the orange, as well as the juice, is full of health values, nutrition scientists now find. You get these extra values in the meaty parts only when you eat the whole fresh orange.

Look for the navel. It means: Richer flavor... Easy to peel... No seeds. To peel an orange—score skin in sixths. Strip off as shown, leaving the white material that clings naturally.

| HERE'S WHAT YOU GET FROM THE "MEAT" OF FRESH ORANGES   |   |
| PROTOPECTINS   | Help prevent many digestive ills and upsets in both adults and children. Aid regularity. Improve digestion, so you get more good from the food you eat.                               |
| INOSITOL (of the B vitamins)   | One of the substances credited with protecting the liver from harmful fatty deposits. Similar deposits are associated with hardening of the arteries and other degenerative diseases. |
| BIOFLAVONOIDS  | Research indicates the bioflavonoids strengthen the tiny blood vessels of the body—help them keep elastic and youthful in their function.   |
| PRO-VITAMIN A  | Pro-vitamin A is changed in the body to vitamin A, which is necessary for children's growth and important for normal vision and healthy skin.   |
| The peeled whole orange contains 10 times as much protopectin and bioflavonoids, 3 to 6 times as much pro-vitamin A, and up to twice as much inositol as the strained juice alone. Few other foods even approach the fresh whole orange as an all-round source of elements the body needs. |   |

Orange juice is your best breakfast juice, important for its rich content of vitamin C. But more and more, nutrition scientists are stressing the value of the whole fruit.

They now advise that you regularly include fresh oranges among the eating fruits you give your family.

That's a special pleasure now during the navel season. Sunkist Navel Oranges are the finest eating oranges in the world. They're also the finest oranges for juice, because they give more vitamin C per glass than any other orange or orange juice.

For better health, eat a NAVEL orange every day.

They're Too Young To

People today no longer feel old in the 60s,

He's Still on the Job

Typical of older workers across the country is 63-year-old Frederick Warnecke, an engraving photographer at Intaglio Service in New York. Unlike many in survey, however, Warnecke is financially set to retire at 65. Until then he plans to go full blast.

Retire at 64

ITHACA, N. Y.

MOST 64-YEAR-OLD Americans feel too young to retire.

That's one of the startling discoveries two Cornell University researchers have made in the nation's first survey of "pre-retirement" workers.

Backed by a grant from Lilly Endowment, Inc., Drs. Milton L. Barron and Gordon F. Streib of Cornell's Department of Sociology and Anthropology have collected opinions from some 4,000 men and women in plants all over the United States.

In general, they learned that, if life doesn't actually begin at 60, it certainly doesn't end then. For example—

► About 65 per cent of the 64-year-olds felt they were middle-aged or younger!

► Almost 50 per cent said they never wish they could be younger again.

► Approximately 75 per cent reported that they still enjoy their work, and more than 70 per cent would not change their jobs even if they had a chance.

► More than 85 per cent stated that they did not have to cut down on their daily activities such as driving, gardening and walking.

► Approximately 70 per cent are in good or excellent health.

The researchers are cautious in drawing conclusions from their study so far. But, says Dr. Barron: "Some of the replies were eye-openers to us."

Only the first year of what Drs. Barron and Streib hope will be a continuing study has been completed. Their aim: to get at the root of the problems of retirement.

The problems, they point out, are growing. By 1980, 12.1 per cent of the population will be over 65 compared to only 7.2 per cent in 1945.

"We obviously need more information concerning the roles developed for old people by society as a whole," says Dr. Barron. "In the past the standards have largely been formulated and established by younger people."

So the Cornell researchers decided to go directly to the old people who are now facing retirement problems.

Indications from the Cornell study are that most older people feel they should be the judge of when to retire instead of being at the mercy of rules and regulations.

One reason: the study showed a good many 64-year-olds are not financially well off. About 55 per cent expected they could work another five years, because they didn't have enough money to retire. And some 20 per cent said even their income while working did not cover expenses.

Another reason: the wear and tear of the years varies greatly from one individual to another. When Field Director Wayne Thompson asked one man how old he felt, he got this surprising response:

"I don't know exactly how I should answer that question. But I ran a race with my grandchildren yesterday. . . . I won the race!"

Yes, it's true what

Why, when a Texan talks

FORT WORTH, Texas.

THERE'S a man here who knows enough lore and legend about the State of Texas to cover every square mile (265,896) of it.

He is Boyce House, 57-year-old ex-newspaperman, radio commentator and author.<sup>2</sup> He's known as Texas' foremost humorist and the world's leading authority on Texas humor.

The first story about Texas that House ever heard is still one of his favorites. It's about General Phil Sheridan, who is supposed to have remarked:

"If I owned Texas and Hell, I'd rent out Texas and live in Hell."

A Texas editor, so the story goes, retorted: "That's all right—every man to his own country."

► Texans, says House, wouldn't be so boastful if people of other states didn't expect it of them. The Texan is the only one who doesn't mind if you kid his state—as long as you don't ignore it.

All Texans jealously guard the honor of their native land. A few years ago, a hard-bitten rancher was traveling on a train near Wichita Falls. House was on the same train, and the two struck up a friendship. When the train stopped at a little tank town, they went to get a bite to eat.

When they boarded the train again, a "city feller" was sprawled on their seats. The rancher politely asked the interloper to move. He paid no attention. At that, the rancher pulled out his six-shooter and bounced it a few times across the man's skull.

Yes, It's True . . .

"NOW I'll give you exactly four and one-half seconds to get out of our seat," the rancher growled. The stranger vamoosed. The rancher shoved his gun into his belt and said sorrowfully to House:

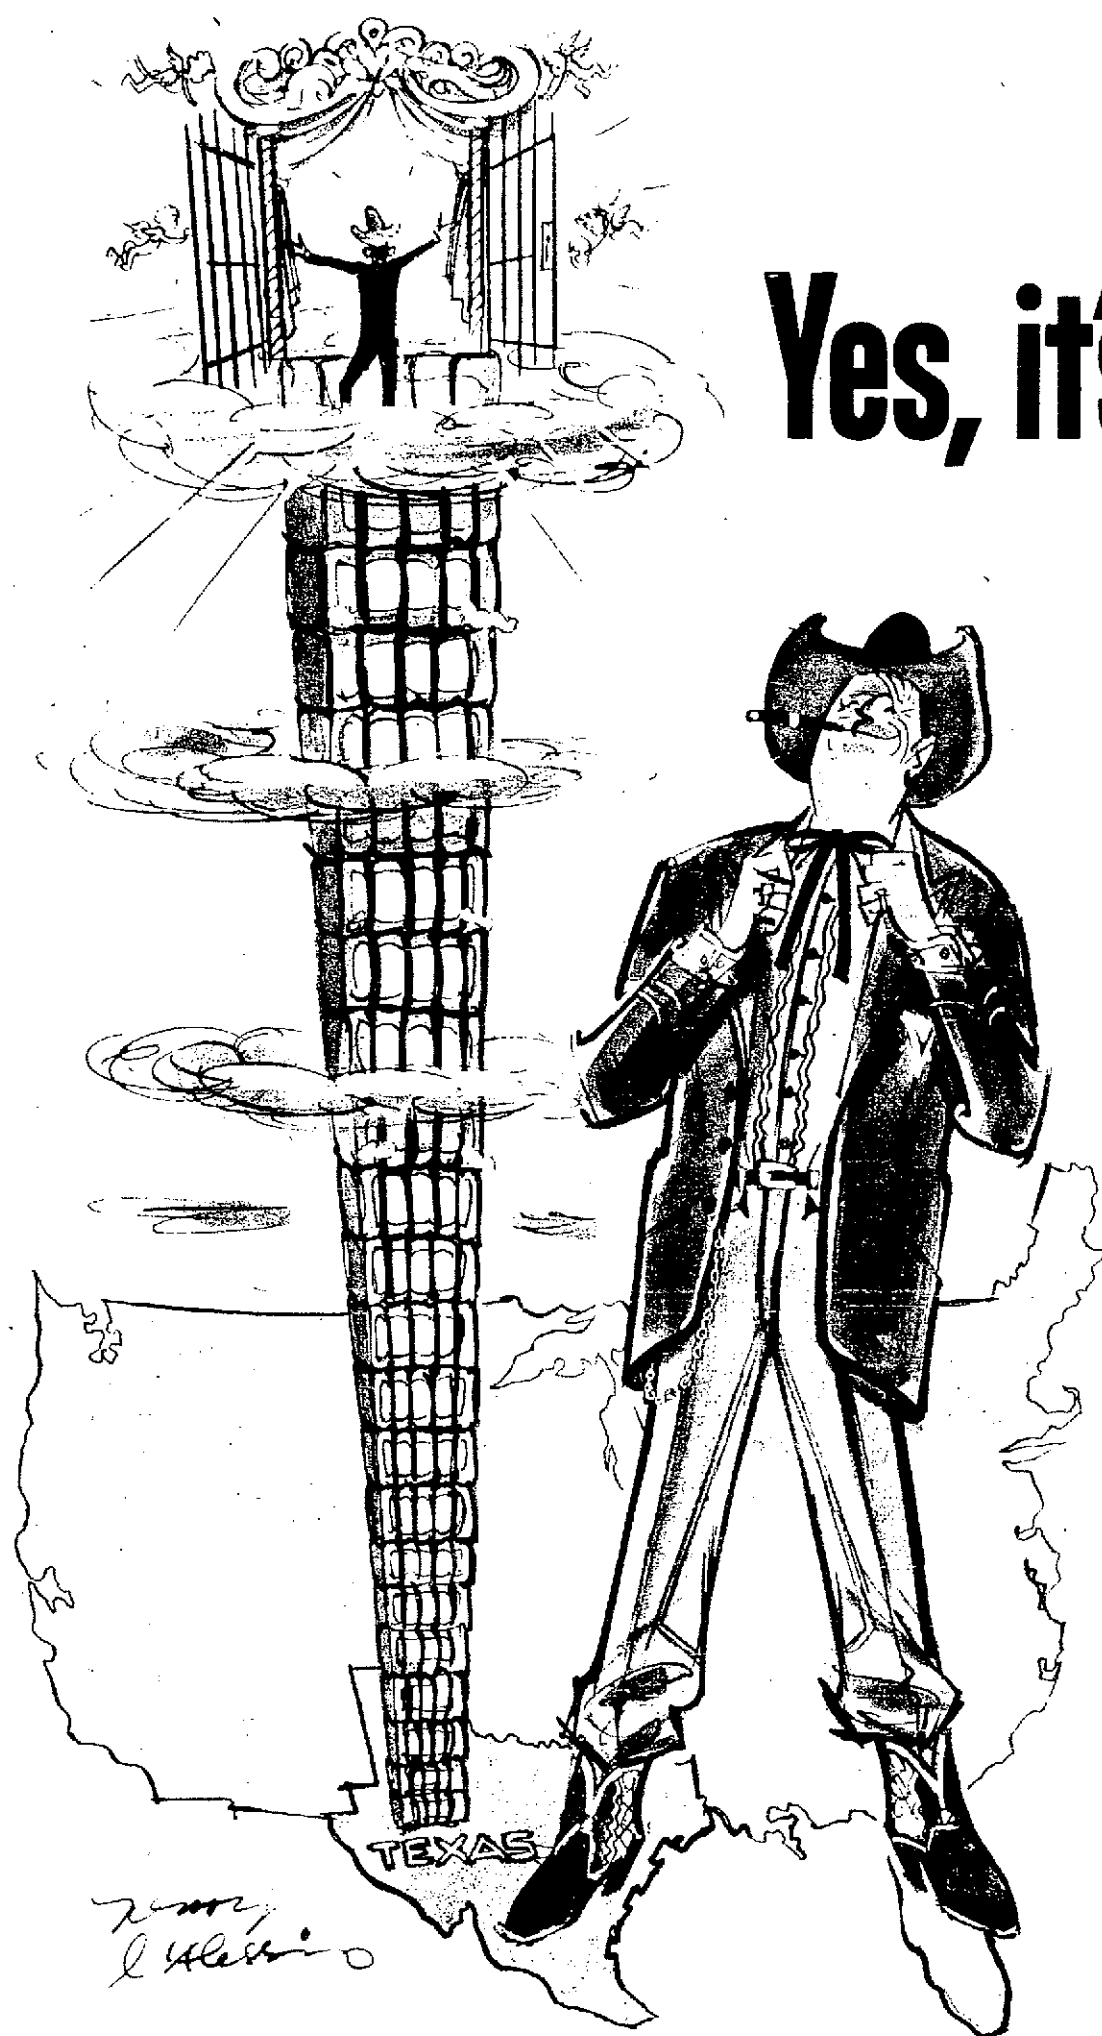

"It's fellers like that who give Texas a bad name!"

It is true—and Texans will be the first to admit it—that not every Texan is a paragon of virtue. Last year, the story goes, a well-known Houston oil man lay on his death bed. He knew he had only a few hours to live and was comforting his wife.

► "Mary," he said, "you don't know anything about business, so I'll have to find two honest oil men to look after my estate for you."

For almost an hour, the dying man and his wife thought and thought. They couldn't think of two honest oil men in all Texas—so he had to get well.

Even nature does things differently in Texas. House tells the story of two Gulf Coast mosquitoes who grabbed a man off his horse.

And it's all fluff . . .

As everybody knows, Texas raises a lot of cotton. Matter of fact, if all the bales produced in a year were piled up, you'd have a stairway reaching right up to the pearly gates. Texans cite this simply to prove they're not bragging when they say Texas has more of everything.

BOYCE HOUSE

they say about Texas!

about the weather, fish or money, you know he isn't bragging

"Let's carry him into the swamp," said one.
"Not on your life," said the other. "Let's eat him here. If we carry him into the swamp the big mosquitoes will take him away from us."

Your true Texan is not even ashamed to admit the negative aspects of Texas—particularly its unusual weather.

He will be the first to tell you that many parts of the state are so dry the trees follow the dogs around. Or, that in certain parts of Texas the sandstorms are so severe that it's not uncommon to see a prairie dog digging a hole 50 feet in the air.

In certain areas, rain is so rare that Texans have been known to faint at the sight of it. "Everything works out all right," says House. "We revive them by throwing sand in their faces."

Things like sandstorms are taken in stride by Texans. Not long ago, an Easterner pulled into a gas station in the teeth of a sandstorm. "Say," he hollered to the attendant, "does the wind always blow like this in Texas?"

"No, sir," said the attendant. "Sometimes it turns around and blows the other way."

But when it rains in Texas, it really rains! Non-Texans are not always impressed by this fact.

For example: a Texan who drowned in a flash flood went to heaven (as might be expected). There he told of the great downpour that had floated him to the pearly gates. Everybody, including the angels, listened bug-eyed—except one man who yawned indifferently and then walked away.

"Say, who's the old guy with the long grey beard?" asked the Texan.

"Oh, him," said one of the angels. "That's Noah."

House claims that while Texans have an intense pride in their state, they're "unselfish" about it.

The true Texan wants you to move into the state and share his blessings. At the same time, he's charitable toward those unlucky ones who don't live there.

A Texas father was chiding his son one day about asking another man what state he hailed from. "Son," said the father, "don't ever do that again. It ain't nice. If he's from Texas, he'll tell you. If he ain't, it's not nice to embarrass him."

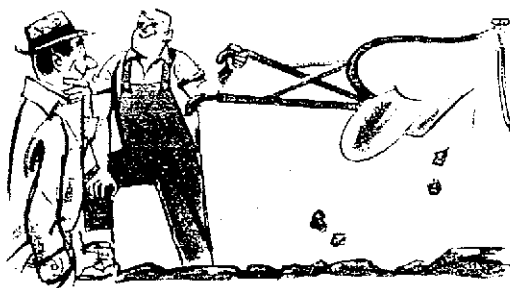

Texans never feel they're bragging; they honestly believe they're telling the truth. Even the professional Chamber-of-Commerce type Texan feels he's a booster—like Rotary or Kiwanis—except that he has more to talk about.

Says House: "Because of our history, the Texan sort of feels set apart. After all, we were the only state in the Union that was an independent republic before we affiliated. Texas sent ambassadors to foreign countries, including the United States. The state has known six flags."

► Texas is the only state in the Union which has its own Almanac—672 pages of facts about Texas. More books have been written about Texas than about any other state, yet there seems to be an appalling ignorance about Texas among "foreigners."

Texans accept this as inevitable. And so, a teacher in Austin did not flunk the pupil, newly-arrived from Chicago, who, when asked what the Alamo is, answered: "That's pie with ice cream."

A virile breed, Texans make good athletes—fellows like Ben Hogan, Rogers Hornsby and wrestler Gorgeous George, to name three. The football coach at the University of Texas often drives into the back country to look for prospective players.

Point with a plow—and go to college . . .

He always stops when he sees a young man working in the fields. "Son," the coach will say, "which way is the nearest town?"

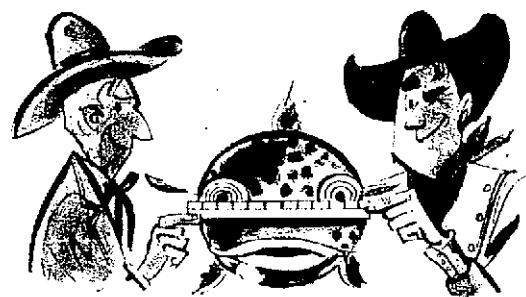

If the boy points with his finger, the coach drives on. But if the lad points with his plow, he gets a scholarship.

If some of the tales about Texas are fantastic, says

House, so is everything else about this domain—from its giant cacti and horned frogs, its big winds and fearsome dust storms to its boundless horizons and its temperamental temperatures that have been known to drop 40 degrees in a few hours.

"Texas," House points out, "is a land where exaggerations are the truth."

As an example, House tells this "true" fish story: Several sportsmen on a train were talking about big ones they'd caught. A quiet, modest Texan just sat listening. Finally someone asked him how big fish got to be in Texas.

The fish are wide between the eyes . . .

"Oh, not very big," the Texan said. "Maybe 10. or 11 inches."

"That's not much," the other man said.

"Well, of course, we measure them between the eyes," the Texan explained.

Remember, all these stories are told by Texans about themselves and their state. If people don't believe them, Texans don't get upset about it. After all, as House explains, here are the real facts:

Texas is bounded on the north by the aurora borealis on the south by the lines of the equinox, on the east by primeval chaos, on the west by Judgment Day.

► If all the bales of cotton produced in Texas in a single year were stacked up, you'd have a stairway reaching to the pearly gates.

If all the hogs in Texas were made into one hog, he could dig the Panama Canal with a single root of his mighty snoot.

If all the steers in Texas were made into one steer, he could stand with his front feet in the Gulf of Mexico, one hind leg in Lake Michigan and the other hind leg in Hudson Bay. With his tail he could brush the Northern Lights out of the Alaskan skies.

"And yet," says House sadly, "some people will tell you that Texans brag!" ■

AN EXCLUSIVE REPORT:

This 'saucer' may soon fly

Now it can be told—the story of secret "Project Y"

By WILLIAM STEVENSON

● Here's the first report to the U.S. on the most exciting top-secret development in aviation—the building of a flying saucer.

The author, an ex-British Royal Navy pilot, is aviation editor of the Toronto Star and winner of this year's top aviation writing award made by the Canadian aircraft industry.—THE EDITORS

TORONTO, Canada.

ONE DAY not long ago, Field-Marshal Viscount Montgomery, military chief of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, slipped behind the screen of black tarpaulins hanging from the cavernous roof of an experimental hangar at Toronto's city airport.

The hero of El Alamein, emerging into the sunlight a short while later, blinked and muttered one word: "Fantastic." Then he added, "I hardly believe my senses."

What was it that so startled a man who has examined virtually all of the incredible instruments of war that have been developed in this jet-atomic age?

It was "Project Y"—a wooden model of a revolutionary flying machine shaped something like a disc with a piece broken off.

Around the A. V. Roe of Canada, Ltd., plant it is called Omega. The reason: from the ground, its silhouette resembles the Greek letter; that is, a disc flattened or broken along part of the rim.

A. V. Roe, which is a member of the mammoth Hawker-Siddeley Group of aircraft manufacturers in Britain, has carefully guarded all details of this machine. But some of its potentialities have been revealed in official reports.

The Omega is truly a flying disc with a nearly circular wing.

A complicated jet engine has been designed to revolve around a vertical engine shaft. This engine consists of gas-turbine chambers which whirl around the pilot at 800 revolutions a minute.

Protected by 'Bubble'

SITTING in the center of the wing, the pilot is protected by a pressurized, plastic "bubble." His seat can be adjusted so that the machine can be flown in almost any direction.

Air is sucked into the gas-turbine chambers through outlets along the forward rim surface, and blasts of hot air are ejected through outlets along the flattened edge to the rear.

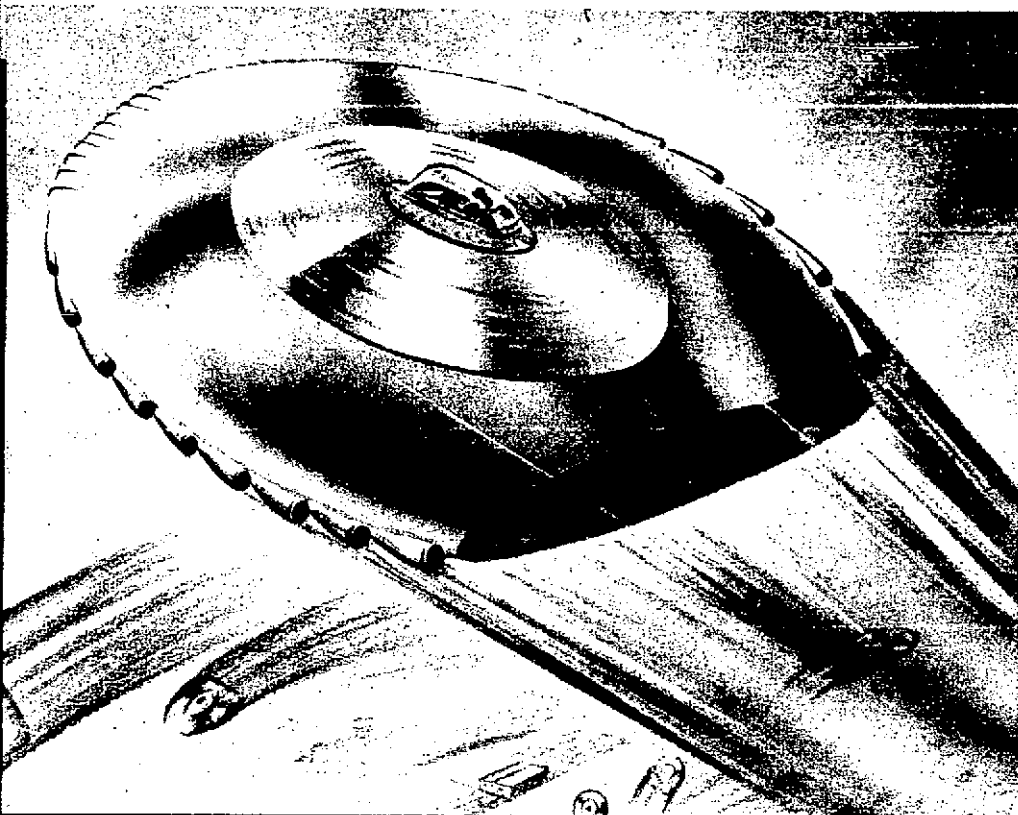

These outlets are the craft's only controls. Direction is obtained by shutting off one or a series of outlets.

A spindle-legged undercarriage supports the craft in an attitude like that of a praying mantis. It launches the disc into a steep climb, and then is dropped off within a few seconds.

The Omega's designer is a brilliant young Briton named Jack Frost who once worked with Sir Frank Whittle, inventor of the jet engine. His basic principle was simple: anything can be made to fly if enough power is put behind it.

Frost was trying to design a "vertical-riser," a jet interceptor able to leap off the ground without much forward motion. So he chose a disc-like shape measuring 40 feet across, because it gave him the most compact and maneuverable craft possible.

Military experts agree that the "vertical-riser" may be the key to air defense in the future. Certainly, present-day jet interceptors which need long runways to get into the air, would be handicapped in attacking fast jet bombers flying as high as 50,000 feet.

Perhaps that's why top scientists from the U.S. Air Force's Research and Development Command, including its director, Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, recently visited the tarpaulin-draped hangar in Toronto.

A wind-tunnel model of the Omega was tested in U.S. Air Force laboratories. Qualified observers believe it proved feasible. What's more they claim it can dart in any direction at 1,500 miles an hour.

Nobody has answered the question of how soon the Omega will get into the air. There are many technical problems still to be solved.

Oddly enough, however, several sober reports of "flying saucers" sightings given by U.S. Air Force pilots in the Far East earlier this year sound like descriptions of the Omega.

What to Make of Sightings

ONE "seemed to have an internal, churning movement like flames or fiery gases." Another was said to have "a rapidly pulsating gaseous type of exhaust trail" which observers suggested was "three times the length of the flying object, with both tail blast and object bluish in color."

What can we make of these sightings? The A. V. Roe project at last indicates that scitists feel they can build a saucer-like machine. Then is there any reason for not thinking the Russians have a head start on such a craft?

The answer would seem to be, "No."

It is known, of course, that the Russians are trying to produce "vertical-risers." They have already created a triangular-shaped jet which takes off almost vertically. This was developed by German rocket and jet experts weeded out of prison camps at the end of World War II.

Slave Workers

THESE scientists had facilities at their command which only a totalitarian country can provide. There were thousands of slave workers whose energy could be expended on trying out numerous designs which we in the West have to work out—for the sake of economy—on paper and in the laboratory. There were plenty of pilots whose lives the Russians were happy to lose in fruitless experiments, providing something workable turned up during the test flights.

Among the captured German scientists were men who tried to produce "vertical-risers" for stopping allied bombing attacks on the crumbling Nazi fortress. One model, designed to shoot off an almost vertical ramp, exploded and killed the chief pilot. But this research, interrupted by Germany's surrender, has certainly continued since behind the Urals.

The evidence now is that the "flying saucer" age is already here. Canada's Omega may even be a late entry in the race to develop the world's most advanced flying machine.

One side of feud . . .

Brothers Lavon, 27, Victor, 20, and Alvah Ames, 25, of Vinalhaven Island, each had a string of lobster traps. Lavon (left) punched cousin Clyde Young (opposite page) in a dispute over molested traps, had Clyde arrested for shooting near his feet with a pistol.

Scene of fight . . .

Harbor at remote Matinicus Island, home of the Youngs and some of the Ames, is 12 miles from mainland in open Atlantic, at mouth of Penobscot Bay. Here, Clyde shot near Lavon. Large part of 150 population of the island is related to both sides of dispute, fear being drawn into "lobster war."

IS THIS THE BIGGEST FEUD

There's trouble between cousins in Maine's lobster fleet. Will it

DURING "TRUCE," Victor Ames carries shotgun aboard the lobster boat, "in case I see some birds to shoot at." (Note—carrying guns on boats is legal if they're kept in open, for hunting.) Many fishermen carry their guns, plink at birds to avoid boredom. In past "lobster wars," shots have reportedly been fired at rival boats as a final warning.

The other side . . .

Clyde Young, 49, accused three Ames brothers of trying to ram his boat two days after original quarrel. He further charged Lavon with shooting at him with a 30-30 rifle while he was checking lobster traps near Hurricane Channel. His brother, Wyre Young, accused the Ames brothers of molesting 19 lobster traps. Judge put all under $1,000 bond to stop feud.

OF '53?

be another Hatfield-McCoy affair?

ROCKLAND, Maine.

A BULLET HOLE, blasted in the floor of a fish shack on lonely Matinicus Island has given this part of the Maine coast one of its worst "war scares" in years.

In a family feud over cut lobster traps, Lavon Ames, Jr., (upper left, opposite page) punched his first cousin, Clyde Young (above). Then, Clyde fired a warning shot into the floor. In court, the Ames brothers and the Youngs made bitter accusations. Mainlanders began to fear that the bitter words had started a dreaded offshore "lobster war."

To keep the peace, Rockland Municipal Judge Zelma Dwinal put both sides under $1,000 bonds (later rescinded) to stop feuding.

"Lobster wars," say old-time lobstermen, have been known to break out every few years. The usual cause: somebody finds a lobster trap cut loose from its buoy (usually accidentally, by a passing boat) and blames it on another lobsterman. Then, both sides start cutting lines and somebody gets hurt.

This is the first local feud since shortly after World War II, when Matinicus Islanders fought Vinalhaven lobstermen. But over in Jonesboro in 1950, a three-months "war" ruined the fortunes of three fishing families.

Rocklanders are keeping their fingers crossed—hoping!

One big TV name is said to have fired some writers because they didn't refer to him as "Mr." in the script.

In TV everybody calls anybody "darling" But when people call Dinah Shore "darling" they mean it!

I had heard so much about all this that I decided to find out for myself. Could it be true? I dropped by Dinah's studio one day while she was on the air.

It didn't take me long to realize why Dinah's friends are so loyal!

A violinist played for a brief moment during one of her songs. He stood way in the background. For perhaps a 10-second interval he played, then the camera moved away from him.

But when the show ended, I saw Dinah go over to him. I heard her say:

"Thank you so much; I thought you played beautifully."

The violinist was bowled over. On what other show, he asked me later, would the star thank a 10-second performer?

Even a cameraman outside the studio got a flashing smile and a greeting from Dinah.

He's the fellow who never gets to see the show, although he's part of it. He sits outside in a hallway, ready to train his camera on the sponsor's product (an automobile).

"You hit it just right today," Dinah called to him. "Good job."

With those incidents to bolster my impression of Dinah Shore I asked members of the cast why they like to work with her.

Nothing Upsets Her

HERE'S what they told me:

► Director Alan Handley: "She's incredible, never loses her temper, never refuses to do what I ask. I've had her slide down a fire-house pole, walk through a waterfall, even roller-skate while singing. Nothing upsets her."

► Cameraman Bob Tremble: "She's considerate—and she inspires you because she's such a genuinely happy person."

► Musical Director Vic Schoen: "Dinah's a tremendous performer. She loves to sing. She's willing to work hard and is grateful when other people work hard with her."

I did my best to get just one person to say something unfavorable about the girl from Winchester, Tenn. But no one would.

A publicity girl came close. She said to me: "Dinah's a problem. You get to know and admire her. Then you can't help raving about her."

"She makes publicity tough—you begin to wish there were more definite words for wonderful and sincere."

LONDON.

IN A new British movie* the script called for actor John Ireland to sock his faithless wife, played by Gloria Grahame.

But the British censors, perhaps because punching Miss Grahame might seem a bit discourteous, frowned on the sequence.

So, a compromise was reached.
When you see the film, Miss Grahame will be dunked quite emphatically in a bathtub. More genteel, you know.

* "The Good Die Young."

SCENE OPENS as John gives his faithless wife a kiss. Then he drops her, clothes and all, in tub.

HE GRABS her by hair, pushes head under while water slops from tub to floor. He's grinning; her hands clutch his sleeves.

AFTER scene, most apologetic man on set was John Ireland. He helped shivering Miss Grahame wring out.

New Holiday Fruit Stuffing . . .

. . . for your Christmas dinner this year

ELEVEN more days before Christmas! Not too soon to begin thinking about the dinner menu and table decorations. Our menu is simple and easy to prepare, yet festive and colorful in Yuletide tradition.

You may serve turkey or capon or a brace of ducklings instead of goose, but you will surely want to try our very new and special fruit stuffing, which does honor to any bird with its fruity flavor and crunchy texture.

A word of caution: don't combine stuffing ingredients or stuff the bird until you are ready to roast it. This applies to any type of stuffing, and is a precaution against food poisoning.

FRUIT STUFFING

- |                                   |                                |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 2 pkgs. bread stuffing            | 2 tart apples, pared and diced |
| 3 bananas, mashed                 | 2 oranges, sectioned           |
| 1 cup halved, seeded Tokay grapes | 1 cup broken walnut meats      |

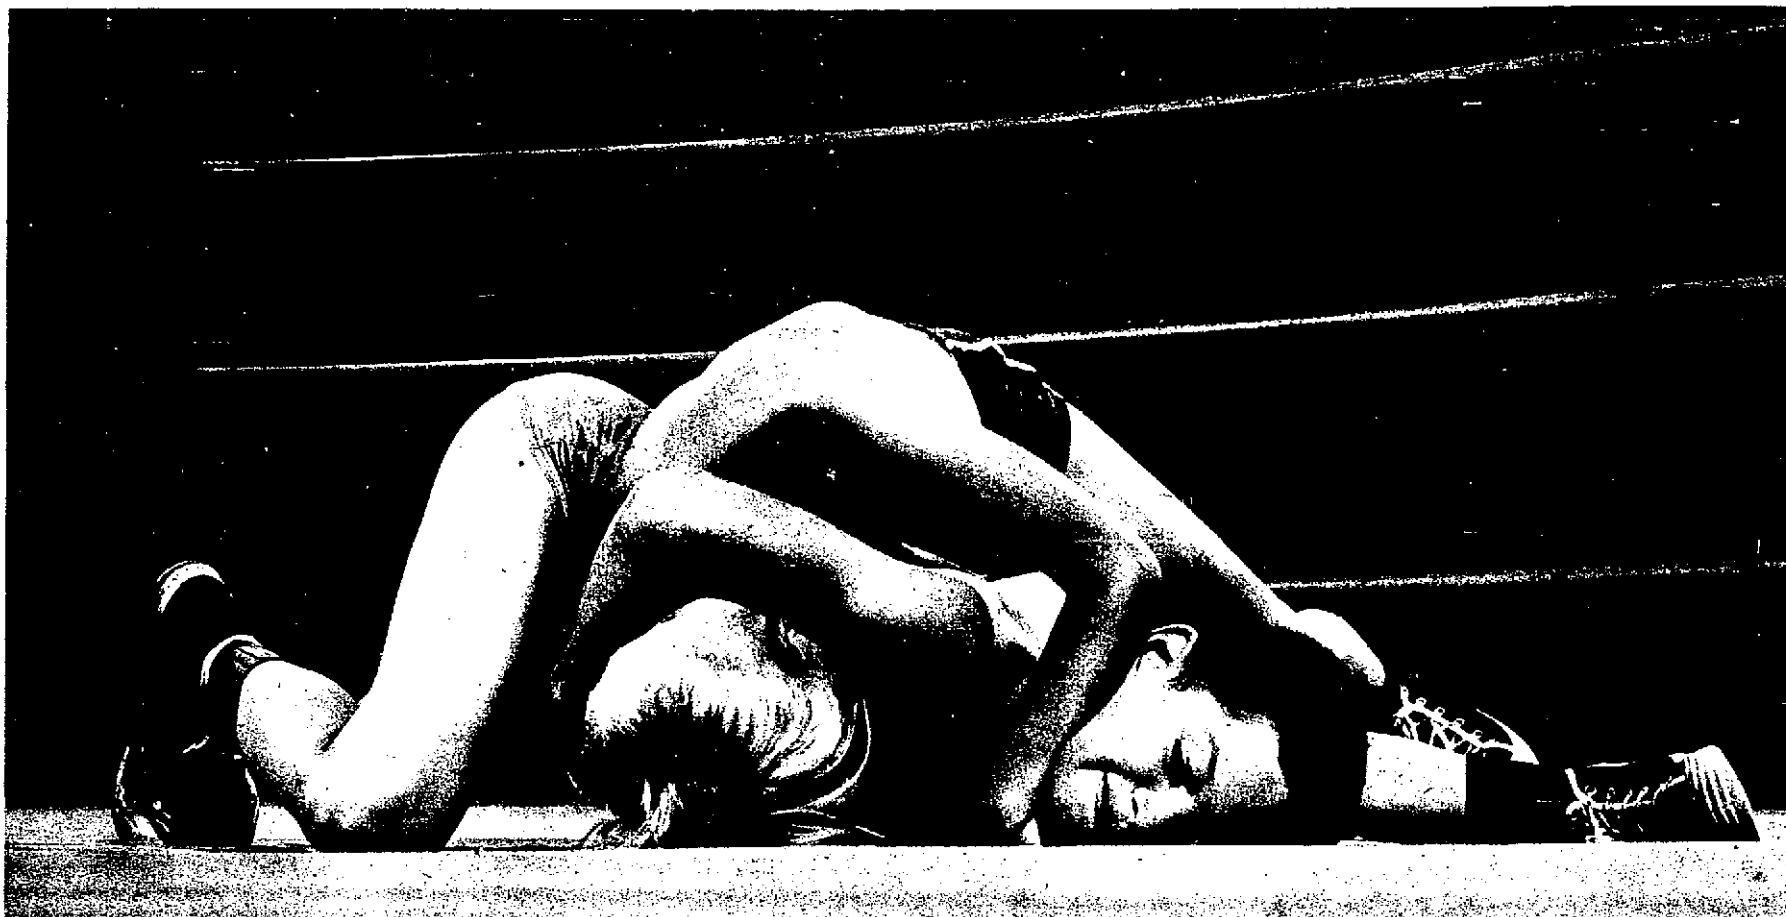

Prepare stuffing as directed on package. Blend in mashed bananas. Add fruits and nuts; mix well. Makes enough stuffing for 12-lb. bird.

CHRISTMAS DINNER MENU

Cranberry Juice Cocktail
Roast Goose with Fruit Stuffing
Broccoli Snowy Mashed Potatoes
Mashed Hubbard Squash

THE PERFECT GIFT FOR THIS MOMENT IN THIS WORLD

Chances are everyone on your Christmas list already has a Bible . . . but many may be missing the peace of mind and happiness that regular Bible reading can bring, simply because confusing, old-fashioned expressions dull their eagerness to read.

Now you can give those you love a Bible written in the living language of today—the great Revised Standard Version. Here is a Bible so clear and powerful, so easy to read, they'll pick it up twice as often.

The Revised Standard Version is based on the most authoritative manuscripts. Religious leaders praise it. Give the Revised Standard Version this Christmas—you may help someone you love to enjoy all the help and stimulation the Bible offers in these troubled times.

• "I try to keep busy," says Mrs. Reach, as she bathes Nancy Sue, 2. "It helps me forget Christmas 1951."

◀ "These children are my future. I live for them."

• Holding Nancy Sue, Mrs. Reach poses on front lawn with (l. to r.) Jo Ann, 6; Zina Lee, 10, and John, 5. Bicycle was bought for Zina Lee last Christmas.

This five-room home was built by Ellis Reach, Jr., and his father, also killed in the mine explosion. On New Year's Day, Mrs. Reach and the children moved in . . . alone.

'I can still

. . . A woman who lost

JUST BEFORE CHRISTMAS, two years ago, newspaper readers were shocked by a major disaster: 119 coal miners lost their lives in an underground explosion at the New Orient No. 2 coal mine in Illinois.

West Frankfort (pop. 12,500), where many of them had lived, became known as "a community of widows." Christmas was their day of mourning.

Two years later, with Christmas approaching again, PARADE returned to the coalfields to ask: "What will Christmas be like this year?"

Here, you meet a woman whose husband was killed in the blast. She is 29-year-old Mrs. Ellis Reach, Jr.

WEST FRANKFORT, ILL.

THERE'LL be something more than just another Christmas tree at 409 South Parkhill St. this year.

There'll be regained courage for Wanda Reach, and a reborn belief that there can be happiness ahead for herself and her children, Zina Lee, 10; Jo Ann, 6; John, 5, and Nancy Sue, 2.

The emotional scars of losing her husband on the fatal night of December 21, 1951, will probably never go away. But she has learned to hide them.

Christmas will always bring inner sadness. Her children will never suspect it as she takes them around to the brightly-lit stores this week.

There'll be, she's determined, no sadness packed with the new camera Zina Lee will find under the tinsel-strewn tree. Nor with Jo Ann's walking doll, John's electric train and Nancy Sue's toys.

▶ "I want them to have a happy Christmas," she says, "like other kids. I'm going to try."

Last year, the first she had to face alone, was harder. She dreaded to see it come.

Two Christmases ago still seems a nightmare.

"About now," she says, "I was expecting Nancy Sue. Ellis and I were having a crazy time getting ready for Christmas and a baby all at the same time. I didn't know when I'd be out of the hospital, so we raced around getting presents, a new TV set for the house, new ornaments and a lot of things. Ellis was always enthusiastic about Christmas, but he always kept putting things off.

"I bought Ellis a shirt, tie, socks, handkerchiefs, house slippers and a pair of pajamas at Walker's Clothing Store here in town.

"I wrote out a card: 'Love . . . from Boonie' (that's my nickname) and stuck it in with the shirt. Then I hid all the gifts in my sister's house.

▶ "Sure enough, on December 18th, I had to rush to the hospital at Herrin, 12 miles away. Nancy Sue was born on the 19th and on the 21st, at noon, Ellis took us home. We were all feeling fine.

say MERRY CHRISTMAS'

her husband in a mine blast keeps her faith in the future

STUNNED by catastrophe that killed 119 miners on December 21, 1951, relatives stood near shaft head waiting for news.

"It was on Friday, the last day before the mine closed down for a long Christmas weekend. A lot of the miners weren't going to work that night, but Ellis said he wanted to get that pay. Besides, he was a foreman and had men to look after.

"All afternoon, he put up the tree and watched the TV programs. Around 4 p.m. my mother and father came and they all had fun looking at the baby. Then Ellis ate a pork chop for supper and got his mother to stay with me until he came back at 3 a.m. as usual. I was still too weak to leave my bed.

NEIGHBOR, Mrs. Ina Bartoni (left), also lost husband in explosion. She and Mrs. Reach are now close friends, visit often.

"Then he bent over the crib and kissed Nancy Sue. He said she was the prettiest baby he ever saw. Then he kissed me and said, 'So long, Sugar . . .'"

It was cold, and a light snow was falling when Ellis revved up the motor of the family 2-door sedan and drove to the mine, six miles away.

Gathering his crew (which included his father) at Portal #4, Ellis smiled with the others at the greeting chalked on the pithead blackboard: "MERRY CHRISTMAS TO THE NIGHT CREW."

They went lightheartedly down the shaft at 6 p.m. and reached their work locations at about 6:45. The explosion, or explosions, came at about 7:35. The news flashed across town a little later—when 2,000 basketball fans at a pre-Christmas game at Central High School heard the loud speakers bark an emergency call for all doctors present to report to the mines.

It was brought to the Reach home by one of Ellis' cousins. Mrs. Reach, half asleep, (she'd been home from the hospital about eight hours), heard the whisper. Her mother-in-law gasped in fear.

"I got a chill when I heard it," says Mrs. Reach. "Ellis and his father had both been in the explosion of the Old Ben No. 8 mine about three years ago and had come out alive, but something told me this was different. I didn't cry or anything. I just froze. People were coming into the house from all directions."

The family doctor came and gave her some sleeping pills and she dozed off in a drugged, uneasy sleep. At 3 a.m. she awoke with a start!

"Ellis had always come home at 3," she says. "I used to listen for the slam of the car door, and then his low whistling as he came in the house. I looked around and it swept over me like a horrible wave. He was gone. I laid there and started crying."

Given more sleeping pills, she slept through to the gray Saturday morning of December 22. Her brother Clyde had brought Ellis' clothes home and was trying to hide them out of sight. In her stupor, she heard him whisper: "Should I tell her?"

► On Saturday night, Clyde asked her gently if Ellis had any identifying marks. Later, Clyde and another brother, Paul, told her there was no hope. On Sunday night, they brought her Ellis' wedding ring. The funeral would be on Christmas.

'I Wasn't Alone'

ON CHRISTMAS morning, 1951, Mrs. Reach got up for the first time. "The doctor said I could go to the church service," she says. "Before leaving, I had a 'Christmas Morning' for the children, helping them open their presents under the tree. But I guess I really couldn't wish them 'Merry Christmas'."

Christmas night helped her pull herself together. "Lots of company came in to comfort me," she remembers. Most of them had lost men, too. At least 15 family friends had perished in the mine. The enormity of the catastrophe had stunned the whole community. "I felt I wasn't alone," she says.

Between the holidays, she tried to be sensible. She returned Ellis' gifts to the store. On New Year's Eve, she moved her family into the house Ellis built.

► "I told myself I was lucky, compared to most of the others," she says. "Ellis always planned ahead. A miner has to." She would get $51 a month from Ellis' $10,000 insurance policy. Later, she found she would get another $38 a month for herself and $115 a month for the children until they are 18. The mine company compensation award would come to $150 a month for 5 years. To tide her over the first months, she got $2,073 from a nationwide disaster fund.

"My mother-in-law wasn't so lucky," she says. "At 58, she had to go out and get a job washing dishes and doing kitchen work in a restaurant."

The children kept her from looking back. "Some of the other wives couldn't help themselves," she says. "Taking care of the four children kept me too busy to think. I was always cooking and washing and cleaning all day long and giving the kids baths a couple of times a day."

Somehow, she got through last Christmas.

► This year, busier than ever, she thinks of herself as both a mother and father. Shopping downtown is a family expedition. "I always buy all of them something in the dime store," she says. "I get a kick out of making them happy."

At least once a week, she packs them all into the family car and goes to the drive-in theater in Herrin. The baby sleeps while she and the three oldest watch the movies.

She also visits her relatives, taking all the children with her. When she gets lonesome, she talks with Mrs. Ina Bartoni, across the way, who also lost her husband in the explosion. "We sort of understand each other," she says. "It's fine."

"Maybe," she thinks, "the children are like a sort of substitute for Ellis. I'm wrapped up in them. Of course we're going to have a fine Christmas. All children are supposed to.

► "I haven't any plans for the future. I try to remember the happiness we had together, Ellis and me. The kids are healthy and happy and we can have a lot of fun together. A miner's wife has to be strong. A miner's widow has to be stronger.

"This year, I think I can say 'Merry Christmas!'"

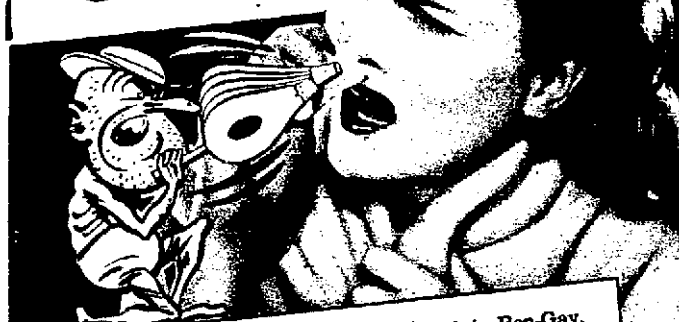

A WARTIME PHOTO of Ellis and the wedding ring he wore are treasured keepsakes of Mrs. Reach. "He was gone then," she says, "but he came back."

It stands on 2 acres, cost $250,000 to build. The asking price was $200,000.

Want to take a tour through it? First, park in the circular court near the blazing begonias. Step through the massive front door into the cork-floored hall.

On your right is a beige and cream living room with great curved windows overlooking the ocean. Beyond is the den with hundreds of books, photographs, 50 trophies including an Oscar ("Going my Way?").

There's cork flooring, too, in the cream and coral dining room and every convenience down to a big chopping block in the green-and-brown all electric kitchen.

The house is wired for music—you can turn it on in any room.

As for Bing—he still has a house in Hollywood and a ranch in Nevada.

Senate Majority Boss Without a Majority

THEY SAY William F. Knowland enjoys politics because of its personal challenge.

That being true, he is about to have the time of his life finding his way through a no-man's land abundantly mined with personal challenge. On Jan. 5, when the United States Senate is gavelled to order, the tall, husky Republican from California will become the first Senate majority leader in history without a majority.

On one side of the aisle there will be 47 Republicans; on the other, 48 Democrats, many of them still bristling at the recent GOP attempt to nail the Truman administration for Communists in government. And somewhere in between, stands Sen. Wayne Morse, unpredictable Oregon Independent, who has said he would side with the GOP on organization. Up on the rostrum will be Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whose vote the GOP can count on in a tie.

This is the tight-rope situation confronting Knowland, who has behind him only eight years in the Senate and at 45 is still something of a boy prodigy in politics. And this is the session of Congress which Dwight D. Eisenhower and administration leaders hope will give them the program they can take to the electorate next fall.

"It will be an important and rugged session," Knowland says. This obviously is an understatement to describe the first test of the Senate leadership Knowland inherited only last summer from the late Robert A. Taft.

One of his biggest jobs, he says, will be to map out "areas of adjustment" that Republicans and a substantial number of Democrats can support. By all reliable forecasts, this may take a lot of doing. In the last session, President Eisenhower found considerable Democratic support. Since the Brownell-Truman flareup, however, many Democrats are expected to be much less co-operative.

BUT PROBLEMS normally reserved for more experienced men have never seemed to frighten Knowland. Long ago, he set himself a fast pace; he has continued to be a young man in a hurry.

As a boy, he searched the problem-filled world beyond the comfortable orbit of a wealthy publishing family. At an age when his schoolmates limited their political concerns to the election of the next class president, Knowland was worrying about the next President of the United States.

At 12, he campaigned for the Harding-Coolidge ticket.

At 16, he headed the finance committee of the Coolidge-Dawes Republican Club of Alameda, his boyside home community, making speeches and soliciting contributions. He was the youngest city finance chairman in history, as far as anyone knew.

In between, he edited the Alameda High School paper, was elected student body treasurer and then president.

At 18, he was married; at 20, he was a father.

At 22, he was a member of the Republican state central committee.

At 24 (after graduation from the University of California with a B.A. in political science), he became the state's youngest assemblyman; at 26, the youngest state Senator; at 30, Republican national committeeman from California; at 33, the youngest chairman of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee.

OBVIOUSLY he was already well grounded in politics when former Gov. Earl Warren appointed the son of his close friend, publisher Joseph R. Knowland of the Oakland Tribune, to the U. S. Senate in 1945. Young Knowland was a 37-year-old Army major in Europe when he heard in Stars and Stripes that he had been named to succeed the late Hiram W. Johnson.

Knowland waded in, in his deliberate way. He worked long hours, read voluminously, made solid Republican friends as a result of his party loyalty and sledge-hammer criticism of the Truman administration.

Speaking out forcefully in his deep voice, he quickly became one of the leading critics of American foreign policy, especially in Asia. Opponents called him the "Senator from Formosa" but he went right on.

He charged the United States had bungled in Korea. He demanded the bombing of Communist targets across the Yalu River. He fought every move to seat Red China in the United Nations—even proposing that we get out if the Chinese Communists got in.

As majority leader, he works closely with President Eisenhower. There are times, though, when he feels it necessary to urge sterner action against Russia or its satellites.

But Knowland also knows dangers of too much rigidity in political thinking. "I have never tried to freeze my thinking," he says. "That would be a very unfortunate position for either an individual or party."

WHATEVER HE DOES, he puts all the energy of his six-foot-one-200-pound frame behind it. Knowland is tenacious, conscientious and something of a worrier, superficially. Basically, he is an optimist. He has great faith in his country and its future.

"We must accept change," however, he says, "it gives us an opportunity to improve the living standards of our people. I certainly don't believe that with all the advantages we've had in science, for instance, we have reached the end of our development. We've really just scratched the surface."

Hard work has lined his large, oval face, yet it retains a smooth and youthful appearance. Perhaps that's because opponents can't seem to do more than bounce off the Knowland granite with their jibes.

On the shoulders of California's William F. Knowland, first Senate majority leader without a majority, will fall the burden of mapping out "areas of adjustment" that Republicans and a substantial number of Democrats can support.

first." He says the menace of communism is global. "We can't close the door in Europe and leave it wide open in Asia."

Despite his rather formal attitude and emphasis on world affairs, Knowland has never had any serious trouble with California voters. In 1952 he could get away from Washington for only two weeks of pre-primary campaigning. He thundered up and down the state, speaking less of his Democratic opponent than of Korea and President Truman's policies.

THERE WAS, as usual with Knowland, no attempt at humor,

Well-liked by most of his colleagues, Knowland is accused by some of his critics of being "bull headed" at times. His opinions are hard to change, they say, his anger is quick and his finesse is sometimes lacking. But no one questions his integrity, honesty or serious-minded devotion to his job.

KNOWLAND LIVES simply for a man of his means and in Washington the Knowlands are not considered social butterflies. The Senator finds his relaxation in reading or an occasional swim.

Being a man with a determined course, he has neither the time nor inclination for hobbies. He doesn't smoke. But while he is far from a back-slapper, he also is known as a good companion when the day's chores are done.

Outside of his work, his main concern is trying to find more time to spend with his wife, the former Helen Merrick, and their three children and two grandchildren. The attractive Mrs. Knowland has published one detective novel and is working on a second.

After college graduation, Knowland went to work for his father's newspaper. In 1933, he became an assistant publisher of the Tribune, a title he still holds along with his older brother, Joseph Russell Knowland Jr.

IN OAKLAND, the Senator still makes his headquarters in a small private office in the Tribune Tower, right next door to his father's. The senior Knowland, son of a gold rush immigrant to California, served in Congress from 1905 to 1914, when he won the GOP nomination to the Senate but lost the election.

Where the father failed, the son succeeded. In 1946, running for his first full Senate term, young Knowland defeated Democrat Will Rogers Jr. by a vote of 1,428,067 to 1,167,161. His sweeping re-election last year to his second full term emphasized Knowland as one of the two strongest political forces in California.

In state politics, he teamed up with former Gov. Earl Warren and between them they pretty well dominated party affairs. It was Knowland who placed Warren's name in nomination for President at the 1952 Republican convention.

Knowland was active behind the scenes at Chicago but he was largely instrumental in holding California's 70 votes intact for Warren. There was talk of friction between Knowland and Nixon, then the state's junior Senator, after Nixon had polled the delegates on their second choice. Since then, the two men have tried to show people they are really good friends.

WARREN'S DEPARTURE for the Supreme Court set off a supposed attempt by GOP elements loyal to Nixon and the new governor, Goodwin J. Knight, to challenge the pro-Warren-Knowland state organization. Again, Nixon and Knowland insisted all this unity.

But to many people it is as inevitable as San Francisco fog that the two big men from California one day will clash. Both are young and ambitious. Both could be serious contenders for the Presidency in 1956 or 1960.

Knowland himself shrugs off any speculation about White House ambitions, emphasizing that he has a job to do in the Senate.

"I've seen more good governors and Senators ruined by the Presidential bug. I always have gone on the theory you should work at the job you are elected to do."

no back-slapping, no baby-kissing, no extravagant promises. Though his oratory was heavy, voters handed him both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

He carried all 58 counties in the GOP race and 57 in the Democratic. In November, he won easily with nearly 4,000,000 votes cast for him — a record total in California.

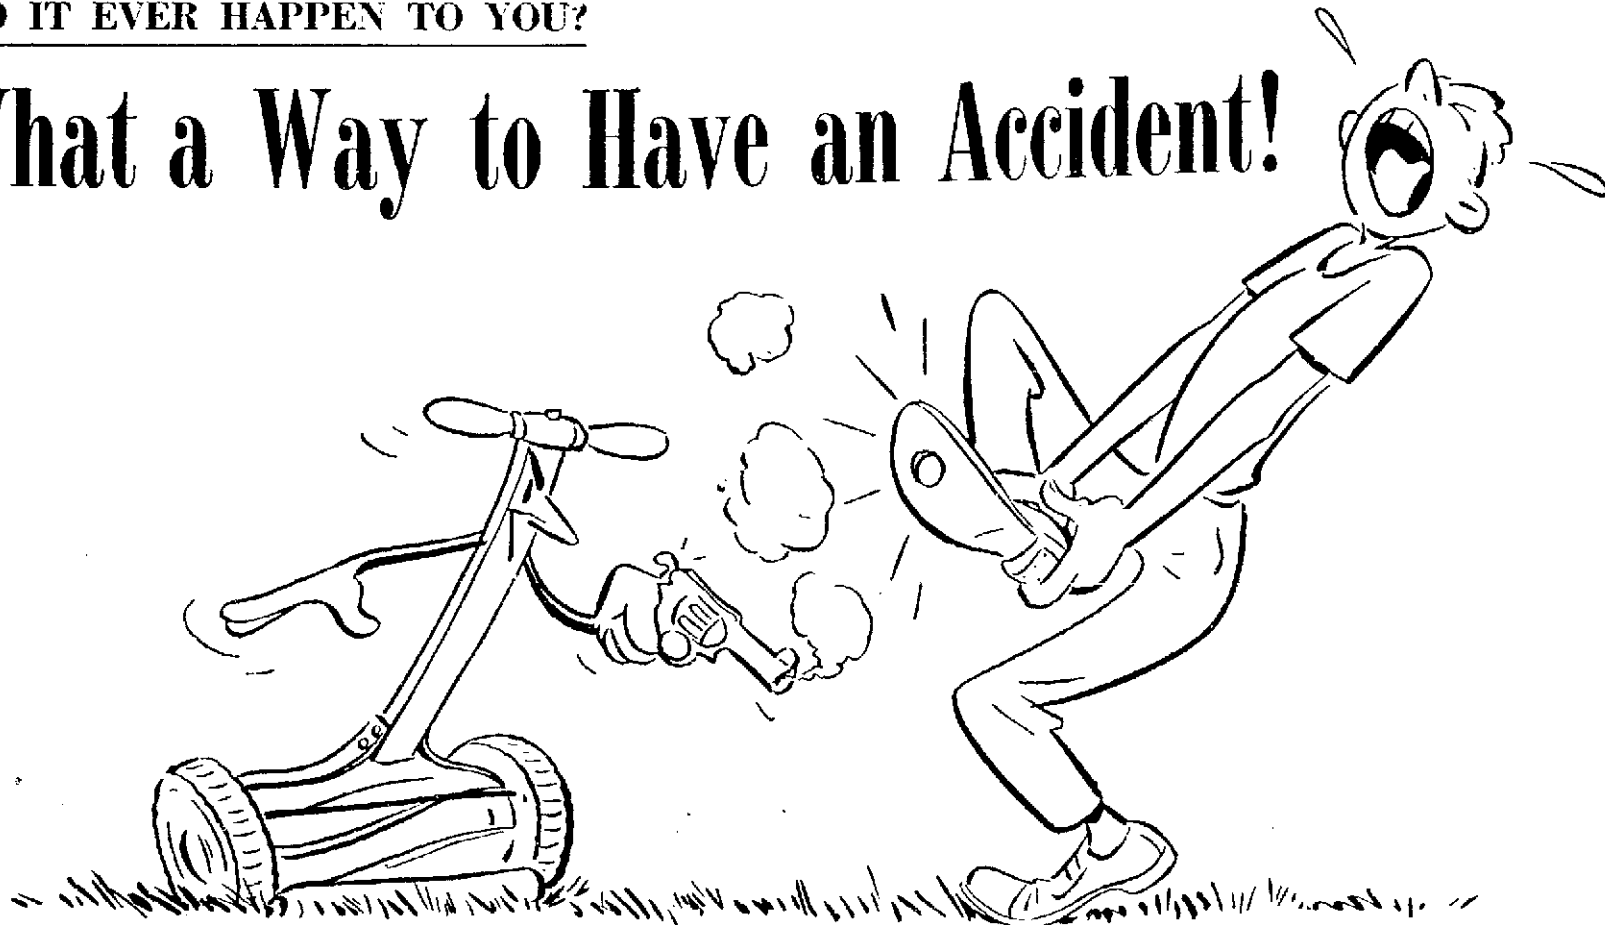

While Robert A. Taft went a long way toward making Republican policy every time he took a personal stand, Knowland has no such following at his command in the Senate. But the Californian already has won a Senate reputation for aggressiveness, especially since he forced a showdown vote on the permanent leadership a few days after Taft's funeral.

He obviously will need all the push he can muster. Thirteen of the Senate's Republicans outrank him in service in a body where seniority usually brings the honors.

DID IT EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

What a Way to Have an Accident!

Robert Heinbaugh of Painesville, Ohio, was shot by his mower. It ran over a shell, exploding the bullet. It hit him in a big toe!

SO YOU THINK you got troubles — that everything happens to you?

Well, have you been shot by your lawnmower lately? Or by a rake? Or by a deer?

Have you had to go around wearing a kitchen sink on your finger? Has your little girl driven the family car into the living room?

No? Then down, boy! You haven't had it at all. For all those wacky things, and many others, happened in 1953 to people who were just as surprised as you would be if they happened to you.

Take a look at the dizzy doings turned up by the National Safety Council in its annual roundup of odd accidents:

In near-by Lakewood, Eugene

By Paul Jones

(National Safety Council)

Peete, a careful man, decided to stay home over the Fourth of July and avoid the hazards of holiday traffic. He did deem it safe to inspect his lawn. Bending over to admire a tender shoot, he was knocked flat by a brass pressure cap which had shaken loose from a passing plane.

ROBERT HEINBAUGH was cutting the grass in his yard at Painesville, Ohio, when all of a sudden he felt shot — and it wasn't from heat or fatigue. His lawnmower had run over a live gun shell which went off. The bullet plugged him in the big toe.

In Santa Cruz, Calif., John Plumb was shot by a rake he had always regarded as trustworthy. He was raking rubbish into a bonfire. In the rubbish was a shotgun shell. Bang!

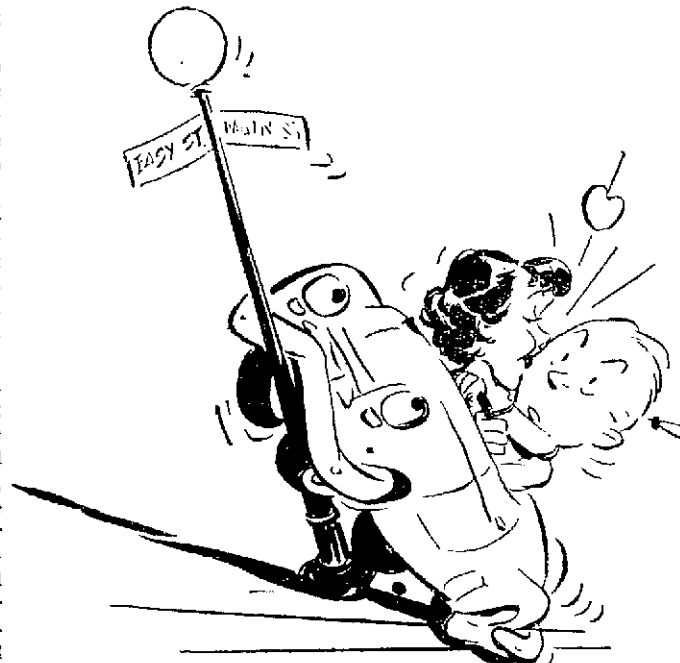

And in Payson, Utah, Shirl Kelsey knelt triumphantly beside the deer he had just shot down. The animal kicked defiantly, struck the trigger of Kelsey's gun, and the bullet hit Kelsey in the thigh.

Any hospital attendant will tell you that some patients bring everything with them but the kitchen sink. Four-year-old Joan Williams, of Texarkana, Ark., even brought that! She had to—it was attached to her finger! Joan had stuck the finger in the drain of the sink, and it stayed there. After simpler methods failed, her father unbolted the sink and took it and Joan to the hospital. They eventually were separated.

SAFETY EXPERTS do a lot of talking about the minimum age for safe driving. The parents of Mary Jane Rodden can tell them that two and a half years is too young. That's how old Mary Jane was the day she somehow managed to start the family car as it stood in the driveway of the Rodden home in Memphis. She had no place in particular to go, so she drove into the Rodden living room. The only thing not expensively damaged was Mary Jane. She felt fine.

And before you sneer "just another woman driver" at Mary Jane, ponder the case of young Anthony Widby, of Detroit, who got behind the wheel of his family car, started it up and drove it slambang into the home of his next door neighbor. Tony got off scot free with the police, too. Maybe it was because he was only two years old.

Well, if babies can drive cars, a real smart animal ought to get away with it too. At least that's what a dog in Lincoln, Nebr., figured. So when Mrs. Jewell Norman left her car with the motor idling, her pet pooch climbed from the back seat into the front, pawed the gear shift a bit, and backed the car accurately and resoundingly into another car. His license has been suspended.

IN MEMPHIS, J. C. Lightfoot stood beneath a tree on a gentle day and drank deeply of the fresh, clean air. He was struck with the beauty of nature. Then he was struck by something else an ear of corn dropped with precision and force by a squirrel in the branches above. Lightfoot left the beauties of nature to go home and nurse a long, deep gash in his head.

Thirteen-year-old Horace Boutwell, of Houston, watched breathlessly as Wild Bill Hickok routed the bad men on TV. Then Horace got out his trusty air rifle and blazed away at a .22-caliber rifle bullet resting on a saw horse several feet away. His dead-center shot sent the casing of the .22 cartridge whizzing back into his shoulder. At the hospital he smiled happily. "Let's see Wild Bill top that!" he said.

Historians may dispute it, but the last shot of the Civil War was fired in 1953—not in 1865. It happened in the living room of the Ishmael Lynch home in Port Gibson, Miss. A Civil War shell, found long ago on a nearby battlefield, fell from a mantel and exploded, blasting holes in the floor, walls and ceiling. No Union or Confederate casualties.

Historians also will be interested to know that George Washington and Benjamin Franklin met again in 1953—not in Independence Hall, but in Richmond, Va. Their trucks collided on a downtown street.

When Eugene Duda's car jumped the curb and knocked down a lamp post in Windsor, Ont., his girl friend took the blame. "It wasn't his fault," she told police. "I kissed him." Her name? Betty Loveless. After this she probably will.

AND IN SANTA BARBARA, the Coffey-Pott accident really had things peckin'. A car driven by Thomas F. Coffey collided with one driven by Ben Pott. Police didn't hold either driver. No grounds!

When Joe Foe fell from the top of a tree he was pruning in Portland, Ore., he didn't get a scratch. But his wife did. She got a lump on the head, a bruised hand and other injuries. He landed on her.

So you think you got troubles — that everything happens to you? Just keep on smiling, bub, and be glad for the humdrum life you live!

J. C. Lightfoot, Memphis, got a deep gash on the head from an ear of corn dropped by a squirrel.

Julie (Esther Williams), aqua-queen, has everyone mad about her except boss Ray Lloyd (Van Johnson), who, in exploiting her charms, forgets she's human.

When Julia threatens to marry her rich swim partner, Hank (John Bromfield), Ray takes her to New York "to relax." Julia hopes he is jealous. She threatens to sign with the producer of the aquacade in Florida, and smiles off his protests.

'Easy to Love'

Water skiing, the most exciting and fastest growing outdoor sport in the world, is ably demonstrated by movie mermaid Esther Williams in a new M-G-M Technicolor musical, "Easy to Love." And when she isn't tearing over water at speeds up to 45 miles an hour, or taking jumps over 12-foot-high ramps, or by allowing a helicopter to tow her over a ramp, up and on to a height of 60 feet where she drops her skis and dives into a formation of 100 skiers—all in a lush setting highly adaptable to Technicolor—she's making the rounds of New York's lush night spots, or making love to three handsome guys.

While in New York, Julia meets Barry (Tony Martin), night club singer. They romance for several days and he follows her back to Florida where he proposes. Julia keeps him dangling while, in the near offing, Ray is biting his nails.

Pursued by three angry young men, Julia goes on with the water show, though deciding to quit when contract is up.

Julia is accidentally knocked out at show's end. Hank and Barry run to help, start a fight over her while Ray...

A Search for

— O'Neal's Portrait Salon

Will the Long Beach district produce a star of ballet?
Jose Martinez, above with a supple partner, hopes so.

By Vera Williams

BALLET'S STARS are fading, and the search is on to find new ones to take their places.

Through the pulsing streets of the great cities, the hamlets and villages of the countryside the hunt takes its way. From Broadway to Long Beach, from Lillypens, Md. to Houston, Texas, no city is so vast, no crossroads town so small that it may not be sheltering the budding talents of another Danilova, Markova or Fokine.

Maybe it will be Long Beach that will give the world a prima ballerina or a premier danseur tomorrow.

Anyway, that is what is in the back of Jose Martinez' mind.

Jose Martinez is a black-haired young man who stands straight as a soldier and walks with the lithe grace of a cat. His white teeth flash often in an engaging smile, but there is a hint of sadness in his black eyes when he speaks of the career that ended on the threshold of fame. For Jose might have been one of the world's great ballet stars.

He was born in a little Mexican village, one of five children. Folk dancing was a tradition in the village, and his mother, Inez Martinez, excelled in the art. She was a fine character dancer, and Jose's father, also named Jose, sang the melodies of his people on festive occasions.

"FROM THE VERY FIRST I loved to dance," says Jose (the younger), "but I didn't like performing for every Tom, Dick and Harry who came to the house for a bottle of tequila."

The family moved to Houston, Texas, where Jose continued to study dancing. "I was going to set the world on fire," he says.

An uncle took him to a performance of the Ballet Russe and the die was cast. Nothing could have kept him from dancing—nothing, that is, except the thing that did it, at last.

At the age of 19, after finish-

His own ballet career halted by injury, Jose Martinez has turned to teaching, has organized a school here.

In the Houston High School, Jose went to New York where he enrolled in the American Ballet School. In the second year he won a half-time scholarship. The third year he won a full-time scholarship.

Impatient for success, he ran away and auditioned for a modern dance sequence in Max Reinhardt's "The Eternal Road."

"I got the job, and then I went back, proud and happy, to tell the principal of the school. I expected to be praised, but instead I got a terrific bawling out and was almost put out of the school."

HIS THEATRICAL DEBUT was deferred only one year, however. In his fourth year he was permitted to audition for musical comedy.

"My first dancing part was in a show called 'Great Lady,'" says Jose. "The curious thing was that 'Great Lady' was intended to be a comeback vehicle for a lot of former stars—Norma Terris, Tullio Carminati, Irene Bordoni -- and all their names were in lights. In the chorus with me, however, were Alicia Alonso, Nora Kaye, Jerome Robbins, Yvonne Patterson. The old-time stars failed to get back on top, but the kids in that chorus turned out to be the new dancing stars."

That summer he went home to Houston and did a dance turn at the nearby night clubs and then returned to New York to join the American Ballet School Company and to perform at the Metropolitan Opera House. This company, first to be organized by the school, was known as "Caravan."

The Caravan company organized a South American tour and gave Jose a chance to try his hand at choreography. He went to Mexico to watch the folk dancers again. Memories of his graceful mother were conjured up afresh as he studied the movements of the dancers.

Research completed, he returned to New York and gave the company's repertoire "Pastorela," a spectacle based on the folk dances of old Mexico. "Pastorela" received its premiere on a program at Hunter College and then it was taken on a South American tour.

HIS STAR was ascending, but then it fell. In a warm-up period of the play, Jose attempted to execute double turns and kneel on one knee, all in one motion. As he went down on his knee, he felt it click.

Football players know that injury. It does not bother for months, then suddenly the leg gives way.

"It is painful for a dancer to sit and watch others dance. Your hands sweat; you want to dance, too."

The injury changed Jose from a dancer to a teacher. He headed the Department of Dance at Rockland Foundation, Nyack, N. Y., and he taught dancing at the High School of Performing Arts in New York.

He is in Long Beach now with his parents, Jose and Inez, at 105 W. Coolidge St. He has opened a School of Ballet at 747 American Ave. What he especially hopes to do is to take teenagers or youngsters even a little younger and make them apprentices of ballet. There is no short cut, he thinks, and they might as well learn right, from a strict choreographer. Someday perhaps—who knows?—a really great dancer may be found here.

Ancient Custom in a New Land

By Isabel J. Young

IT'S A LONG WAY from Moravia to Long Beach, but luckily one of that region's choicest holiday traditions has been carried on here for years by some of its descendants. Many generations ago, the Moravians made the long difficult journey to America, in their search for religious freedom. They brought with them their Yuletide custom of setting up a "Putz," an elaborate Christmas scene, with groups of figures all centering around the manger of the Christ Child.

The Arthur F. Bonzer family of 3715 Gardenia Ave., are descendants of Moravians who came to the New World to escape persecution. One of Mrs. Bonzer's ancestors was a bishop who settled near Bethlehem, Pa. Although opposed to war, he served as an aide to General Washington. After the Revolution, the bishop moved with his followers to the Niagara Peninsula in Canada. Mrs. Bonzer's mother married an American and raised her family in the middle-west.

Since this couple had similar backgrounds, it was natural for them after their marriage, to continue the Old World custom of preparing the "Putz" for Christmas. At first they used just a few simple, hand-carved figures of the Holy Family and the Shepherds; but as years passed, added many other replicas to their collection. Each Christmas in their home before a background, showing the Judean Hills, Herod's Castle and the Inn, groups of figures are arranged. Many small stones, bits of moss, and foliage give the scene a life-like appearance.

At the center in the lighted cave-like stable, in the side of the hill, Mary and Joseph are kneeling with bowed heads at the manger. This contains a tiny figure of the Baby Jesus, wrapped in real swaddling clothes. Also near the crib are some sheep, while an ox keeps watch in the background.

OUTSIDE THE STABLE, at the left, are several sheep with their shepherds, one of whom carries a small lamb, while a dog brings up the rear of the procession. At the other side of the "Putz," Three Kings, dressed in rich robes, are taking their gifts to the Christ Child. Their servants are attending to the camels and near-by is a genuine camel bell.

In front of the Inn is a group of travelers who, like Mary and Joseph, could find no room there. They are busy around an improvised fire, preparing a meal. At the other side of the scene, sheep are waiting for water at the well; above the stable, there are some angels; and a large star shines down. The entire "Putz" is floodlighted from below, revealing a picture not soon forgotten.

This scene forms a fitting background when Mrs. Bonzer reads the incomparable Christmas story from St. Luke or some of her favorite descriptions from Dickens or "Ten Hoor." Their family of six children always celebrated around the "Putz" and now that all of them have married, they bring the grandchildren to the Bonzer home to enjoy the same fascinating scenes they loved in their childhood.

Sun Valley Polishes Its Skis

WHEN THE SNOW is flying in the mountains of Idaho and the annual skiing trek to Sun Valley once again gets under way, enthusiasts for the sport will find the famous Union Pacific resort better equipped for their enjoyment than ever before.

Throughout the warm months crews have been at work expanding winter facilities for the enjoyment of guests. Capacity of the massive chair lifts carrying skiers up the towering slopes of Baldy Mountain has been increased and facilities for skiers on the mountain enlarged and improved. The more than 30 ski runs have been cleaned and widened, a ninth trap has been added at the trap and sket range and there have been other improvements.

This season the three long lifts serving Baldy Mountain, tallest and most popular of the snowy giants ringing the mile-high mountain resort, received major attention. New motors, heavier cables and more chairs were installed on the lifts.

FRED PICARD, ski stylist at the resort, reports the new fashions to be seen on the snowy slopes this season will feature unusual combinations of Swiss and Tyrolean colors.

Six days of ski instruction by experts of the Sun Valley Ski School costs $92. Comfortable bunk-style lodging in Tyrolean-designed chalets, three meals a day in the bright Continental Buffet, and unlimited use of the newly improved chairlifts are included.

THE SAME PLAN is available without meals for $60.50. Also, more private quarters may be taken at Challenger Inn at slightly higher rates.

The bargain package "weeks" are billed for a double running this season. The dates: Jan. 3-9, 10-16, 17-23 and 24-30; Feb. 28-March 6, March 7-13, 14-20, 21-27 and March 28-Apr. 3.

Although the accent's on skiing, sleigh-riding, swimming and other play aplenty on a Sun Valley winter's holiday.

Flight to Hawaii

SMILING FACES, flower-perfumed air, balmy breezes and sunny skies -- those are a traveler's first and last impressions of Hawaii, "Paradise of the Pacific."

Easy accessibility to this island playground from Southern California is made by United Air Lines Mainliners scheduled between Los Angeles and Honolulu. Flights over the 2858-mile Pacific route take less than 10 hours.

The eight-island Hawaiian group spreads out over 2000 miles. Although Honolulu, the capital city, is a wonderland in itself, there are countless other attractions. How many the individual visitor sees is limited only by time and pocketbook. Actually, however, a thoroughly satisfactory Hawaiian visit is possible at moderate cost through United's "package vacations." Vacations, covering hotel accommodations and transportation to and from Los Angeles, are priced upwards from $243. This figure includes everything but taxes, tips and meals in Honolulu.

Waikiki Beach, fronting luxurious hotels at the doorstep of Honolulu, is a world-wide lode-stone for tourists and vacationists. The gentle slope of the ocean floor at this point is particularly well suited for water sports. In outrigger canoes or, if you're expert, perched on a surfboard, you can ride in on the crest of waves which travel at 35 to 40 miles an hour.

Outrigger canoes ride in on waves which travel 35 to 40 miles an hour on Waikiki Beach. Moonlight and fragrance of leis add pleasure to scene in evening.

Evenings at Waikiki are heavy with the fragrance of flower leis. Music from the Royal Hawaiian and Moana hotel dance pavilions floats across the beach where little groups of swimmers wait for the moon to light up the Pacific.

A road from Honolulu winds over the mountains and down the rugged northern slope to the beach resorts of Kailua and Lanikai by way of Pali Pass, one of the most spectacular sights on the island of Oahu. Standing at Nuuanu Pali look-out at the crest of the pass, the viewer surveys miles of verdant countryside in three directions.

The road encircling the island is a succession of points of interest. There's Koko Head, Makapu Point and the Blow Hole where each incoming wave shoots 30 to 50-foot geysers of salt water up through the rocks. There's the gleaming white Mormon Temple at Laie, with its series of pools leading down to the highway; there's the House of Coral where choice bits of ocean rock, sea shells and colorful underwater foliage are collected. There's Waialua Bay, vast expanses of pineapple and sugar cane and, finally, Pearl Harbor.

Oahu, however does not have a monopoly on Hawaiian allure. Five of the seven other islands in the group are of more than passing interest. Frequent flights by Hawaiian and Transpacific Air Lines bring each of them within easy range of the Honolulu airport.

On Hawaii, largest of the islands, mountain streams rushing to the ocean tumble over beautiful Rainbow Falls. A few miles away, Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea rumble in volcanic splendor. Other memorable sights on this, the so-called Orchid Isle, include coffee plantations, Kilauea Crater and the Kona Coast district.

Haleakala, the Crater of the Sun, on the island of Maui, is an awe-inspiring spectacle. The crater, 10,000 feet above the sea, is 22 miles in circumference. Haleakala last erupted in 1683, leaving weird bubbles and fantastic cinder cones. According to native legend, these grotesque formations were wrought by the Goddess Pele, who is said to inhabit the volcano.

Kauai, the Garden Isle, is geologically the oldest in the Hawaiian chain. Forces of erosion have been at work for centuries here, forging sharper peaks, deeper canyons and broader valleys than elsewhere in Hawaii. Lovely little Molokai, the Friendly Isle, also attracts many tourists. Its charm is largely pastoral — pineapple fields, cattle, deep gorges, silvery streams and playful little waterfalls.

United operates seven Mainliner flights weekly between Los Angeles and Honolulu. The company's Mainliner Stratocruisers are the most luxurious airlines in transoceanic service. DeLuxe features include private compartments for large groups and a stateroom, romantically known as the "honeymoon suite." Passenger capacity is limited to 55, assuring ample space and comfort. A lower-deck lounge serves as a skygoing club room for canasta, conversation and refreshments.

Visitors to Hawaii can be assured of hotel accommodations through United's "instant reservations" system which lets the airline confirm space in a dozen of the Islands' most prominent hotels. The company also will arrange car rental in Honolulu.

CALIFORNIA YESTERDAYS

Playing 'Los Pastores'

By Maymie R. Krythe

NAVIDAD (Christmas) was one of the happiest times of the year for the early Californians. Unlike today, their homes were busy places for weeks beforehand; much food was being prepared for company, candles made and parts for the holiday plays rehearsed. Just before the great day rancheros rode to Los Angeles on horseback, while their families came in creaking 'carretas to visit relatives or friends. Often young Angelenos would climb up on the flat roofs of their homes to watch for the visitors.

The holiday celebration began on St. Lucia's Day, Dec. 15, when "Las Posadas" (the lodgings), the search of Joseph and Mary for shelter in Bethlehem, was depicted. Each evening until La Noche Buena (Christmas Eve) a procession of neighbors continued this presentation.

There was another event to which the Angelenos always looked forward — the annual age-old Spanish Nativity play, "Los Pastores" (the Shepherds). This was staged by a group of amateurs who practiced for weeks to become perfect in their parts. Although "Los Pastores" was properly given only on Christmas Eve, the Californians kept up their performances until Jan. 6, the Feast of the Three Kings, at homes in the pueblo or at outlying ranchos.

This ancient drama had reached California from Spain, by way of Mexico, where its early purpose was to teach the people about the first Christmas. "Los Pastores" was played in various parts of our southwest, including Texas and New Mexico.

Its main theme was the triumph of right, the shepherds' victory over El Diablo (the devil)

IN PRESENTING "Los Pastores" the players often added songs and bits of humor of their own. This, of course, especially pleased the young people at the various homes. At the conclusion of the drama everyone — actors and family — joined in singing, dancing and feasting. "Bunuelos," cakes fried in fat, were a delicacy usually served the players on these festive occasions.

At homes in the pueblo, "Los Pastores" was usually given in the main room, or sala, but at the ranchos the players often performed in the courtyard, lighted by flickering lamps or torches. At such outdoor presentations the spectators loudly applauded the fight between San Miguel and the devil, and their faith was restored in their hero, El Diablo, when he later challenged an Indian and chased him around the patio.

It was considered a high honor to be chosen for a role in "Los Pastores." Even Pio Pico, last of the Mexican governors, and his brother, Andres, a general, used to take part with much pride. Around Los Angeles, Jacinto Rodriguez had the reputation of being the best Satan ever to play the role.

FOR YEARS the shepherd play was not given in Los Angeles. However, "Los Fiesteros," an organization developed to perfect the characteristic and traditional folklore of Spanish California, revived it in recent years.

Nowadays, too, "Las Posadas" can be seen at Olvera St. in Los Angeles, at various schools and at Mission San Gabriel. Its annual production at the charming Padua Hills Theater has become a tradition. It is through the revival of these holiday folk plays that many modern Californians learn about the past.

Put Holiday Pictures to Work

By the Shutterbug

Most of us take pictures every Christmas, with the idea of having them to mount in our albums or project on the screen so that we can relive the high points of the happy holiday season. That, of course, is a fine idea, but I've got another idea about how we can make use of some of this year's Christmas gifts right away.

They can be a big help when it comes to writing to out-of-town friends and relatives to say "thank you" for the gifts they have sent to various members of the family. If, with your note, you send a snapshot of the person with the gift, you'll find the donor feels the picture says "thank you" in far better fashion than any words you can find to put on paper.

On some occasions you may want to include more than one picture. For instance, you might snap one as the recipient is opening the gaily wrapped package and then follow it with a shot that records the pleased expression when he or she sees what the gift is. You might even include a third picture, depending on the nature of the gift. That one would show the gift being worn or in use otherwise.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD will have its annual Christmas party, install officers and present awards for the year's work at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in Miller's Restaurant, 2116 Pacific Ave. New officers will be Glenn Sieben, president; Eugene Nye, vice president; Virginia Callender, secretary; Edith Freeman, treasurer. Installing officer will be Chester Tayloe, president of Southern California Council of Camera Clubs.

Winners of the Print of the Year competition are Lowell Weeks, first and second, and Ilse Stevens, third. Winners of the Slide of the Year contest are

Down Christmas Tree Lane

By
Margaret Romer

A MILE-LONG double row of huge Christmas trees, aglow with lights of every imaginable color, creates a vision of many-hued splendor — a beautiful dream that's really true. This fairyland comes to life each Christmas season in Altadena.

The trees, cedrus deodars, border a residence street, now called Christmas Tree Lane.

Some two weeks before Christmas, a crew goes to work stringing more than eight miles of wire to carry the 48,000,000 watts of electricity used each season to light the 10,000 colored globes that make this fairyland.

When darkness settles down on Christmas Eve, a switch is turned on and the lights give forth their fairy glow. From dark until 11 o'clock each night from Christmas Eve until New Year's Eve, a double row of cars glides silently and without lights between the two rows of trees, down this mile-long magic lane. Last season, some 95,000 people in more than 31,000 cars thrilled to the beauty. Boy Scouts ably assist the Los Angeles County sheriff's office in directing traffic so that visitors may enjoy the beauty without shattered nerves or cars.

THE TREES ALONE, at any season, are an inspiration. Shaped like giant green cones, their lower branches sweep the ground and their tops pierce the sky like long fingers pointing to the stars. They grew from seeds sent from the Himalayas abandoned and the house was never built, but the trees flourished. Later, the old ranch was subdivided and the driveway between the trees became a city street. In the early 1920s a group of civic-minded citizens started the project of lighting these giant evergreens at Christmas time. This is the 32nd year of the display which is now a community project.

Mile-long avenue of holiday color is Altadena's famed Christmas Tree Lane, to be lighted on Christmas Eve.

Christmas Fruit Cake

By Mildred K. Flanary
(Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor)

IT'S OPEN SEASON on fruit cakes... and whether your Christmas specialty is white fruit cake, dark fruit cake, or just fruit cake, it's the choicest gift you can give if you can say, "I made it myself."

Such has been the case in the home of Mrs. Fred B. Clark, for there, no Christmas has ever been complete without delicious home-baked fruit cakes, packed full of goodness and flavor. And, "like mother, like daughter," this tradition is being happily carried on in the homes of her daughter, Mrs. Daulton B. Lee, 3061 Mariquita St., and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Clark, 517 Termino Ave., as well. Fact is, they've inherited the art to such an extent that they're past masters in the fruit cake field. They have a family plum pudding recipe, too, which is tops, and today they've shared this and their recipes for regular fruit cake and white fruit cake with us. Peruse them and

Fruit Cake

- 1 pound margarine
- 2 pounds sugar
- 1 dozen eggs
- 2 pounds seeded raisins
- 4 pounds white raisins
- 1 pound currants
- 1/2 pound walnuts
- 1/2 pound blanched almonds
- 1 pound mixed peel (cut)
- 1 pound cherries (whole)
- 1 pound pineapple (cut)
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 5 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract
- 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice, cloves

Cream margarine and sugar. Add beaten yolks. Add spices and extract, cream of tartar. Add soda to sour cream and add to mixture alternately with four cups flour (other cup goes on mixed fruit—mix well so fruit will not stick together). Lastly, fold in beaten whites. Add fruit to batter and mix well. Put in loaf pans that have been greased and lined with wax paper. Put in slow oven and bake for two hours. Place pan of water in bottom of oven. When cakes are done, remove from oven and place on side. Before cakes are cold turn out and remove wax paper. Makes about 18 pounds.

Plum Pudding

- 1/2 pound stale bread crumbs
- 1 cup scalded milk
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 5 eggs
- 1 cup seeded raisins—cut,

floured with 2 level table-spoons flour

- 1/2 pound cherries (whole)
- 1/2 cup currants
- 1/2 cup nuts
- 1/2 cup citron (cut)
- 1/2 pound kidney suet (ground)
- 1/2 cup brandy (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon mace
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt

Soak crumbs in milk for one hour. Add sugar, beaten eggs, spices, then fruit. Mix and steam for two hours. One-pound coffee cans lined with wax paper are excellent to steam pudding in. Serve hot with either hard sauce or pudding sauce.

Hard Sauce

Cream butter and powdered sugar and cream, as for icing. Add nutmeg and vanilla. Drop

Kitchen Tip:

Kitchen tip by Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Clark—One-pound butter cartons make good molds for ice box cookies.

Mrs. Clark's White Fruit Cake:

- 1 doz. eggs
- 1 lb. margarine
- 1 lb. sugar
- 1 lb. currants
- 1 lb. white raisins
- 1/2 lb. orange peel (cut)
- 1/2 lb. lemon peel (cut)
- 1 lb. flour
- 1/2 lb. blanched almonds
- 1 lb. pineapple (cut)
- 1 lb. cherries (whole)

Cream margarine and sugar. Beat yolks and add to first mixture. Add beaten whites. Beat until light and fluffy, about 1/2 hour. There is no baking powder or soda! Add flour and fruit and almonds. Put in pan that has been lined with cardboard and wax paper. Bake oven hot when you put it in but turn down immediately and cook slowly 2 hours.

Candlelight for Christmas

Cleverly crafted Christmas candles are a specialty at the home of Mrs. Cleone Greerson of Norwalk, who tells below how others, too, can make these attractive items.

By Marion Seddon

MOST OF THE YEAR, Mrs. Cleone Greerson, of 14346 Ibex Ave., is combination housewife, mother and teacher. But during the weeks preceding Christmas she adds the role of candlemaker.

Each year Mrs. Greerson makes 20 or more candles as gifts for friends and for use at various social or school functions.

Here is her recipe:

Melt paraffin in a deep sauce pan — deep enough so that it will not spatter on the stove burner. While paraffin is melting make the mold ready. Mrs. Greerson's favorite mold is a milk carton. To make sure that the weight and heat of the melted paraffin does not split or sag the sides, she reinforces the carton by tying string around it in three places.

Before pouring in the paraffin, insert the wick. Poke a string through a tiny hole at the bottom of the carton and knot it. At the top, the string can be secured by tying it to a pencil and twisting the pencil until it fits snugly across the carton.

Pour the melted paraffin into the carton. While doing this it is wise to have the carton set in a large metal container (such as an old canister). To speed up the cooling of the paraffin, set it in the refrigerator.

When the paraffin is hardened, simply tear off the paper carton. If paper seems to stick to paraffin, place carton in warm water.

Now place more paraffin in the deep pan, melt it to a liquid and let it cool slightly. Then beat it until foamy with either an electric beater or hand beater. With a spoon daub the foamy mixture onto the molded candle.

BY USING MOLDS of different sizes and shapes all kinds of candles can be made. For a small, fat candle use a half-pint milk carton. To make a tall, slender candle use the paper core from a waxed paper roll. Make sure it will cleave away from the paraffin by waxing the inside of the roller. Cookie and gelatin molds can be used for wax figurines or for shallow floating candles.

Colored candles are made by dropping into the melting paraffin pieces of Crayola, tempera powder paint or vegetable dye. "The best coloring," said Mrs. Greerson, "is made by using leftover lipsticks."

"One year," she said, "I was asked to make candles for an installation dinner. Being pressed for time, I bought 10 round red candles, then daubed on the whipped paraffin. The effect was lovely — dull red and sparkling white froth."

"But I do think my own candles would have burned with less flickering than did those I purchased!"

"The clean-up job is simple if you pour boiling water over your utensils," concludes Mrs. Greerson.

Function Joins With Fashion

NEW styling, greater comfort and expanded use of color mark dining and playroom furniture shown in the local stores this fall and winter. Designers have worked for a union of fashion and function in the new trends of furniture styling, and metal furniture has been brought out of the kitchen by use of color and pattern. Plastics and graceful tubular steel, color sheathed and magnetically bonded, have brought metal products into living spaces. A hint of what some of the newest-of-the-new looks like is given by the examples pictured here. They are models by Daystrom, a big producer of dining furniture. Chairs are foam-rubber padded and wire-backed; open work making them easy to move about. Slip-over backs for all chairs prevent wall markings. Scores of designs and groupings are available, indicating the variety existing in all 1953 furniture lines.

Kitchen dining becomes a fashionable affair if you choose practical chrome furniture that's a show of color and design. Here is a set to brighten any corner. It's comfortable, strong.

Mugs and Plates to Cherish

"Play house" dishes shown above are cherished heirlooms of Mrs. Mark Houghton of Long Beach. Items like these can form the basis of interesting collections.

By Ruth Reece

IF YOU are longing for a new hobby, why not start to collect children's plates and mugs of the 19th Century? There are many types of mugs, from those with cheap transfer prints and rhymes and jingles to the fine, decorated creamware mugs of Leeds, Bristol, and Liverpool.

Some of the earlier types of children's mugs bore the name of the owner, such as "A Gift for William," "A Present for Nancy," or "For My Sweet Little Girl." These mugs are rare.

Another type of child's mug was made of canary-color and had quaint transfer scenes, such as a cow grazing, a house with children playing, and bore inscriptions such as "A Squirrel for Mary," "A Pony for Edward," or "A New Doll for Martha," together with the animal or object mentioned.

A canary mug in one collection has a black transfer with the words, "Come, dear child, and let me see, How can you do your ABC." It has an ABC border around the edge and was one of the first types of ABC mugs made.

BLUE AND WHITE pottery mugs with names and inscriptions form another group of children's mugs. Other mugs had rhymes and scenes from children's poems and maxims from Poor Richard's Almanack. These Franklin maxim mugs are among the most sought after today. Most of them are of heavy ironstone. One of the maxims used the most was "Keep thy shop and thy shop will keep Thee." The earliest scene illustrating this maxim shows a shop with the name, "Do Nothing," and a "To Let" sign.

While a collection of children's mugs with late transfer scenes may be purchased at a moderate price, the early transfers and those with silver-resist patterns are scarce and expensive.

CHILDREN'S PLATES were not made in so many different patterns as the mugs. Most of the plates are later in date, and the majority of them illustrate a story or maxim. The most popular plate for a child was the alphabet type which have become very popular with collectors in the last few years. The borders usually are embossed with the letters of the alphabet, hence are called ABC plates. They were made between 1820 and 1860.

In no way connected with the story of children's mugs and plates are the dishes illustrated, which were used by children when "playing house," or having a tea party. They are the treasured possession of Mrs. Mark Houghton of 1108 E. Tenth St. and belonged originally to her great-grandmother. They came from England about 1800 and were given to Mrs. Houghton by her grandfather, Oliver Torbet of Indianapolis, Ind.

It's Done With Blocks

MORE AND MORE architects, builders and owners are selecting lightweight concrete block for home construction. The durability of block has long been recognized and utilized in the building of walls, commercial and industrial buildings. With the idea in mind of employing versatile masonry units for residential construction, much research has been done to improve the appearance and uniformity of concrete blocks. Great strides have been made by architects and designers to provide attractive plans adapted to our Southland way of living. Experience has proven that a home constructed of lightweight concrete block is warmer in winter, cooler in summer and quieter all the year around. Insurance companies, recognizing the added safety of lightweight concrete block homes, offer the owner lower rates of insurance.

Lightweight concrete blocks are manufactured to withstand all of the elements which cause deterioration and raise the cost of upkeep of a home. They have no attraction to vermin, fungus and termites, which have proven to be costly to home owners everywhere. They will not burn and the owner of a lightweight concrete block home knows that he and his family have all of the safety and comfort they desire and yet the maintenance cost is practically non-existent. All of these features can be enjoyed with no sacrifice in beauty, as lightweight concrete block can be easily and attractively adapted to any style and design.

The "Random Ashler" pattern of concrete blocks is used here to make an attractive garden wall.

MOORE MANOR is a magnificent two-story white mansion located at 16446 Grand Ave. Its owners are Mr. and Mrs. John D. Moore, a young couple who are bravely ignoring the colonial "past" of the house.

The manor, a landmark in the area, has all the regal bearing of an old southern colonial plantation. All of which makes its modern furnishings seem, at first, a little startling in their unexpectedness.

A Colonial House Goes

The Moores' dining room is large as a small ballroom. Ten chairs stand ready to seat a large dinner party.

The Moores call their home "Moore Manor," a title in keeping with its large site and spacious dwelling. A pool sparkles amid enclosure of house, trees.

Moore were looking for a home, the manor filled all their necessities—and then some! Living space in the house is something over 3600 square feet. There is plenty of room for entertaining, and it offers living on quite an elegant scale.

The exterior of the home is pretentious and altogether pleasing. It is, however, uncompromisingly colonial in everything from architecture to landscape—a feature not at all what the Moore's set out to find.

But its convenient location (Moore's automobile agency is located in Bellflower), its spaciousness, its lovely grounds with the stately old oaks and eucalyptus trees and the swimming pool and barbecue facilities were too tempting to resist.

So last April, the Moores with their two little daughters moved into the manor and proceeded to convert the interior of the house into something of interesting and pleasing variance with ly, it is a dramatic setting for the extreme modern furniture.

The Moores' 15-foot sofa appears no larger in this room than a standard sized piece would in a more ordinary room. But the fact that this, after all, is a long expanse was borne out by the difficulty the Moores experienced in installing a valance box of that length. A wooden easement proved to be of inadequate strength to span the distance after the added weight of padding and fabric was added to it. After a futile attempt to have such a box hung, they had a valance of metal manufactured especially for their needs. It is padded in cherry-colored silk faille quilted in metallic gold. The champagne colored faille curtains that cascade from this extraordinary height are woven through with gold. The sofa is upholstered in plain textured cherry fabric.

Beyond the living room is Moore's sanctuary, a cozy den paneled in mahogany. A red brick fireplace adds interest to the room.

THE DINING ROOM has the separateness and the expansive proportions characteristic of Colonial styling. Again, oversized furniture seems quite insignificant in this large area. The bleached dining table a completely unrelieved, sleekly designed piece typical of modern — is more than eight feet in length, before expansion. Ten sidechairs upholstered in green and gold tweed stand ready to accommodate a large party of diners.

The room is wainscoted in paneling in two tones of sage green. Above, the walls are papered in a pattern of dubonnet roses with green foliage against a ground of oyster white. It is interesting to note how this paper neither modern nor strictly period in feeling, helps bridge the gap between the two.

An attractive feature of the dining room is a solid row of windows, contained in sheer white organza, that overlooks the pool and the terrace.

Beyond the dining room is the informal breakfast area for the family. This is possibly one of the most welcoming spots in the entire house. It is spacious enough to accommodate six diners with ease, and its bay windows and French doors open onto the terrace leading to the pool.

The dining room and the living room both have access to the central hall from which curved stairs lead to the two bedrooms and baths upstairs.

A third bedroom, a guest room, is located directly off the hall downstairs and has its own bath.

It is out of the family's traffic areas, assuring quiet and privacy. Its windows overlook the shaded carriage drive.

UPSTAIRS, the master bedroom boasts of a dressing room, a master bath and an inviting little balcony overlooking the front yard. Branches from the giant oaks and eucalyptus trees, much smaller than the house, brush against the windows and filter the sunlight.

In addition to the stately front yard, the house has two side yards and an expansive back yard as well. One side, that on which the dining rooms face, is complete with pool, bricked terrace and an impressive array of outdoor furniture.

The yard at the other side of the house features a latticed barbecue pit with an assortment of dining tables and benches grouped about the stone fireplace. Swings and slides provide an inviting play area for the girls adjacent to the barbecue.

The backyard is less formally planned. Out here is the girl's play house and a badminton court.

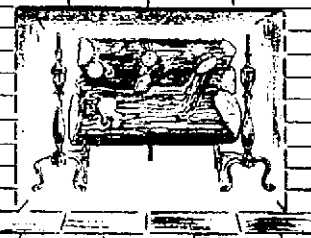

Few houses offer all the features of Moore Manor — inside or out!

in whole egg and beat with electric beater.

Pudding Sauce

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup cream
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 1 teaspoon flour (scent)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Boil all together and serve hot on pudding.

Decorating Fruit Cakes

Decorate your fruit cakes after storage and just before serving or sending as gifts. Fruit cakes may be either glazed or frosted and a special decorative design placed on top. For a preview that will make for perfection arrange pattern of design on waxed paper, cut to size of cake, then transfer to cake top.

Sparkling Amber Glaze

Stir together 1 cup beet or cane sugar, 1/4 teaspoon each cream of tartar and salt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1/2 cup water. Cook to a hard-crack stage (300 F.) — takes about 8 minutes. Remove from heat and brush on top of cake with brush. Arrange design on glaze while it is still warm. Let set until firm. One-half teaspoon syrup dropped into cold water separates into hard, brittle threads.

Try one of these designs on the glazed surface of your fruit cake:

Tagging the Yellowtail

WHEN the California Department of Fish and Game's big research boat, N. B. Scofield, goes to sea, the quest is a scientific one, but there's excitement and sport too. Activities of this big 100-foot specially equipped craft, range from deep sea trawling for plankton study to many tagging operations of game fish and "long line" fishing for monsters seldom taken by commercial and sport fishing boats.

Of special interest to South Coast anglers are tagging operations, which the biologists of the department believe will result in findings to aid in better fishery management of our tuna, albacore, many varieties of bass and the popular yellowtail.

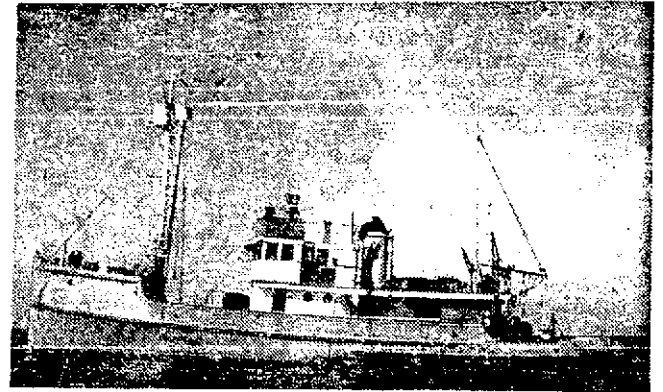

On a recent 23-day voyage down the coast of Baja California to Magdalena Bay and adjacent waters, the writer was a member of the Scofield's personnel. Yellowtail tagging was the principal aim of the trip, and 1496 of these fine game fish were taken, tagged, and returned to the water unhurt.

This number constituted a record on "yellow" tagging for one voyage, many more of which will be undertaken to reach a tentative goal of 10,000—possibly more—fish so marked. Little is known of the yellowtail's migration pattern, spawning habits or rate of growth. Always appearing in Southern California waters from their southern habitat in the spring, these fish rate "No. 1" in most sea anglers estimation. But fewer appear in local waters each season, and the scientists from the state's big Terminal Island Marine Laboratory want to know why.

TWO TAGS are attached to each fish taken. One plastic disc is held by nylon monofilament, inserted under the dorsal fin. A plastic tubular "bridle" tag is passed through the back farther to the rear, having the necessary data printed and visible inside it. Each fish is measured, exact data on locality and its condition recorded, to correspond with an identifying number on the tags. These, found on fish, should be returned to the laboratory promptly, as directed on the tag.

In charge of the overall yellowtail tagging operation, financed by Department of Fish and Game funds jointly with federal money provided under the Dingell-Johnson Act, is Robert Collier, associate biologist at the Terminal Island laboratory. Entire supervision of the many marine research programs handled by the Scofield and her sister ship, the Yellowfin, is under Dr. Frances Clark, senior biologist at the laboratory. Chief of the Marine Division, in charge of all California marine fisheries, is Richard Croker, of the department's head office, in Sacramento.

The Pacific off Baja California literally teems with fish of many varieties. Each voyage there proves one "of discovery." And always there's grand sport, along with the scientific work. When Captain Mitchell pinpointed a tiny 13-fathom bank at the edge of larger Uncle Sam Bank, far offshore, and dropped the hook, ravenous yellowtail were expected. They materialized! More than 200 were landed and tagged the first day, with all members, even the cook, plying rods.

Then came the flashing, gorgeously-colored dolphin, perhaps the speediest fish that swims. When hooked they make a long, swift, surface run, leap like marlin, never give up. Seldom appearing in local waters, the ocean temperature of 80 degrees there was to their liking. First in pairs, then dozens, and finally literally in hundreds, they surged about the boat, night and day. Many were taken and frozen for food. Others were returned to the water unhurt.

GIANT BLACK SEA BASS were taken on the banks, great Cabrillo of several varieties—and sharks—which were not welcomed. Returning, the Scofield anchored at Cedros Island, which guards the lower sweep of great San Sebastian Vizcaino Bay. Here schools of very large yellowtail were found, first taken on light, sporting gear, then "jackpoled" in, after copious chumming with anchovies to bring them to the surface. Several large tuna clippers also were "working" the fish close under the island cliffs. One "topped off" its light tuna load with several tons of fish, taken within an hour or two.

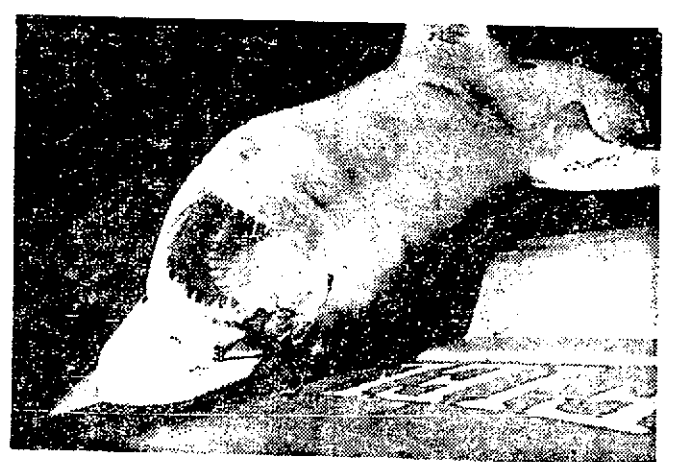

Most recent voyage of the Scofield entailed tagging of the last of the albacore run, which generally missed local waters and swept past far to sea. Already tagging has disclosed that these strange, unpredictable migrants claim all the Pacific as their own. One recently taken in waters off Japan had been tagged locally only a few months before. It had traveled more than 4000 miles, at an average speed of 15 miles per day!

Only time will tell—and the hard-working biologists can only guess—what future deep sea exploration will disclose about our Pacific fishery. The Scofield last winter essayed her first "long line" fishing far south, along the equator and around the Galapagos Islands.

THE LONG LINE is eight miles in length, is suspended from buoys, and carries 350 dropper lines, 240 feet long. Each has a large hook baited with a sardine. This exploration, it is hoped, will help develop new fields in commercial fishing, which heretofore in southern waters has been only on the surface.

Great tuna, up to 300 pounds, were thus taken, and many other fish not usually found on the surface. And a 700-pound black marlin was caught in this deep fishing. So, there's much scientific interest in the Scofield's voyages, always the element of excitement, in playing with the "unknown." And always there's marvelous sport with rod and reel, to compensate for the long days of labor and the evenings of record keeping and laboratory study.

Cavernous, spike-toothed mouth yawning, an unwanted shark is hauled up on the N. B. Scofield's heavy gear.

Life With a Purpose

LIFE IS WORTH LIVING, by Fulton J. Sheen (McGraw-Hill, $3.75).

"Is life worth living, or is it dull and monotonous?" asks Bishop Sheen, and he answers himself with, "Life IS monotonous if it is meaningless; it is NOT monotonous if it has a purpose."

This volume, timed to come out before the Christmas season, includes 26 of Bishop Sheen's television talks, transcribed from tape recordings because, as his followers know, Bishop Sheen speaks spontaneously, not from prepared notes. Sprinkled through the pages are the blackboard sketches and the little angel familiar to watchers of his programs.

Bishop Sheen discusses a variety of subjects: How husbands and wives should get along, how teen-agers should be reared, as well as relativity and the atom bomb, Marxism and communism compared with Christianity and democracy, conscience, fear, fatigue and poetry.

The volume is dedicated "to our heavenly mother who stands behind me at every telecast..." —V. W.

CHRISTMAS IDEA BOOK, by Dorothy Biddle and Dorothy Blom (Barrows, $3.50).

Make it easy, make it inexpensive and make it simple is the theme of this book about decorating the home for Christmas. And it contains an array of ideas such as you have never seen!

SNOWFLAKE, by Paul Gallico (Doubleday, $1.75).

The author of "The Small Miracle" and other great books sets down the tale of a snowflake which turns out to be a charming and inspirational allegory about life itself. Beautiful in design and content. Decorations are by David Knight and Reisle Lonette.

OUR AMERICA: Engagement Calendar for 1951 (Doubleday, $11).

Fifty-four beautiful scenes in full color, some of them from California, augment the day-by-day, morning-afternoon-evening spaces for advance listing of personal engagements. Bored as a gift and it's a beauty!

THE NOEL COWARD SONG BOOK, with an introduction by Noel Coward (Simon and Schuster, $7.50).

Fifty-one Noel Coward song hits — beginning with "Forbidden Fruit," which the composer wrote when he was 16, and ending with "Three Juvenile Delinquents" from the musical comedy, "Ace of Clubs" — fill this handsome treasury. They are divided into sections according to the years in which they were written, and each section is prefaced by its own introduction. Music lovers will cherish this one.

A TREASURY OF RAILROAD FOLKLORE, edited by B. A. Botkin and Alvin F. Harlow (Crown, $4).

The most complete collection of railroadiana available today—544 pages of stories, tall tales, traditions, ballads and songs — calculated to mirror railroading as a way of life on the American scene. You will thrill to the real Casey Jones, the first train hold-up, the hoboes, the cracker barrel lines, and even the special run of California's own Death Valley Scotty.

Record Stamp Sale

First day cancellations of the Trucking Industry commemorative stamp at Los Angeles on Oct. 27 broke all records. A total of 875,021 first day covers was cancelled. This surpasses the previous record of 712,873 covers cancelled during the first-day sale of the Centenary of the First Postage Stamp issue at New York in 1947.

... Becomes a playwright ...

"ZARINE," two-act play by Utric Vanden Berghe, Long Beach representative for G. Schirmer Music, Inc., operating music and records at Humphreys Music Co., 130 Pine Ave., has been accepted by the Philosophical Library publishers of New York. The book, illustrated by Howard Clark of Long Beach, will be published next spring.

Utric, whose uncle, Antoine Devare, is a leading Belgian contemporary artist, writes under the name of Utric Devare.

The drama is the tragic story of a Roman noblewoman who, forsaken by her husband, falls in love with a young Roman officer, only to sacrifice herself because of self-condemnation. It now is being translated into French by the head of a theatrical troupe who expects to present it in France next year.

The young writer was born in Culver City, attended South Gate High School and Compton Junior College where he took part in dramatics. He has lived in Long Beach eight months.

Don't Be Afraid of Your Child

Piano for the Kids

By Elaine Hauck

FRED WARING has made many worthwhile contributions to the enjoyment of music. His latest, however, is of particular interest to music educators and parents of young children. It is "Piano Sessions" — an introduction to music for children 4 to 7 years of age.

Recognizing the problem of how and when to introduce children to music most effectively, the Fred Waring Music Workshop set to work five years ago to study the attitudes of young children and teen-agers toward music instruction, appreciation and participation.

Their surveys of more than 5000 individuals showed that the negative attitude of many teen-agers toward music was the result of unhappy early experiences in musical training. It was evident that conventional musical training was begun too late, at a time when the student's other abilities were already well advanced.

The Fred Waring staff felt that an improvement in teen-agers' attitudes toward music would result from an earlier introduction of music training — so that musical ability, inherent in all young children, would develop simultaneously with other abilities.

"Piano Sessions" has been successfully tested in close to 3000 homes across the nation and is being offered to the public in the form of a complete instruction kit. It is a colorfully illustrated package of five books which present the fundamentals of music in child-size portions by means of games, puzzles, pictures to color, cut-outs, rhymes and other activities known to be appealing to children.

The most mysterious thing about music for most people is the reading of music; the translation of musical symbols into sounds. With "Piano Sessions" children are taught by their parents, who need no previous music training, to recognize musical symbols just as they are taught the letters of the alphabet.

Fred Waring and the staff of his Music Workshop are confident that the proper application

FRED WARING
He works for children of the principles of "Piano Sessions" by parents and educators will significantly affect the future of music in America by fostering the love of good music in the home through early understanding and family participation.

Dwarf Citrus -- A Lasting Gift

IF YOU HAVE a friend or relative who is a garden enthusiast, check off one item on your Christmas shopping list and mark it "dwarf citrus." There you have a ready answer to the question of "what to buy?" and you can give double value!

Dwarf citrus — Meyer lemon, Rangpur lime, kumquat and Calamondin — are double-feature gifts, offering beauty in the garden the year around and yielding tangy, delicious fruit for use in beverages and in making preserves. What's more, the gift is more than just a thing of the season; it will stand for years as a memento of the regard of the giver.

In the Long Beach district, Meyer lemon is most popular among home gardeners, but Rangpur lime is a close second. Both do well in pots, espaliered or as a bush or hedge—but, by all means, be sure your gift recipient's garden has the spot for the gift before you send it along. Dwarf citrus are economical of space but they do need some room in a sunny place.

They make handsome garden subjects, thrive in almost any sun-drenched spot and start

bearing while still quite young. And they bear fruit, blossoms and shiny green leaves at the same time, remaining green the year around. Even small trees in gallon-sized cans at the nurseries will often be found bearing golden fruit.

And surprisingly, you will find they do as well in a large pot or box as they do in the ground. Then you can move the pots around at your will, to dress up a patio, a verandah, a terrace.

AN ATTRACTIVE GIFT way to present one of these ornamental citrus plants is to set it in a pot, then after the holidays are past, it can be set in the ground. February is a good month to set out citrus.

The Meyer lemon bush grows three to five feet tall and almost as wide, has luxuriant shiny light green foliage and fragrant blossoms. Its very large lemons have an orange-colored flesh.

Rangpur lime shoots up in no time to five or six feet and spreads to 4 or 5 feet. It is an unusually heavy bearer of tangerine-sized orange, tartly flavored fruit about the size of a medium tomato. The fruit can be used, as are lemons, in beverages, in pies and is especially delicious in marmalade. It too, has lustrous bright green foliage.

Another small citrus tree, the kumquat is a choice member of the dwarf citrus clan. It seldom grows taller than 5 feet, is a symmetrical rounded tree. Through winter and spring, this miniature tree is loaded with small oval orange-like, orange-colored fruits, about the size of a large almond though plumper. The skin is eaten as well as the flesh. The skin has a refreshing aromatic flavor while the flesh is pleasingly tangy. When preserved whole, kumquats are considered a gourmet's delicacy.

Early in summer the dainty little tree is studded with countless blossoms, a promise of a heavy crop of fruit.

THE KUMQUAT does as well in a large pot as in the family orchard. Plant it in a warm, sunny spot. It requires considerable summer heat to produce a generous crop of fruit.

Another newer dwarf citrus, the Calamondin is a slender, 10-foot tree with quite small glossy leaves that form a dense background for the quantities of small very juicy orange-like fruits whose flesh is orange and tart. The juice is popularly used for beverages and the fruit is preserved.

Lawn of Eternal Spring

TO HAVE a lawn of lasting beauty with the rich greenness of eternal spring, the lush springy touch of an imported carpet and the least amount of work believable in connection with a good lawn, plant dichondra repens. Here is a glutton for abuse that so thrives on good care there is a temptation to plant it over the entire yard area. Happily its lush growth is mostly horizontal, so cutting is only an occasional chore.

Dichondra is partial to loose sandy soil with generous amounts of humus incorporated into the top two-inch layer. For proper growth it needs ample fertilization plus generous and frequent watering. Weed control is important in the early stages of growth although dichondra will throttle out most weeds when well established.

For starting lawns, flats of field grown dichondra turf are generally available. Dividing this material into one-inch pieces provides about 300 to 500 starts. These should be pressed into the ground on about eight-inch centers. Then the entire area should be moderately covered with peat moss, sawdust or well aged steer manure to conserve moisture and protect the young stalons that shoot out. Twice daily watering is recommended until the clumps take hold.

Once established a dichondra

lawn is a permanent fixture for years to come. Cutting is recommended when growth becomes untidy or stringy. In shade areas the leaves will be larger and the general growth will be looser and in such an area more frequent cutting is beneficial.

Dazzling Delphinium

By Walter Finch

DELPHINIUM is one of the true garden aristocrats and ruling this royal house is the cross pollinized strain of Pacific Giant hybrids from the gardens of Frank Reinelt at Capitola. Here are delphinium that are dazzling in their size, color and form and are rewarding for the time and patience required to flower them.

While delphinium can be planted the year around in California, the Bedding Plant Advisory Board recommends starting in November or as soon after as is feasible. The Pacific hybrid strain grows tall and requires rich loose soil. Do not surround your delphinium plants too closely with other plant material as regular cultivation is a requisite. It is better to let delphinium stand as a focal point in some prominent spot in the garden with some lower growing material to shield the base. Delphinium clustered in groups of five to seven surrounded with a spring blooming base of Iceland poppy, later with Sweet William, or a summer base of pink or white petunias and stock or tetra snapdragons bordered with yellow viola would be a garden portrait to delight the eye for months on end!

Another combination of note is to combine the tall Pacific Giant hybrids with the dwarf Chinese delphinium which are 12-to-18-inch growers. These are available in a rich deep blue and a soft sky blue. Such a planting, bordered with corresponding shades of lobelia, will produce a true "Rhapsody in Blue."

A true aristocrat in the garden, delphinium will yield dazzling color results. Best are Pacific Giant hybrids.

The woman's voice, pleasant, unhurried, comes from the record player. Beside it a parakeet sits in a covered cage, listening intently.

He will hear the record for 20 minutes in two sessions today and tomorrow and the next day and the next. With some luck, on the fifth day he will be able

Your Lawn and Plants Need More Than Water

Garden Authority Urges Fertilizing in Winter

It's now time to give those new and renovated lawns sown in October a feeding with Red Star Gro-Master. And be sure to work Gro-Master into flower beds where you'll be planting asters, daisies, phlox and other perennials and annuals along in March!

When you enrich the soil with triple-action Red Star Gro-Master, you help plants three ways: 1. Promotes immediate growth; you see results the first week. 2. Keeps feeding as plants grow; long lasting. 3. Provides organic matter to improve soil; no "inert filler," every ounce helps.

FOR SHADE GARDENS, Red Star Oak Leaf Mold worked into the soil will pay big dividends in extra growth and bloom. It provides humus and also helps to keep soil on the acid side.

OPEN ONLY A YEAR, Hoefly's Lakewood restaurant has quickly established a reputation for serving cuisine as superb as that of its famous older brother, Hoefly's in Belmont Shore.

Steaks and prime ribs are two of the featured attractions at Hoefly's, Lakewood. And top billing on the menu goes to the house specialty—an immense, 40-ounce planked porterhouse (served for 2) which is only slightly less impressive than the Empire State building.

This enormous steak is served on a round wooden plank, the meat in the center. Upon it are heaped golden French fried onion rings and dollar-sized mushrooms. Alongside are perfect peas, asparagus and grilled tomatoes and the whole technicolor treat is surrounded by a dainty garnish border of whipped potatoes. Also included are a large Hoefly's tossed green salad, a jumbo, 14-ounce baked potato with cheese sauce, and choice of beverage. For patrons who still have room, Hoefly's Strawberry Surprise makes a fitting finale to the meal.

PRICES at Hoefly's are scaled for all budgets. Dining in the Coffee Shop is quite inexpensive. Complete dinners in the Dining Room and Tap Room (where Ray Whitaker is featured at the piano-bar) are priced as low as $1.75.

Host and manager at Hoefly's, Lakewood, is tall, broad-shouldered Al Solomon, one of the five sons of Irving Solomon who owns both Hoefly's restaurants. A Wilson High graduate and former City College student, Al served four years in the Air Force during World War II and was associated with his father at Hoefly's, Belmont Shore, for six years before taking over as Lakewood manager. On week ends, Al is assisted at the restaurant by his girl Friday, his petite, brunette wife, Jean. They have two children, Marlene, 5, and Nancy, 2½.

Only Snowdrift gives you this proof of good taste...

This is a real test of shortening quality:

CREAMY CHOCOLATE ICING
(Quick, no cooking, never fails)

Sift 1 lb. confectioners' sugar. Blend with 1/2 cup Snowdrift and 1/2 teaspoon salt, until smooth. Stir in 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla, 4 to 5 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk and 3 squares melted unsweetened chocolate. Enough for large 2-layer cake.

We say, "Taste Snowdrift icing by itself." See how all the rich chocolaty flavor is yours to enjoy. The light, delicate magic you get in Snowdrift comes from the skill of its makers--the Wesson Oil People, who give you shortening as fine and delicate as Wesson Oil itself. That's why you are sure of good taste in all foods you bake and fry with Snowdrift. What's more -- Snowdrift's creaminess makes the icing ideal for decorating, because it keeps spreadable for days.

'Twas the MONTH before Christmas

At a home just like any
The days left were few
But the chores left were many

The wrapping of presents
The last minute shopping--
And parties between Kept the whole family hopping

And with errands and worries
Too many to mention
Instead of good cheer
The house filled with tension

The tension and parties
Gave Frank indigestion
And Mary her headache
Without any question.

But then they remembered
What their nurse friend Kay said
And they each took a Bromo
For their stomach and head

THERE'S A MEDICAL REASON
WHY BROMO-SELTZER WORKS BEST FOR HEADACHE AND

COMPARE IT! THERE'S NOTHING LIKE NEW DETERGENT OXYDOL!

BEATS
the Sun for getting clothes

HERE'S WHY!

- 1 Oxydol has changed to a new detergent formula that's really different!
- 2 We added a remarkable new whitening ingredient—never before used in any washday product!

Here's Proof! An Oxydol wash DRIED INDOORS is whiter than any wash DRIED OUTDOORS in brightest sunshine!

Dozens of wash tests have proved it—that new detergent Oxydol actually beats the sun for getting clothes white. For instance, we took a number of towels and washed them in all the leading suds. Then we dried them outdoors in sunshine.

But a towel washed in Oxydol and dried indoors—like the one shown here—was noticeably whiter than the other towels. Now you can have gorgeous white washes always—with new detergent Oxydol. Get it for your next wash!
